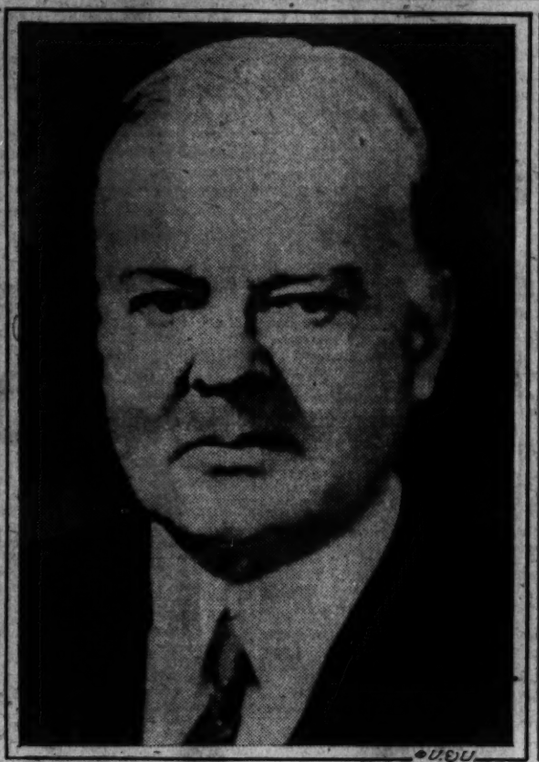
HOOVER AND CURTIS RENOMINATED BY G. O. P. CONVENTION AT CHICAGO; SANDERS NAMED TO SUCCEED FESS



PRESIDENT HOOVER.

VICE PRESIDENT CURTIS.

J. I. FRANCE EJECTED TRYING FOR COOLIDGE

War on Vice President Fails as Administration Forces Come to His Rescue.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

Chicago, Ill., June 16.—The Republican ticket for 1932 is the same as that which triumphed in 1928, Herbert Hoover for President, Charles Curtis for Vice President.

Eleven days hence, the Democratic party will meet here to select its standard bearers, and then will begin what promises to be an epochal battle for control of the American Government.

Tonight the Republican national committee elected as its chairman Everett Sanders, secretary to Calvin Coolidge when the latter was in the White House. Sanders will direct the Republican campaign.

Hoover, son of an Iowa blacksmith, food dictator during the World War, and thirty-first President of the United States, was nominated for another term today in the Chicago Stadium by an almost unanimous vote of the Republican national convention.

Curtis, born on a Kaw Indian reservation, a jockey, a lawyer and for half a century a public servant, likewise was nominated on the first ballot, but under circumstances that gave his friends a terrifying few minutes of anxiety.

It was evident tonight that, despite the furore here over prohibition, President Hoover expects to soft pedal that issue and to stress economic problems in his campaign for re-election.

1,126½ Delegate Votes.

President Hoover received 1,126½ of the 1,154 delegate votes in the convention. All that he needed was a majority, or 578.

Curtis, running against a field of twelve, none of them active candidates, polled 633¾ votes.

A number of States, hoping for a deadlock, had withheld their votes. Then Pennsylvania, which had voted for Gen. Edward Martin, a favorite son, switched 75 votes to Curtis.

Former Senator Joseph I. France, of Maryland, who spent a small fortune under the delusion that he could beat Hoover, was literally dragged from the platform when he sought to reach the microphone and place Calvin Coolidge in nomination.

France, who just a moment before had been placed in nomination by L. B. Canblast, of Oregon, rushed to the platform, red and perspiring and was making a dive for the microphone when Representative Bertrand H. Snell, of New York, the permanent chairman, blocked him.

"You are not a delegate," said Snell, "you have no right here."

"I am a delegate from Oregon," cried France, struggling to get to the microphone. "I demand my rights. You know what I am going to do and you are trying to stifle me."

Nathan McChesney, an assistant sergeant at arms, and a uniformed policeman seized the excited Marylander and roughly ejected him from the platform.

Gets Only Four Votes.

In the balloting on the Presidential nomination which followed a few minutes later, France got only four

CHILEAN PALACE IS ATTACKED BY MONTERO'S MEN

GROVE IS ELUSIVE; CONFUSION REIGNS

Forces Loyal to Minister Mount Machine Guns as Fighting Begins.

Santiago, Chile, June 16 (A.P.)—Fighting broke out around the government palace tonight as army supporters of Juan Esteban Montero, deposed president, sought to oust the new Socialist junta because of tendencies considered communistic.

While rebellious troops marched toward the city to assault the palace, army officers invaded the palace in a search for Col. Marmaduke Grove, minister of defense and leading member of the junta which overthrew Montero in a similar raid on June 4.

Col. Grove eluded them by hiding in an obscure room, from which he ordered loyal troop reinforcements.

The streets were a seething mass of people.

Firing in Distance.

Airplanes of the attacking forces flew over the city in a sky illuminated by bursting star shells and rocket flares, while troops entered Santiago from the north to attack the palace. Firing was heard in the distance.

Officers of the Santiago garrisons said they were joining in the assault because the junta was "going to the Communists."

From his hiding place Col. Grove summoned carabineers and cavalry. Forces loyal to him mounted machine guns on the palace, the governor's building nearby and surrounding structures.

From their vantage points the loyal machine gunners prepared to resist an attack by infantrymen coming afoot and in trucks from the suburbs of San Bernardo, as did the forces of Col. Grove and Carlos G. Davila, former civilian leader of the Socialist junta, march on the palace in the coup twelve days ago. Unlike tonight's, that march made from a nearby airport, was devoid of fighting.

Lull in Disorders.

Near midnight there was a lull in the disorders around the palace, but the crowds continued to surge.

The army officers who invaded the palace in an attempt to capture Col. Grove said they favored "maintenance of national socialism divested of Communists and the expulsion from the government of fanatic and antipatriotic elements."

While the junta summoned loyal air forces to augment troops already guarding the palace, hundreds of Communists favorable to the present regime gathered in a huge crowd to assist the junta.

At the same time several thousand civilians mobilized to aid the attackers, whose strength was as yet unknown.

Davila Men Involved.

New Cross-Continent Air Record Claimed

Santa Monica, Calif., June 16 (A.P.). Making three stops across the continent, James B. Dickson, pilot, and three passengers, flew 2,480 miles from Newark, N. J., to Santa Monica, in 16 hours 49 minutes, elapsed time, and 14 hour 49 minutes actual flying time, today, they computed.

They claimed a record for flying distance in one day between sunrise and sunset, leaving Newark at 5:52 a. m., Eastern daylight time, half an hour after official sunrise, and landing here at 6:41 p. m., Coast standard time, half an hour before sunset.

Means Refused Plea For Release on Bond

(Associated Press.)

Justice James M. Proctor in District of Columbia Supreme Court yesterday refused to free Gaston B. Means on bond, pending an appeal of conviction on charges of stealing $104,000 from Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean in an alleged attempt to ransom the Lindbergh baby.

In denying a motion for bail, Justice Proctor said he believed Means still has $100,000 and indicated he felt the former Justice Department investigator might flee the court's jurisdiction if released from jail.

Senate Votes $319,000,000 Naval Bill

(Associated Press.)

Rejecting a motion to cut the $319,000,000 naval appropriation bill 10 per cent as has been its practice, the Senate yesterday approved the measure and sent it to conference with the House.

Earlier it had refused to remove $650,000 for naval reserve training cruises but approved without a record vote an amendment by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, which would prohibit use of any of the $319,000,000 for sending more marines to Nicaragua to supervise the coming elections.

Democratic members charged that Secretary Stimson had no authority to send more marines to Nicaragua

LAST MOVE DUE TODAY TO REACH PAY CUT ACCORD

Prospect for Agreement by Joint Conference Grows Dimmer.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

After a day's respite from slow moving economy negotiations, House and Senate conferees this morning will make one last effort to break down the impasse barring the way to agreement on either compulsory Federal furloughs or flat cuts in Government pay.

Lacking agreement, indications are the conference group will report out a bill embracing all economies on which the two factions are in harmony, leaving the pay cut-furlough issue to be thrashed out again on the floor of either chamber.

Senator Wesley L. Jones (Republican), Washington, chairman of the conferees, yesterday abandoned plans to go before the Senate and ask a free hand in dealing with the problem in conferences. An advocate of pay cuts, he had previously pledged the Senate he would stand by its furlough vote.

Rejection of this only apparent way out of the deadlock left conferees exactly where they were when they adjourned late Wednesday, poles apart on the pivotal savings item.

Other Disagreements.

This title was the only major economy in the entire program on which conferees have been unable to arrive at an understanding, although there are a number of items of less import on which a disagreement is reported.

Chairman Jones will call the conference to order at 10 o'clock this

Judge Frees Prisoner Despite Plea of Guilty

Although he entered a plea of guilty to a charge of violating the prohibition law, William Edward Thomas, 26 years old, yesterday walked away from Police Court with a contrary verdict when John P. McMahon ruled that some evidence seized by police in arresting Thomas had been illegally taken.

He directed that the plea of guilty be stricken from the records and that Thomas be freed. That was done. Thomas walked into an apartment while police were there. They had no warrant.

GIVE VETERANS FARMS, IS PLAN OF GLASSFORD

Proposal to Get Soldiers Back Home and Bring Prosperity Bared.

LAND OWNED BY U. S. AND STATES WANTED

Rejected by Committee, Bill Is Expected to Get Vote in Senate Today.

The installation of veterans of the Bonus Expeditionary Forces on State and Federal owned farm land as a means of transforming the army into a farflung home-making movement was proposed last night by Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford.

His plan to utilize the veterans "to bring the country back to prosperity"—which is also his peaceable evacuation program—came as the veterans laid plans for an intensive lobbying campaign in the Senate to strive for votes for their bill, which will be debated today and will probably reach a vote.

A call for a permanent organization of the veterans to declare a ballot war to the end against opponents of their bill in Congress, was sounded by Commander in Chief Walter W. Waters, after the Senate finance committee adversely reported the $2,400,000,000 bonus bill. The vote was 14 to 2.

Seek to Maintain Harmony.

To maintain the harmony which has existed between the Police Department and the veterans, the executive committee of the army last night ordered the deposition of George Alman, of Portland, Oreg., the national billeting officer of the army, who engaged in a heated argument with Capt. William G. Stott, of the Police Department, over the request to veterans to evacuate a building at 322 Pennsylvania avenue northwest.

Shortly before the Senate recessed last night, the bonus bill was called for consideration. Recess was taken immediately, which paves the way for debate which will begin at 11 o'clock this morning. Leaders of the Senate estimate there are 55 votes aligned against the bill, while the legislative committee of the veterans estimate they have from 33 to 39 votes. President Hoover has promised to veto the bill if it should reach him.

Bonus Friends Block Action.

Senate action was blocked yesterday by friends of the bonus. Senator Smoot, of Utah, chairman of the finance committee, sought immediate consideration of the bill, but was opposed by Senator Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, an advocate of the bill.

The plan of placing the veterans on land for farm development, Gen. Glassford said, could be extended to

2 Sisters Die in Suicide Pact to Escape Prison

Springfield, Ill., June 16 (A.P.)—Rather than serve terms in a Federal prison, three sisters who were convicted last week of violating the Harrison drug act, entered into a suicide pact. Two are already dead and the third was in a dangerous condition today, Federal officials said.

Bessie Habry and Ruth O'Leary, who died, broke a window in the jail, attempted to slash their wrists and finally swallowed broken pieces of a milk bottle. Bessie died Saturday and her sister died Sunday. Sadie Rogers, the third sister, has been on a hunger strike fifteen days and told the Government physician that she too had swallowed glass.

EATON DEALS UNDER FIRE IN SENATE QUIZ

Millions Invested by Public Used in Personal Ventures, Investigators Told.

(Associated Press.)

Charges that millions of dollars invested by the public in Continental Shares, Inc., of Cleveland, were used to "further the personal ventures" of Cyrus S. Eaton, its organizer, were made yesterday in the Senate stock market investigation.

They came from David Stock, investigator for the Senate banking committee conducting the inquiry, and George L. Gugle, of Columbus, Ohio, a Continental Shares stockholder.

Testimony also was presented by Stock and William A. Gray, the committee counsel, concerning Foreign Utilities, which they described as Eaton's personal holding company in Canada.

Referring to the transaction which they described, Chairman Norbeck (Republican), South Dakota, said it "has the appearance of being a plant to get away from the income tax."

World Speed Mark Broken by Italian

Record Is Invalidated, However, by Minor Accident.

Desenzano Del Garda, Italy, June 16 (A.P.).—The world airplane speed record has been broken by an Italian ace with a speed of 430 miles an hour, but his trial was invalidated by a last-minute accident. The flier was Lieut. Neri, of the Italian air force, and he beat the speed of 408.8 miles an hour set by Flight Lieut. George H. Stainforth, at Calshot, England, a year ago.

The accident was the loss of an elevation rudder on the final lap of the trial held here yesterday. Just as Lieut. Neri was on the verge of the record, the violent air currents set up by his terrific speed tore off the rudder.

The flier was forced to use all his skill as the ship plunged off the course, but finally maneuvered down to the surface in safety. He insisted he was going to try again in the immediate future.

G. O. P. Reorganizes National Committee

Sanders, New Chairman, Takes Charge and Calls For Vigorous Campaign; "We Are Going to Win," He Declares.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—The Republican machine was reorganized quickly today for the 1932 campaign, with Everett Sanders of Indiana, as the new chairman of the national committee.

Sanders, a former secretary to President Coolidge, was the choice of President Hoover for campaign manager. His name was presented to the national committee at a meeting just after the convention closed by Postmaster General Brown, director of the preconvention Hoover activities, and accepted unanimously.

In a meeting exuding harmony, Sanders took immediate charge and called for a vigorous campaign in behalf of the Republican party and its newly-chosen nominees, President Hoover and Vice President Curtis.

"We are going to win," he told the committeemen and women, "because the party and the nominees stand for sound government."

Senator Fess of Ohio, the retiring chairman, and Dr. Hubert Work, of Colorado, the chairman in the 1928 campaign, joined Sanders in presiding over the committee session.

Most of the present committee organization was reelected. Daniel E. Pomeroy, of New Jersey, retiring as a vice chairman, nominated J. Henry Roraback, of Connecticut, as his successor and he was unanimously chosen.

Other officers of the committee were reelected, including Ralph Williams, of Oregon, and Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, of Kentucky, as vice chairman; J. R. Nutt, of Cleveland, treasurer; George DeB. Keim, secretary, and James Francis Burke, general counsel.

Selection of Sanders was fixed upon today by the President. His choice met an apparently ready welcome by the party leaders who saw in it an expression of cooperation between the Coolidge and Hoover regimes.

Senator Fess had announced some time ago his determination to retire

San Marcos, Tex., June 16 (A.P.).—Maj. T. B. Curtis, of the Veterans Bureau at San Antonio, and A. W. Turner, San Antonio veteran, were shot, probably fatally, when a mental patient seized a gun and started firing in a crowded Pullman car here today. Curtis, shot three times, and Turner, shot twice, were taken to the San Marcos Hospital.

William F. McWilliams, who was being transferred from the mental ward at the base hospital at Fort Sam Houston to the new veterans hospital at Waco, Tex., jumped from the train and fled after the shooting. Officers and possemen took up his trail.

Relief Measure Voted by House

Bill to Give U. S. Wheat and Cotton to Needy Goes to Senate.

(Associated Press.)

The Pulmer bill to release to the Red Cross for relief purposes 40,000,000 bushels of wheat and 500,000 bales of cotton from Farm Board stocks was passed yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate.

Chairman Jones, of the agriculture committee, told the House that after taking 40,000,000 bushels of wheat in addition to the 40,000,000 released last winter, the Farm Board still will hold 150,000,000 bushels.

An attempt to bring the $2,000,000,000 Democratic relief bill before the Senate failed when Senator Smoot (Republican), Utah, objected to a request by Senator Wagner (Democrat), New York, to consider it immediately after the bonus bill has been disposed of. Meanwhile, Senator La Follette (Republican), Wisconsin, introduced an amendment to the bill to increase the $500,000,000 bond issue for public works to $5,500,000,000.

TALKS AT LAUSANNE TO BE KEPT SECRET

Decision Is Made Following Appeal by MacDonald for U. S. Help.

Lausanne, Switzerland, June 16 (A. P.).—The reparations conference, which heard Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain declare at its opening session today that American help is imperative if the world's economic miseries are to be wiped out, will operate behind closed doors when it gets down to business tomorrow.

After the brief opening meeting—it lasted an hour and ten minutes—the leaders of the principal delegations decided to close the doors tomorrow, when Franz von Papen, Germany's new chancellor, will present his argument that the Reich no longer can pay reparations.

Premier Edouard Herriot of France remarked in explanation that in these days "one can not indulge in the luxury of words." There are facts to be examined, he said.

The new German chancellor will not flatly repudiate reparations when he goes before the conference, the Associated Press learned on high authority.

He and M. Herriot had their first

Gangland Assassins Kill 'Red' Barker, Racketeer

The man who has escaped conviction in Chicago for years although his name has been linked with scores of labor war bombings and other terrorism was found seriously wounded in a Northwest Side street. He died in Keystone Hospital soon afterward.

3 Extortionists Trapped And Slain in Chicago Loop

Men Ambushed by Detectives While Trying to Kidnap Schecter, Gambler, in His Bookmaking Establishment After He Refused to Pay $25,000.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Ambushed by detectives, three alleged extortionists were killed by shotgun and pistol fire today as they attempted to kidnap Morris Schecter, gambler.

The shooting occurred in Schecter's Loop bookmaking establishment when members of the band attempted to drag him from the place after he refused to pay them $25,000. Last week they called upon the gambler and ordered him to have the sum ready today or "take the consequences."

Instead, Schecter notified Pat Roche, chief investigator for the State's attorney, and when the terrorists arrived today they walked into a police trap.

One of the slain men was identified by Roche as Harold Partner, of St. Louis. An automobile certificate of title found in the clothing of a second dead man bore the name "Frank Rogers" and a Chicago address. The other victim was Sam Katz, Chicago police character.

Roche was of the opinion all were members of a St. Louis gang that has been preying upon persons in the Middle West during the last two years.

A relative of Schecter, known as "Brass" McDonald, a St. Louis gambler, was kidnaped by the same gang a year ago and forced to pay $50,000 ransom, the former told Roche.

Warned of their contemplated visit to the bookmaking establishment today, Roche and his squad secreted themselves in an office adjoining the

Bus Driver Freed in Crash Which Killed 3 and Hurt 11

Louis H. Mealey, driver of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. bus that crashed into the side of a Capital Traction de luxe bus at Seventeenth street and Rhode Island avenue northwest April 1, yesterday was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Benjamin Pettus, prominent attorney, who was a passenger on the Capital Traction bus.

Attorney Charles Ford, for Mealey, contended that none of the Government's witnesses could testify that the traffic light controlling the intersection was red at the time Mealey drove his bus into it.

Two others were killed in the same crash in which eleven others were injured. There are no further indictments now pending against Mealey and Justice F. D. Letts, who heard the case, directed that he be freed of a $5,000 bond under which he had been at liberty. Assistant United

Vaccine for Combatting Typhus Fever Announced

Discovery of Preventive Weapon Is Revealed By Cumming at Banquet of American Institute of Homeopothy Meeting in Capital.

Another great achievement of preventive medicine was seen last in the announcement by Surgeon Gen. Hugh S. Cumming, of the Public Health Service, that a preventive vaccine has been developed for a dreaded plague, typhus fever.

The surgeon general told of this discovery when he addressed the banquet of the American Institute of Homeopathy at the Washington Hotel. He said that the Public Health Service soon will announce officially its development of an efficacious serum against the feared disease.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, of New York, who followed Dr. Cumming on the program, congratulated him on the epochal discovery of the service's research workers.

Dr. Cumming, who was introduced by Capt. Joel T. Boone, the President's physician, stressed the point that any let-down in public health work of the Federal Government, the States or municipalities because of trimmed appropriations would inevitably lead to disaster.

Dr. Boone enlarged upon his recent statement concerning the President's health and reiterated his statement that the President was a remarkable physical specimen. Later Senator Copeland jestingly remarked that it was apparent that the President followed his physician's advice, "but does not follow any other."

The senator praised the work of all the Federal bureaus which directly or indirectly aid the public health and said that physicians who lobby

VOLSTEAD ATTACKS G.O.P. LIQUOR PLANK

St. Paul, June 16 (A.P.).—Andrew J. Volstead, coauthor of the Federal prohibition enforcement act, today expressed dissatisfaction with the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican national convention.

A Republican himself, he consistently has declared in favor of anti-liquor laws as they now are and has opposed all suggestions of change. Mr. Volstead, former representative and now legal adviser to the Northwest prohibition administrator here, said putting the platform provisions into effect "probably would mean a Swedish or Canadian system of handling liquor here."

The convention controversy, he continued, "shows at least one thing clearly—that is, that the wets want the return of the saloon. They are sailing under false colors and have been right along. Their dissatisfaction with the plank shows they will be satisfied only with return of the saloon."

Hoover Is Accused.

Boston, June 16 (A.P.).—Leaders of three New England prohibition organizations today accused President Hoover of "leading them back into bondage" and called upon him to repudiate the "wet plank of the Republican platform." Otherwise, they said, they hoped he would not be reelected.

The organizations protesting were: The National United Committee for Law Enforcement, Clinton W. Howard, chairman; the International Reform Federation, Dr. Robert Watson, chairman, and the Massachusetts Loyalty League, Dr. A. Z. Conrad, chairman. In a telegram to President Hoover, they said:

"The drys of America have followed you with the same loyalty and confidence as the children of Israel followed Moses and Joshua, but instead of leading them into the promised land, you have led them back into bondage."

The Republican prohibition plank also was criticized today by Julian Codman, general counsel for the Constitutional Liberty League, who warned that "Nothing can stop repeal, but backward parties may well be wrecked in the flood of popular resentment."

Plank Called Weak.

Philadelphia, June 16 (A.P.).—Robert K. Cassatt, chairman of the executive committee of the Pennsylvania Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, today characterized the prohibition plank in the Republican national platform as a "miserable, weak, hypocritical, impractical product of a confessed effort to be wet to the wets and dry to the drys."

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Harvey S. Firestone, Akron, Ohio, manufacturer, in the city to inspect a new plant erected here by his company, today condemned the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican party.

Mr. Firestone, who was met at the train by Lowell Fess, son of Senator Simeon D. Fess, Republican national chairman and a dry leader, said the party should have taken a definite stand for resubmission or repeal.

"Any sane man knows that something must be done, and that the best way to do it is by direct action. The plank, as adopted, is an evasion. Perhaps not quite that, but at least it is taking an inexcusably round about means of getting at what is plainly needed.

"Advocates of repeal would have taken the prohibition question out of politics, and cleared the air for consideration of the real vital economic issues of the day."

Mr. Firestone attended today's session of the convention.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Burgoyne Hamilton, president of the Blue Cockade, Inc., an organization for the repeal of the eighteenth amendment, today invited Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, to head a liberal party, featuring prohibition repeal.

The Blue Cockade was organized less than two months ago. Besides Hamilton, who is a real estate operator and who stumped for President Hoover four years ago, the organizers include Frank F. Winans, former president of the Chicago Association of Commerce; Sherman B. Voost, treasurer of the Better Business Bureau, of New York City, and H. D. Cleveland, cousin of the late Grover Cleveland.

Morris Plan Bank Loss Is Covered

While Washington police awaited word from Los Angeles, Calif., regarding details of the arrest of Bernard L. Mann, former cashier of the Morris Plan Bank here, who is alleged to have absconded with a large sum of the bank's money, Willard Barker, vice president of the institution, last night issued the following statement:

"According to an Associated Press dispatch report Bernard L. Mann, 24, was arrested Wednesday in Los Angeles, Calif., where he is being held pending extradition to the District of Columbia. Until recently Mr. Mann was one of the paying tellers at the Morris Plan Bank. An audit of his accounts disclosed an item of $11,850 difference in his cash, for which he has not accounted. This item was alleged in one of the morning papers to be $105,000, which is a typographical error, the difference being not $105,000 but $11,850. The Morris Plan Bank will sustain no loss due to the fact that the bank is fully covered by a bond protecting it against any loss whatsoever in this connection.

"The officials of the Morris Plan Bank stated that the Morris Plan Bank was fully protected by a bond and would not sustain a dollar's loss, and that the entire matter was in the hands of the bonding company, and the arrest of Mr. Mann was presumably on the initiation of either the police authorities or the bonding company."

Text of Snell's Telegram And Reply Sent by Hoover

Texts of the telegram from Representative Bertrand H. Snell, permanent chairman of the Republican national convention, to President Hoover, notifying the Executive of his renomination, and the President's message in reply, follow:

"Honorable Herbert Hoover
The White House,
Washington, D. C.

"I have the honor to inform you that the Republican national convention has just conferred upon you the highest honor within its power to bestow, a renomination for the Presidency of the United States.

"I desire to extend to you personally as well as officially as chairman of this convention and on behalf of the delegates here assembled and the people of the nation our best wishes.

"We pledge our support in your arduous duties as Chief Executive.

"Permanent Chairman, Republican National Convention."

The President's reply said:

"I have your telegram advising me that the Republican convention has renominated me as the party's candidate for President of the United States. I am deeply grateful for the highest honor that the party can confer. It marks your approval and your confidence. I shall labor as I have labored to meet the effects of the world-wide storm which has devastated us with trials and suffering unequaled in but few periods of our history.

"That storm still surrounds us. The measures which we want adopted and the policies which you have outlined will, with patience and courage, restore confidence and with it employment, agriculture and business. These policies and measures will hold our hard-won American system of ordered liberty and government. Our youth will continue to find that the doors of equal opportunity are open.

"But beyond platforms and measures there lies that sacred realm of ideals, of hopes and aspirations—those things of the spirit which make the greatness and the soul of the Nation. These are our objectives and with unceasing effort, with courage and faith in Almighty God they will be attained.

"If the American people shall again commit to me the high trust of this great office, I pledge to them the full measure of my devotion to their service.

"HERBERT HOOVER."

Dolly Gann Gains Victory In Campaign for Curtis

Says She Was Never Worried, But Follows Vote Anxiously as Convention Renominates Her Brother for Vice Presidency.

Chicago Stadium, June 16 (A.P.).—Campaigning Dolly Gann rode the waves of vice presidential balloting in dramatic suspense today and was swept to victory, a haggard but happy Second Lady of the Land.

While her husband chided a girl reporter for calling him "Mr. Dolly Gann," the sister of Vice President Curtis saw the successful culmination of her fight for his renomination from the rank and file of delegates to this Republican national convention.

Amid cards stretched for autographs, milling photographers and a host of Republican men and women Mrs. Edward Everett Gann had a true triumph.

"I'm perfectly happy over the result," she cried. "Tell everybody thank you for being so kind."

The sturdy Mrs. Gann sank back in her chair and turned a wide-smiling visage to the photographers after the Pennsylvania delegation changed its vote, swinging 75 needed to the Kansan.

Silas Strawn, the lawyer, had come to announce the jig was up for the opposition almost an hour earlier. Several others, old guard Republicans, had been around to reassure: "You aren't worried? It's all up. Congratulations."

But though Dolly thanked each one and smiled, she wouldn't turn her worried face for long until a tally in her own box showed the battle won.

Then it was she turned to be photographed—with a few red carnations recovered after lying forgotten for an hour in a chair into which Dolly tossed them as the contest opened.

Almost simultaneously the little man beside Dolly uncovered his head—reaching to her shoulder—and waved his hat. Vice President Curtis' son, Harry, young lawyer, who kept the tally, let his arm hang limp, with his pencil still in hand, and the young red-headed wife of Harry Curtis—on the verge of tears as New York sent "95 votes for Harbord" ringing through the stadium—smiled and joined the celebration.

This was the supreme moment of the most dramatic feminine figure in the convention. For in it Dolly triumphed once again—and in a matter that mattered deeply and really to her—over dashing "Princess Alice," of the Roosevelt clan.

Though Mrs. Nicholas Longworth denied it, the story had been the rounds that she was campaigning for her brother, Teddy Roosevelt, jr. The gossip waned when he took himself out of the race yesterday, but the rancor has remained, just the same, with Dolly.

Mr. Gann got into the tilt with reporters when a host of women writers sought to interrupt the festivities to accommodate several press associations and Eastern newspaper deadlines.

"Would you say you had been worried?" one of them asked Mrs. Gann.

"No, I never was," Dolly answered.

The throng was thickening and Dolly was exclaiming, "We won on the first ballot."

"I'm so grateful to everybody. Oh, thank you; that's so sweet."

Ritchie Sees Party Plank for Repeal

Says G. O. P. Apparently Did Not Want Stand to Be Understood.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 16 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, remarking the Republican party "apparently" did not intend that its prohibition plank be understood, said tonight he expected the Democratic convention to adopt a plank that would "mean the end of national prohibition."

Gov. Ritchie, a contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, said, in commenting on the Republican resubmission plank:

"It is all very significant. Here is the Republican national administration, elected in 1928 by the dry forces and now unable to stand up against the increasing wave of antiprohibition sentiment. A remarkably large minority in the convention was fearlessly for straight repeal. The rest were forced to admit at last that there must be some modification of the eighteenth amendment."

Maryland Seconds HooverNomination

Delegation Chairman Calls President Greatest of Living Americans.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Maryland unexpectedly seconded the nomination today of Herbert Hoover for President.

Oliver Metzeroff, of Hyattsville, chairman of the State delegation, was given permission to indorse the name of Hoover after Dr. Joseph I. France, of Maryland, had been advanced as a candidate by the Oregon delegation.

Mr. Metzeroff's brief speech was:

"Maryland, from whose bosom was carved the National Capital, and on whose original soil stands the White House, takes pride through its delegates, its primary and its Republican voters in seconding 100 per cent the nomination of that greatest living American, Herbert Hoover."

HOOVER, ACCEPTING, PLEDGES DEVOTION

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.

President Hoover in an impressively phrased telegram to the chairman of the Republican national convention at Chicago yesterday accepted the renomination as the party's candidate for the office he now holds and pledged the full measure of his devotion to the American people.

The President dispatched the message to Representative Bertrand H. Snell, the permanent chairman of the convention, soon after he had received the formal notification of his renomination.

Like millions of radio "fans" all over the country, the President had been following the progress of the convention from his loud speaker on the second floor of the White House. He was in the midst of luncheon when the roll call of delegates was started through the roster of States.

"For Herbert Hoover."

Together with Mrs. Hoover, the President listened to the repeated phrase, "For Herbert Hoover," and knew almost before the official notification reached him, of the result.

With the work of the convention practically completed, the next step will be the plan of the campaign. The President has not yet decided where he will receive the traditional visit from the committee of notification. This will be the announcement by a committee from the convention who will wait upon the President at an appointed place, to formally deliver to him the result of the deliberations of the convention.

Some sentiment is being mobilized in favor of the President's reception of the committee at his home in Palo Alto, where he received the notification of his nomination in 1928. It is put forward that the President could take a much needed rest by making the trip to California on a cruiser through the Panama Canal, receive the formal announcement from the convention committee in his California home, open the Olympic games in Los Angeles and return East by easy stages, stopping off to meet the voters en route.

Degree of Activity.

However, these details will not be decided until the President has had an opportunity of consulting with Everett Sanders, chairman of the Republican national committee, who will manage the campaign this year.

The degree of activity which the President will be able to spare for his campaign is also an important factor which will not be definitely determined until he has consulted with his managers here after the convention.

In the event, however, that the California trip be overruled in preference to a strict program of attendance to the business of state, the President will probably spend more of his time at the Rapidan camp than heretofore. Extra telephone and telegraph wires are now being strung at the camp for the rush of activity that the campaign will bring.

Burdens of Campaign.

The President is known to look with great reluctance on any plan which will take him away from his desk for any too great length of time with all the problems of internal economy that press upon him for help and solution. Congress is still in session. Developments in Europe also with reparations and intergovernmental debts in process of even temporary adjustment, may very possibly hinder the President from carrying out the campaign plans of his advisors to their fullest degree.

Some of the burdens of the campaign will undoubtedly be transferred to George Akerson, the President's former secretary, who has been closely associated with him for many years. Mr. Akerson returned to Washington this week after he had received a leave of absence from the moving picture firm with which he had been associated in New York for the last year.

Although the President had remained up beyond his usual retiring time Wednesday night to hear the results over the radio of the prohibition debate at the convention, he was at his desk as usual before 9 yesterday morning. His program continued according to the usual schedule. The members of the "medicine-ball Cabinet" were somewhat reduced due to the absence of so many of the ball tossers in Chicago. In the early morning, he conferred frequently by telephone with Lawrence Richey and Walter Newton, two of his secretaries, who were on the "firing line" in Chicago. Beyond replying to the notification from Chicago, the President had no other statements.

On entering, the extortionists demanded the $25,000.

Told that he could not pay the sum, the men drew pistols and ordered Schecter to leave with them.

The intended victim pressed the buzzer and the officers rushed from their hiding place.

A bullet that was wide of its mark was fired by one of the extortionists, and the police replied with a volley that cut down the three men. Two of the extortionists were shot through the heart. The third man died before he could be sent to a hospital.

Hurricane Damages Plantations.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, June 16 (A.P.).—A check-up today revealed that the greatest damage of Tuesday's hurricane was in the Pimiento banana zone, where 85 per cent of the plantations in a 50-mile long zone along the National Railway were leveled. Apparently there was no loss of life.

Winterbottom planked down $1,000 with Betting Commissioner Jack Doyle today, against $600 placed on the field by Frank Keough, man-about-town. Doyle said this was the first election bet of any consequence he had handled thus far.

HOOVER AND CURTIS PREPARE FOR GRIND

Receive Congratulations of Associates; Democrats Also Cheer News.

(Associated Press.)

A smiling Herbert Hoover and an equally pleased Charles Curtis swung into campaign step last night for the long, hard march to the November elections.

President Hoover heard over the White House radio the Chicago ceremonies denominating him as the Republican presidential candidate.

Word from Chicago that Everett Sanders, former Secretary to President Coolidge, would be the next chairman of the Republican national committee received quick confirmation from the White House.

Mr. Sanders, in addition to having served with Mr. Coolidge, was for some years a member of the House from Indiana.

He will succeed Senator Fess, of Ohio.

Will Confer With Hoover.

Mr. Sanders probably will come to Washington soon to discuss campaign plans with the President and then return to Chicago, where, under present plans, headquarters will be established.

The first thing the President did after his nomination was old familiar business with him—posing for pictures with groups on the south lawn of the White House grounds. There were nearly 500 persons present, who gave him a round of applause as he came down the steps.

In the House, the news of Mr. Hoover's choice was received with applause from both sides of the chamber. Democrats stood and cheered even after the Republicans had taken their seats.

"That," said some of the Democrats, "fixes things fine!"

News of the nominations pushed aside momentarily the whole-hearted public discussion of the Republican prohibition plank which had been going on all day in and out of Congress.

Varied Views Expressed.

The views expressed were varied, ranging from vigorous support from some of the Republicans to a characterization of the plank's author as "an ambidextrous amphibian" by Senator Gore (Democrat), Oklahoma.

Senator Tydings, a Democratic anti-prohibitionist leader, said the plank was "a group of splinters containing some Southern pine, Western spruce and a little of the sidewalks of New York."

Senator Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, said he was "satisfied" with the pronouncement, and Senator Barbour, a leading Republican antiprohibitionist, hailed its adoption as "the first definite victory of the antiprohibition forces."

After leaving the Senate presiding officer's chair, the Vice President grinned broadly at newspapermen and informed them that he had known since "1 o'clock last night" that he was to be renominated.

Robinson Chides Curtis.

Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, said after the Senate ovation to Curtis that he would be "pleased to have the present occupant of the chair" preside after 1933 if Republicans win in November but, with a smile toward the Vice President, added:

"God save the country from another Republican administration."

Acting Speaker Rainey of the House said:

"We have always been willing to accept Mr. Hoover as an issue. The applause by Democrats on the House floor showed that. Why, they made more noise than the Republicans."

Absent from the Senate when the announcement came, Senator Borah walked to the Vice President's desk on his return, shook hands with Curtis and talked for several minutes.

The selection of Mr. Sanders as chairman of the national committee was indorsed warmly by Senator Watson (Republican), Indiana.

"Fine," Watson said. "He's 100 per cent all right."

Foreign News in Brief

An Italian fleet of 20 twin-motored seaplanes, under Gen. Italo Balbo, Italy's air minister, intends to salute the 1933 world's fair at Chicago from the skies when the exposition opens.

Rome, June 16 (A.P.).—Angelo Sbardellotto was sentenced today to death by shooting in the back for participation in a plot to kill Premier Mussolini. The trial lasted two hours. Sbardellotto admitted two bombs he carried were intended to kill Mussolini. He will be shot at dawn tomorrow.

Paris, June 16 (A.P.).—The late Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, died comparatively poor, the newspaper L'Oeuvre said today in a protest against insinuations by enemies of the former foreign minister that he accumulated a fortune while serving France. Only 6,000 francs ($240) was found in his home after his death, it was said, and he had about $3,200 in the bank.

The newspaper printed M. Briand's will in which he bequeathed his farm at Cocherel, which he purchased with the Nobel Peace prize money, to Mme. Lucie Uro Jourdan. The rest of his property went to his sister and nephew.

Manila, P. I., June 16 (A.P.).—Hope was raised today that Glenn Brophy, English flier, who disappeared March 18, 1931, is alive among the pagan savages of Yani, northernmost of the Philippine Islands. A Japanese fishing boat and Filipinos reported a strange figure was signaling from the shore of the island. Strong currents, heavy waves and fear of the savages prevent small boats from approaching to investigate.

Winnipeg, Manitoba, June 16 (A.P.).—A bandit entered the Corydon and Osborne branch of the Royal Bank of Canada here today, bound the staff of four and made off with $5,000. The robbery was not discovered until an hour later when a passerby noted the bank was open after hours.

Riddled Car Found After Liquor Chase

Bloodstained Cap Also Is Discovered in Machine With Smoke Screen.

Investigation by police yesterday of the finding of a bullet-riddled car with a bloodstained cap in it in an alley near New York and New Jersey avenues northwest, developed a theory that it was a purported rum car chased by Lieut. George B. Little and members of his liquor squad several hours earlier.

When the liquor squad head heard of finding of the car, he informed Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, chief of detectives, of his chase of a smoke-screen machine. The pursuit began on Bladensburg road northeast, Little said, and when the fleeing machine laid down a thick smoke blanket, endangering the pursuers, several shots were fired by the latter.

The machine found was equipped with a smoke-screen device. A heavy-caliber bullet hole was in the rear of the machine and the marks of shotgun fire were on the left side. A blood-stained cap, with a lock of curly black hair, and a hole in the back, was found in the machine. The bullet had also penetrated the rear of the driver's seat. Inquiry of hospitals and physicians by police up to late last night had disclosed no information as to the treatment of any person for wounds possibly inflicted in the chase.

for the elections, contending he intended dispatching 400 more. Chairman Hale, of the subcommittee in charge of the bill, said the marines were considered necessary because they were trained for the work.

Senator Glass (Democrat), Virginia, predicted that despite the amendment "the Secretary of State will find some way to use the marines already there to supervise the election."

Without mentioning the Cabinet officer's name, Glass said Stimson "is a law unto himself."

"He snapped his fingers," the Virginian said, at a congressional resolution directing him to cease what Glass termed "the absolutely lawless practice" of approving foreign loans negotiated in this country.

Senator Wheeler (Democrat), Montana, said he was informed by President Diaz of Nicaragua, that he ran for reelection upon being urged to do so by the American State Department.

upon the conclusion of the convention.

With an apparent empty treasury on the eve of the campaign, the committee received authorization to borrow $25,000 for 60 days.

It is one of the few times in recent history that the party has gone to the bank for loans and it brought the leaders face to face with the problem of running a campaign in these times.

Despite the empty purse, the members of the committee responded to the appeals for action with applause.

The treasurer, J. R. Nutt, of Cleveland, told the national committee that $7,000,000 had passed through the treasury during the last four years, but warned them that many contributors who heretofore had given large sums toward campaign expenses would be unable to do so during the coming campaign.

Nutt said that during the last campaign there were as many as 900 employes on the pay rolls and added that because of reduced contributions the committee would have to depend upon volunteer service to some extent.

The committee also adopted resolutions praising the work of the retiring officers, Senator Fess, of Ohio, chairman, and Daniel Pomeroy, of New Jersey, third vice chairman.

Authority was given to Chairman Sanders to appoint an executive committee of fifteen members in addition to the officers of the committee.

PARTY'S RUM PLANK PRAISED BY STIMSON

Says Plan Would Preserve Benefits of Dry Law and Eliminate Evils.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson tonight described the Republican prohibition plank as a program that would preserve the benefits derived from the eighteenth amendment and at the same time eliminate the evils.

The attitude of critics that the plank represents a "straddle" was deprecated by Stimson as "quite unfounded."

"It is perfectly consistent," he said, "perfectly definite and perfectly logical. It is well founded in law and fact."

Stimson, speaking over the radio, said Senator Bingham's minority proposal, which called for outright repeal, was "an impatient demand to abrogate the entire work of the past thirteen years under the prohibition amendment, and to confess it to be an entire failure."

Such a proposal, he said, was "tantamount to asserting that everything which we have done during those years was useless or evil."

Declaring the eighteenth amendment represented the culmination of a long effort to combat and remedy "very serious evils," Stimson said:

"By the act of repeal alone, we should be going back to those evils, accentuated by the more complicated conditions of modern life, as well as by the sudden and immediate destruction of the machinery upon which we now rely."

On the other hand, he said, the program as adopted takes into account the difficulty that would be encountered by dry States in policing their own territory against liquor traffic from wet States. Modern transportation means would accentuate that difficulty to a great degree, he said.

"These are the considerations," he continued, "which caused the majority of the resolutions committee of the convention to wisely insist upon a proposal which, while it allowed the States to deal with this problem as their citizens may determine, imposes at the same time the condition that this privilege should be subject always to the power of the Federal Government to protect those States where prohibition may exist, and safeguard our citizens everywhere from the return of the saloon and its attendant abuses.

FRANCE EJECTED FROM CONVENTION STADIUM

Associated Press Telephoto.

One bit of excitement came yesterday to the Republican national convention. This telephoto shows former Senator Joseph I. France (arrow) as he was forcibly ejected from the stadium when he protested a refusal to recognize him. Dr. France, who had been nominated by the Oregon delegation, wanted to put the name of Calvin Coolidge in nomination for the Presidency.

LEADERS ARE RENOMINATED

votes, although he had claimed 231 pledged delegates in the primary elections. Three of the four votes came from the Oregon delegation, and one from the Pennsylvania delegation.

France's candidacy will go down as one of the strangest in the history of American politics.

The other scattered votes on the presidential nomination were as follows:

Calvin Coolidge, of Massachusetts, 4½; Senator John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, 18; former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, of Illinois, 1, and former Senator James W. Wadsworth, of New York, 1.

Three and a half votes were cast for Coolidge by the Illinois delegation, and no doubt were inspired in "Big Bill" Thompson, former Mayor of Chicago, who hates Herbert Hoover and King George and thinks that Coolidge, with the possible exception of himself, perhaps, is the greatest man in the world.

The votes for Blaine were cast by the La Follette insurgents in the Wisconsin delegation and by two insurgents in the North Dakota contingent. The vote for Dawes was cast by a delegate in the New Mexico delegation.

So frantic were the opponents of Vice President Curtis in their efforts to roll him from the ticket that they voted for two men who actually were ineligible for the office.

David Ingalls, of Ohio, who was given one vote by his own delegation, is too young to serve. He is 33, the Constitution requiring that a vice presidential candidate be 35.

Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, who received two votes from Wisconsin insurgents, was born in Canada and consequently is not eligible.

Next to the history-making battle over the prohibition plank, the insurrection against Vice President Curtis was the most dramatic development of the Republican convention.

It began with whispering. Politicians who declined to be quoted insisted that Curtis was too old, that he was lacking in color and dynamic force and that he had been on the public pay roll too long, anyway.

The whispering stage passed to the action stage Monday night when the big Texas and Iowa delegations decided to cast their votes for Charles G. Dawes. The latter, who had been Vice President from 1924 to 1928, said he didn't want the office, but his admirers announced that they would "draft" him regardless. The movement was spreading like a prairie fire when Gen. Dawes, in a statement issued in Washington, announced flatly that he would not accept the nomination if it were tendered him.

MacNider Runner-Up.

Meantime the American Legion crowd, which is becoming more and more powerful in the two big parties, decided to take advantage of the threatened deadlock, and they primed two compromise candidates—Maj. Gen. James Harbord, U. S. A., retired, of New York, and Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, now American minister to Canada.

In today's balloting, MacNider was runner up with 178¾ votes, and Harbord was next with 161¾ votes. Watch a World War veteran get the nomination four years hence.

Had Dawes not put his foot down so emphatically, Curtis undoubtedly would have been beaten. He pulled through today only because the administration forces went to his rescue.

From the time the convention opened Tuesday, the Hoover forces dominated the situation. They displayed their power when they kicked out "Tieless Joe" Tolbert, for years Republican national committeeman from South Carolina, and they displayed it again when they jammed through what is now being called the Hoover prohibition plank.

An analysis of this plank showed that it was carried and a repeal plank rejected through the votes of Southern delegates, administration-controlled postmasters and the like in States which the Republicans have little hope of winning this time.

The repeal sentiment came from New York, New Jersey, Illinois and other States which the G. O. P. must carry next November in order to win.

Considering the dry background of the Republican party, the plank adopted is an astounding concession to the wets. Even the repeal leader, Senator Hiram Bingham, of Connecticut, now admits that. What Bingham and the other Eastern Republicans are worrying over now is the possibility that the Democrats will adopt a more forthright plank, and that the organized drys will come out openly for the Republican plank, thus damning it in the eyes of the more rabid wet voters.

Drys May Indorse Plank.

There was every indication tonight that the professional drys—many of them, at any rate—ultimately would indorse the Hoover plank.

However, their plan is to remain silent until they see what the Democrats do.

The thing that stands out in the wake of the Republican convention is that, at last, after twelve years of endless controversy, one of the two big parties has conceded that the people ought to have another chance to pass on the problem.

Four years ago, after President Hoover's smashing victory over Alfred E. Smith, such a concession seemed very remote indeed.

Although the prohibition controversy of the night before had kept the delegates up until 2 and 3 o'clock in the morning, they were all on hand when today's final session opened.

Inasmuch as the first session had been opened by an Episcopalian bishop and the second by a Catholic priest, the honor of asking for divine guidance for today's meeting went to a Jewish rabbi, Ferdinand Isserman, of the Temple Israel, of St. Louis. President Hoover was placed in nomination by James L. Scott, born in England, but now a resident of the President's State of California. Scott is a Knight of St. Gregory, and, therefore, a papal nobleman.

Reaching his peroration, Scott said: "I nominate and California gives you our great and glorious leader—Herbert Hoover."

This was the signal for a noisy and colorful demonstration that lasted a half hour.

A band struck up "California, Here I Come." The inevitable "Sunny Jim" Rolph, governor of the Golden State, waved the State flag, and a snake-like march around the stadium was on.

Red, green and orange balloons held captive in huge nets in the rafters were released and descended on the delegates like a shower of puffed jewels.

A sign, held aloft on two huge poles, moved up and down the aisles. "California to Maine, press on with Hoover," it read.

This might be the 1932 slogan.

New York, Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia fell into line and moved with winding sinuosity around the stadium.

At times the two bands and the giant organ were blaring away at the same time.

The strains of Iowa's tall corn song and "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "I've Been Working on the Railroad" blended in a raucous pot pourri of frantic music.

Confetti and paper streamers poured from the galleries from which last night came boos and angry howls from a wet mob.

Draws Vigorous Applause.

After Scott's speech came a number of seconding speeches. A Negro, Roscoe Conklin Timmons, of Illinois, drew the most vigorous applause.

He said that Hoover's "endurance" would be recorded on the pages of history along with Lincoln's patience.

"In the name of broken chains and tears wiped away," he said, "I second the nomination of that prince of the Republican party, Herbert Hoover."

Oliver Metzerott, of Maryland, called President Hoover the "greatest of all living Americans," and the members of his delegation staged a brief demonstration.

L. B. Sandblast, of Oregon, the man who placed former Senator France in nomination, looked very much like the man who, the night before, engaged in a fight with another Oregon delegate during the prohibition riot.

A few scattered cheers, mingled with a few boos, greeted his speech for France. Then came the incident heretofore mentioned in which France was ejected from the platform.

When Chairman Snell announced the result of the balloting, and proclaimed Herbert Hoover the party's nominee, there was another blare of music and a picture of the candidate was flashed on a screen high up in the stadium.

The delegates were plainly tired when the vice presidential nominating stage was reached. Even Chairman Snell was a trifle irritated and he ordered that the photographers stop taking pictures. He also sent word to the various camps that it would be well if nominating and seconding speeches would be held down to the minimum.

Delegate Charles F. Scott, of Kansas, a long time associate of the Vice President, got a hearty hand clap when he took the platform. His enthusiastic presentation of the qualifications of Vice President Curtis was well presented, but failed to command any general applause from the friendly but very tired delegates.

Mr. Scott, sensing the situation, cut his speech short, with the result that he got a loud cheer when he retired.

Cuts His Speech Short.

Then the name of former Gov. Alvin T. Fuller of Massachusetts was presented by former Representative George R. Stobbs, of Worcester.

National Committeeman R. B. Creager, of Texas, followed to nominate Bertrand H. Snell, of New York. Creager characterized his candidate as a man who would add great value and strength to the ticket.

Snell, grinning, stepped to the microphone and said:

"The chair now recognizes the delegate from New York, Mr. Snell. Had I known what to expect I would have refused to recognize him. I am a delegate from New York and that State has a candidate to present, so I must refuse to allow my name to be considered by this convention."

Cartoonist Jay N. Darling, of Iowa, sprang the first criticism of the age of Vice President Curtis in nominating Hanford MacNider, of Iowa, as his State's candidate, declaring:

"We must have a young man to interpret our platform and Hanford MacNider is the very best campaigner that I know."

Newman T. Miller, of West Palm Beach, Fla., nominated J. Leonard Replogle and emphasized the fact that he was "one of twelve children."

This completed the nominations and Chairman Snell directed that seconding speeches should be limited to 2 minutes each.

After the roll was called and Curtis declared nominated, the usual resolutions were adopted.

Chairman Snell was chosen to head the committee that will notify President Hoover of his nomination and Senator Dickinson as head of a committee to notify Vice President Curtis. Theoretically, neither of the nominees will know the big news until these committees call on them.

SHOUSE SEES HOOVER HAND IN RUM PLANK

Declaration Is Described as "Weazel-Worded All Through" by Foe.

(Associated Press.)

The Republican plank on prohibition was described yesterday as "weasel-worded all through" by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee.

In a statement issued through the national committee headquarters he said the pronouncement was "susceptible of any meaning that the driest dry or the wettest wet might desire to read into it."

Quoting extracts, Shouse said they proved the document to be "as complete a straddle as the administration was able to devise in view of the fact that 472 delegates in the convention were for submission * * * of an outright repeal of the present Federal authority over the liquor traffic."

Shouse's Statement.

His statement in full follows:

"I have received many inquiries as to my view of the prohibition plank adopted by the Republican national convention, perhaps because of the difficulty most people seem to have in determining just what it intends to convey.

"In one paragraph I note that the Republican party does not favor permitting the people to vote on any proposal limited to the retention or repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

"In another paragraph I observe the Republican party believes that in any proposed amendment the Federal Government should allow States to deal with the problem as their citizens may determine, but that the Federal Government should retain the power to preserve the gains already made in dealing with the evils inherited from the liquor traffic.

"In short, the long, complex and involved plank is as complete a straddle as the administration was able to devise in view of the fact that 472 delegates in the convention were for the submission to the voters of an outright repeal of the present Federal authority over the liquor traffic.

Called "Weazel-Worded."

"We know, of course, that a White House spokesman denied that the President was taking any part in framing the prohibition declaration of his party. We are equally cognizant that various senators and other citizens of eminence have stated that they were called in consultation by the President and submitted to him differing proposals.

"The plank itself bears evidence of the presidential habit of thought and expression, for it is weazel-worded all through and is susceptible of any meaning that the driest dry or the wettest wet might desire to read into it.

"It is a fair imitation of the President's position in 1928 as interpreted by his several spokesmen when wet Republicans newspapers of the East declared he was for a change and dry Republican newspapers of the West declared he was against a change. And Mr. Hoover, like the tar baby of Uncle Remus, 'Didn't say nuthin'.'"

Democrats Make Final Campaign Fund Appeal

New York, June 17 (A.P.).—A last-minute appeal for completion of the Democratic party's drive for a $1,500,000 campaign fund was issued today. Letters were mailed to 80,000 persons in an effort to bring the total number of contributions up to the 90,000 figure established four years ago. So far, approximately 70,000 have contributed.

The letters, signed by John H. Fahey, of Boston, executive chairman of the victory campaign, contained a reprint of the "united appeal" of last Monday.

Democratic Keynoter Calls on Gov. Roosevelt

Albany, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—Senator Alben W. Barkley, of Kentucky, who is to be the keynote orator at the Democratic national convention in Chicago, paid a brief visit to Gov. Roosevelt at the executive mansion today.

The conference lasted only a few minutes and the substance of the conversation was not immediately made known.

ROOSEVELT PLEDGED TOTAL RISES TO 563

North Carolina Swings Into His Ranks; Friends Claim 700 by June 27.

Chicago, June 16 (A.P.).—The pledging of North Carolina's 26 votes in the Democratic national convention to the presidential candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today boosted the New Yorker's pledged and claimed delegates to 563, or 15 short of a majority.

Two-thirds, or 770, will be required to nominate by the Democrats whose convention opens here June 27.

The Roosevelt forces hope to go into the convention with close to 700 of the 1,154 votes and to win the nomination for their candidate on an early ballot by coaxing sufficient votes from favorite son States.

Indiana Yet to Select.

They claim 105 of the 170 delegates from Pennsylvania and New York, but this claim is disputed by friends of Alfred E. Smith and the definite alignment of these delegates probably will not be known until preconvention caucuses here.

With these 105, Roosevelt's pledged and claimed total would be 668 tonight. Only one more State—Indiana—has yet to select delegates to the Democratic convention. That State will choose 30 next Monday and the Roosevelt people expect to win this final delegation.

Should all these forecasts be borne out, the New Yorker would enter the convention with 698, or 72 minus the two-thirds needed.

Line-up of Delegates.

With Indiana the only remaining delegation to be chosen, the Democratic presidential delegate line-up tonight stood:

Roosevelt, instructed, pledged and claimed, 563.
Smith, instructed and pledged, 94.
Garner, pledged, 90.
Lewis, pledged, 58.
White, pledged, 52.
Reed, instructed, 36.
Byrd, instructed, 24.
Murray, instructed and pledged, 23.
Ritchie, pledged, 16.
Preference in doubt, *168.

*Includes 92 of New York's 94 and Pennsylvania's 76.

Senator Wagner Is Seen As Roosevelt Nominator

Albany, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.).—The man to put the name of Franklin D. Roosevelt in nomination for the Presidency at the Chicago Democratic convention has been selected, the New York Governor indicated tonight.

The identity of the nominator was expected to be revealed by Mr. Roosevelt some time tomorrow.

The governor carefully concealed the name of the person chosen to put his name formally before the convention and laughed off all questions.

The name of Senator Robert F. Wagner, of New York, frequently has been mentioned as a nominator, with those suggesting him pointing out that because he was a New York City man, it would be a friendly gesture toward a powerful Democratic delegation whose attitude regarding the governor is unknown.

MRS. CATHERINE WELCH DIES.

Mrs. Catherine E. Welch, who was one of the few remaining widows of the Civil War to receive $50 a month pension, died at her home, 1521 Rosedale street northeast, yesterday.

She was born in this city 91 years ago. Her husband, Perman S. Welch, was wounded in action and died from exposure. At the time of the Civil War they were married and had a family. For a good many years, Mrs. Welch worked for Marcus Cohen, at one time one of the best-known furriers in Washington.

She is survived by a son, John W. Welch, of this city, and a daughter, Mrs. Ida M. Sanford, of Templemans Cross Roads, Va.

Funeral services will be held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at her late residence, followed by interment in Congressional Cemetery.

A favorable report on the Shipstead bill for rivers and harbors development was voted, 11 to 5, yesterday by the Senate finance committee.

Chairman Johnson (Republican), California, declined to make public the individual votes on the measure, which seeks to finance through bonds river and harbor projects authorized now or in the future by Congress.

Under the bill, bonds would be issued as needed to pay for projects, including the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway and connecting channels if they should be authorized.

DONNELLY KIDNAPER IS GIVEN LIFE TERM

Marshall Deputy, 37, Alias Depew, Escapes Death by Pleading Guilty.

Kansas City, June 16 (A.P.).—Marshall Deputy, 37, worn by his futile attempt to evade punishment by flight to South Africa, was sentenced to life imprisonment today for the kidnaping of Mrs. Nell Donnelly, wealthy garment manufacturer, last December 16.

He escaped the shadow of the noose by a plea of guilty in return for which prosecutor James R. Page recommended the life term.

Lacy Browning, Holliday, Kans., farmer and former school treasurer, also pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve 25 years in the State Penitentiary.

Browning, regarded by officials as a minor figure in the kidnaping, arranged for the use of a squalid cottage near Bonner Springs, Kans., for the imprisonment of Mrs. Donnelly during negotiations for $75,000 ransom.

"I want to get wherever it is I'm going," said Deputy, known here as Martin Depew, when offered the opportunity of speaking in his own behalf.

Tells of Kidnaping Plot.

"I have scarcely been used as a prisoner. I have been used wonderfully by each and every officer since I was captured," Deputy explained in answer to questions from Judge Ben Terte.

Before going into court the prisoner signed a statement in which he said he hatched the plot to kidnap Mrs. Donnelly in an attempt to collect $75,000 ransom and engineered its execution. He declared that throughout his flight he believed his associates had collected the ransom and "double-crossed" him. Mrs. Donnelly was released without payment of the money.

Deputy related in court that he had married Ethel Depew, who is in jail awaiting trial in the Donnelly kidnaping, without the formality of obtaining a divorce from a wife he deserted in Downingtown, Pa. Ethel Depew, a nurse once employed in the Donnelly home, had been instrumental in curing him of a narcotic habit, he said.

Awaiting trial with Mrs. Depew are Paul Scheidt, owner of the cottage where Mrs. Donnelly was held 30 hours, and Charlie Mele, whom Mrs. Donnelly identified as one of her guards.

Arrested in South Africa.

Deputy, who had been employed in this section as a steam shovel operator, fled to the East after the kidnaping and shipped aboard an American vessel as an engine wiper. He deserted the ship in South Africa and was arrested at Johannesburg.

In his confession he did not implicate Ethel Depew. Prosecutor Page said he intended to use Deputy as a witness against those awaiting trial.

Mrs. Depew burst into tears when informed that Deputy had been sentenced.

She said he had never told her of his deserted wife in Downingtown and his three children, Mildred, 15; Marshall, 13, and Jean, 8.

A reward of $2,500 offered by Mrs. Donnelly for the capture was paid to Joseph Smith, Newark, N. J., prosecutor, who furnished the information that Deputy had sailed to South Africa.

Kidnaping is punishable by death in Missouri.

Raichle's Attorney Gets Delay in Trial

Hearing Is Postponed to Wednesday on Plea of James O. Moore.

James O. Moore, Buffalo attorney, yesterday entered his formal appearance here for Frank G. Raichle, former attorney for G. Bryan Pitts, who is to go on trial Wednesday on a charge of subornation of perjury and obstruction of justice.

Moore immediately after being admitted to practice here for the special purpose of representing Raichle, asked that the trial date—Monday—be set back so that he could attend the graduation services at Yale, where his son is being graduated. At his request, Justice Letts postponed the trial to Wednesday.

Action on Raichle's motion for a bill of particulars is due in Justice Lett's court in the District Supreme Court today, when oral arguments will be heard.

TALKS AT LAUSANNE TO BE KEPT SECRET

private talk this afternoon at the Frenchman's hotel. In the course of it, Herr von Papen assured the premier he would adopt a policy milder than that of his predecessor, Dr. Heinrich Bruening.

The German plan is to demand cancellation of reparations not as an independent action but as part of a cooperative world plan for economic recovery.

It is expected the chancellor will announce that a moratorium may be necessary on the 1,500,000,000 marks (about $355,500,000) interest and amortization on Germany's private debts, the bulk of which are owed to Americans.

The Von Papen-Herriot interview created a feeling of optimism. It had been feared the new chancellor, who heads a government much more strongly Nationalist than the Bruening ministry, might ruffle the French delegation. But in French quarters it was said the impression left by the conference's first day was excellent.

French and Briton Confer.

While Herr Von Papen was seeing Premier Herriot, discussions of the possible effects of cancellation of war debts and of a moratorium were held by Neville Chamberlain, British chancellor of the exchequer, and Louis Germain-Martin and Julien Durand, France's finance minister and commerce minister.

Indications were that the future work of the conference would be carried on largely in quiet negotiations behind the scenes.

Prime Minister MacDonald, who was chosen president of the conference on the nomination of France, laid considerable stress on the importance of American assistance in meeting the economic crisis.

"This is the time for bold proposals," he said. "The United States has encouraged us to believe it will cooperate in some of the wider problems and join us in devising a policy for the encouragement of trade in the enrichment of nations."

MAJ. LEE ATTACKS G. O. P. RUM PLANK

Avers Maryland Delegates to Democratic Convention Will Favor Repeal.

Declaring that he could not "tell you what I think about the Republican prohibition plank because I can not figure out what it means," Maj. E. Brooke Lee, Maryland member of the resolutions committee of the Democratic national convention, last night promised that the Maryland delegation will propose a clear-cut plank for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and return of the question to the States. Maj. Lee, who is a member of the Maryland State Roads Commission, formerly was Speaker of the Maryland House of Delegates and former Maryland Secretary of State.

"The people of this country are weary of 'Yes, we have no bananas,'" the major said. "There is no need to fill a political plank with verbiage reciting, like a book on civics, how the Constitution can be amended or referring to the 'gains' or evils of prohibition. The people know all that. Every adult in the country has an opinion on this subject. What the voters want to know from political parties and from candidates is whether they are for or against national prohibition.

"We in Maryland are against it, and I shall present a home rule plank to the resolutions committee calling for repeal of the eighteenth amendment. It is because Maryland Democrats have taken a clear-cut stand on prohibition and every other issue in their conventions that we have elected our candidates by increasing majorities every four years since the eighteenth amendment was written into the Constitution. Victory awaits the party nationally if it does likewise," Maj Lee said.

Gainesville, Ala., June 16 (A.P.).—The iceman is delivering his goods gratis in this west Alabama town of 400 inhabitants where a municipal tax holiday is entering its second year.

The mayor explained the collection of street taxes and fines has placed the municipal cash box in good condition, making it possible for the municipal-owned plant to deliver free ice during the summer.

Plain Rites Mark Prince's Betrothal

Former King of Bulgaria Presides at Coburg Ceremony.

Coburg, Germany, June 16 (A.P.).—A plain gold band was used today to signify the betrothal of Prince Gustaf Adolf, grandson of the King of Sweden, and Princess Sybylle of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, his second cousin.

The simple ceremony was held in ancient Callenburg Palace, overlooking Coburg, in the presence of former King Ferdinand of Bulgaria, assessor of the house of Coburg, who presided, and the bride's father and mother and other relatives.

The engagement was celebrated on the birthday of the King of Sweden. A luncheon followed, at which the guests drank the health of the royal couple while the band of the old Ninety-fifth Regiment serenaded in the castle yard. The City of Coburg was decorated for the occasion.

Prisoner Loses Plea for Death.

Hartford, Conn., June 16 (A.P.).—Dr. Harold N. Guilfoyle was told today that the superior court was powerless to grant his request that he be hanged for a slaying for which he is serving a life sentence. The Hartford veterinarian based his plea for death on the contention that the court erred in convicting him of second degree murder when the indictment charged him with first degree murder. He was accused of slaying Mrs. Claire Kavanaugh Gaudet in 1928.

Boy, 7, Searches 48 Hours Alone for Lost Brother, 4

Honolulu, June 16 (A.P.).—A tale of how a 7-year-old Japanese boy searched alone for two days and nights for his lost 4-year-old brother was unfolded here today.

Yasuji Miyake, 7, and Futoshi, 4, were playing on the outskirts of Honolulu Sunday when Futoshi disappeared in the tall grass. Yasuji, refusing to return home, searched all that afternoon for his brother and when night came he slept in the reeds. He found drinking water in a pond. He had no food.

All day Monday Yasuji continued the search, spending Monday night again in the grass. Tuesday afternoon, exhausted and crawling on his hands and knees, he made his way home to tell his father the younger brother was still missing.

The father, a widower, delayed reporting the disappearance of his sons to police because he feared his neighbors would think him careless of the children.

A searching party was organized immediately and, headed by Yasuji, made its way to the spot where Futoshi disappeared.

In a hole five feet deep they found the tot. Desperately, he had tried to scramble up the sides of the hole into which he had fallen, but his tiny arms and legs were not equal to the task. He, too, had been without food, but stoically awaited the arrival of help.

Asked why he hadn't returned home sooner, Yasuji replied:

"My brother was not with me."

TRIAL OF VAN RIPER ENDS IN GUILTY PLEA

Capital Attorney Confesses to Helping Aliens Gain Entry by Fraud.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Harold Van Riper, Washington, D. C., attorney, cut short his own trial today after two witnesses had testified against him by unexpectedly pleading guilty to the charge of helping aliens gain admittance to this country by fraud.

Van Riper was admitted to $7,500 bail, pending his sentence June 20. Federal Judge John C. Knox pronounced his offense a "grave one."

The indictment contained seventeen counts, charging conspiracy, subornation of perjury and aiding and abetting aliens in fraudulently securing arrival certificates and naturalization papers.

United States Attorney George Z. Medalie told the court Van Riper has promised to give information to assist him in wiping out fraudulent naturalization practices.

The guilty plea came after Anny Bibi Bowers de Tepla, Venetian linguist and chemist, and Eduard Gregor, a Czecho-Slovak, had testified each paid $500 to Van Riper for his services.

HOUSE UNIT TO MAKE RECESS TAX STUDY

Conflicts Between State and Federal Laws Will Be Scrutinized.

(Associated Press.)

A special committee to make a thorough study of taxes during the congressional recess was appointed yesterday by Acting Speaker Rainey.

This group, all members of the House ways and means committee, will study particularly the conflicts between State and Federal laws and hunt new means of raising revenue, Rainey said.

He appointed as members of the new group Representatives Vinson of Kentucky, chairman; Cullen of New York, and Lewis of Maryland (Democrats); Crowther of New York and Chindblom of Illinois (Republicans).

A report on the extensive investigation is to be submitted to Congress when it convenes in December.

A few minutes later the House passed unanimously a resolution to amend the new tax law so as to keep big producing and importing oil companies from evading about $17,000,000 in Federal taxes on gasoline and oil.

This would be accomplished by providing that instead of applying the taxes only on gasoline imports and lubricating oil held by producers and importers as of June 21 these levies would be assessed on all owners of more than 20,000 gallons of gasoline or 1,000 gallons of oil on June 21.

EATON DEALS UNDER FIRE IN SENATE QUIZ

Cleveland, attorney for Eaton, said some of the statements made at the hearing were false and that others led to erroneous inferences.

Eaton himself did not appear, although Chairman Norbeck said he had been subpenaed.

Replying to questions from Gary, Daley said he did not expect Eaton would appear.

"I don't think a man has a chance to build up a defense and present that defense before a Senate committee," Daley said.

"I don't think anybody in the world could defend these charges before a Senate committee. They would have to be fought out in court."

Daley said one of the incorrect statements was an assertion by Stock that Otis & Co. had "unloaded" upon Continental Shares a quantity of Inland Steel stock at a price considerably higher than it could have been sold for in the market.

Fox Due to Testify Today.

Earlier in the day, the committee sought to take up the operations of Fox Film and Fox Theater Corporations, but was balked until today by the illness of William Fox, their organizer, who was scheduled to take the stand. He is expected to testify today.

Gray told the committee he intended to show that the corporations were "wrecked" by Fox and that he also would present evidence of a gigantic income tax evasion.

It was only after the committee had sent two doctors to check up on the story of Benjamin Reass, attorney for Fox, that the film man was ill in his hotel room and unable to appear, that the postponement was agreed to.

Stocks told the committee the Continental Shares case "involves manipulation and use of public money to further the personal ventures of persons in control of the public money."

He explained he referred to the money the public had invested in Continental Shares.

Cites Huge Losses.

Through manipulations, he said, the public lost about $150,000,000.

"I will show," Stock said, "that various methods were used to use the money of the public in Continental Shares to further the personal ventures of Mr. Eaton."

He charged that the Continental directors were "dummy directors," controlled by Eaton, and said Eaton not only controlled Continental Shares but was the principal partner in Otis & Co., New York brokers, who marketed its securities.

A third Eaton interest, he said, was Foreign Utilities, in Canada.

"The operation which more than anything else contributed to the wrecking of Continental Shares," said Stock, "occurred in October, 1930."

At that time, he said, Otis & Co. was hard pressed financially to the extent of $125,000,000. A "deal" was arranged, he said, by which $57,000,000 of the commitments of the brokerage company were unloaded onto Continental Shares.

When Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, inquired whether this was "a scheme to loot Continental Shares," Stock replied that it was a case of Eaton and Otis & Co. turning to the investment company to help them out of a "very tight hole."

States Attorney John J. Sirica prosecuted the case.

Earlier, Justice Letts denied a defense motion for acquittal. After the motion had been overruled, a defense witness, James Robinson, testified that the bus with which Mealey's vehicle collided was proceeding at a speed between 35 and 40 miles an hour.

Attorney Ford made much of the testimony of Miss Kathleen Conlon, a passenger in the Capital Traction bus and a Government witness, who said that the vehicle in which she was riding entered the intersection after the caution light on Seventeenth street had flashed.

RAIN MAKES BONUS ARMY CAMP A QUAGMIRE

Underwood & Underwood.

Torrential showers yesterday turned the company streets of the bonus army camps on Anacostia flats into quagmires and brought back memories of the time the boys were in the A. E. F. instead of the B. E. F. A group of barefooted vet erans are shown here as they pushed one of the supply trucks from a mud hole where it had bogged down.

LAND ASKED FOR VETERANS

take in a vast number of the unemployed. Though the bonus bill is "doomed to defeat," Gen. Glassford said, "it is well within the power of Congress now in session to enact legislation to turn the needs of the soldiers into a motive force for the return of prosperity."

"Land is available and cheap," he said. "Through Federal channels large areas are falling under Federal control. The States are acquiring vast tracts through nonpayment of taxes. Instead of remaining idle in Washington camps, these veterans returning to their respective homes should be organized into rural communities."

Each veteran would be given from three to ten acre farms with facilities for cultivation. In this way, he proposed, they could raise their own food supply and the surplus could be exchanged through the channels of trade to provide for other necessities.

"There are several bills before Congress," Gen. Glassford said," which include the elements of the plan." The veterans could build their own simple shelters on the farm land, he said, and could, as circumstances permit, build better homes for themselves. "Al improvements in their condition will react favorably on commercial, industrial and agricultural interests," he said.

He lauded the veterans for their conduct in the Capital. "They have demonstrated their loyalty to the flag," he said. "They were heroes, cheered in 1919. Today they are without employment, without means of support, homeless and outcast. They can not find work. Surely they are entitled to the oportunity to acquire a decent livelihood."

Plan Held Disastrous.

The finance committee characterized the effect of the proposed payment of the bonus by mere printing of money as disastrous, and pointed out that if such a Government obligation would be met in that way, there would be a tendency to similarly discharge other fiscal obligations of the Government.

The finance committee in its report, said in part:

"The effect of the resort by this Government to legal tender notes upon its financial affairs and also upon the business economy of the Nation would be disastrous.

"This is vividly shown by recent European experiences. If it is once determined that funds to meet Government expenditures can be obtained by the mere issuance of Government currency notes, there will be an inevitable tendency to meet all Government obligations in that way.

Indifference Denied.

"If this plan is good for the veterans, it is equally good for the payment of Government employes and other Government obligations. Resort to such a plan nullifies the will and effort to accomplish Government financing through normal and accredited methods.

"The whole body of our people and the veterans themselves have more to gain from the restoration of normal business conditions in this country through adherence to sound Government finance than from any experiment with the printing press as a means of Government finance.

"There is no evidence that the veterans as a class are any more in need than other groups of our citizens. Rejection of this measure in no way indicates indifference to existing needs of the veterans and of other citizens.

"It indicates determination to adhere in the conduct of our Government to those principles which have contributed to the development and strength of our country and which are essential to the achievement of recovery, through which our whole people, including the veterans, will benefit."

To forestall any demonstration of protest against the expected defeat of the bill in the Senate today, the executive and legislative committees of the army will meet at 9 o'clock this morning to designate men to be at the encampments when news of the defeat is received. Their duties will be to pacify the men and prevent disorder.

Proclamation to Troops.

In the proclamation to his troops, Commander in Chief Waters attacked the opponents of the bonus measure as representatives of "special interests and do not have the interests of the common masses at heart. We hope and pray that the millions of sympathizers of the B. E. F. will defeat the men who voted against the bonus in the coming election."

He urged the men to write to their relatives and friends so that all representatives who opposed them in the House would be defeated at the elections. He exhorted them to remain here until the bonus is paid and to send word back home for new recruits as well as provisions.

He said he did not believe President Hoover will veto the bill if it is passed by both houses of Congress. "But don't let's go to sleep, the veto has been threatened and must be stopped," he said. "This is the presidential year."

To lobby for votes in the Senate, Harold B. Foulkrod, of Philadelphia, chairman of the legislative committee of the army, will today send 300 veterans into the lobby to button hole senators and ask their vote for the bill.

Mr. Foulkrod, Commander in Chief Waters and Arthur Milton, executive chairman of the army, had a conference with Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, yesterday and were informed that certain defeat faces the bonus in the upper house.

Gen. Glassford last night announced that no more camps will be opened to the veterans until Camp Bartlett at Twenty-first street and Alabama avenue has been filled. Veterans from Camp Marks have refused to change to Camp Bartlett because it is so far from the city.

Commander in Chief Waters said the next thing to be done will be to remove the tents from Camp Bartlett to Camp Marks. Most of the tents at Camp Bartlett are owned by the District National Guard and it is very doubtful that their removal will be permitted. Some tents are owned by the veterans, having been purchased from their general funds.

The removal of Alman as national billeting officer was caused when Alman and a committee appeared at the office of Capt. Stott at police headquarters and protested the order to remove men from 322 Pennsylvania avenue because of a fire hazard and unsanitary conditions.

"Well," asked Alman, "what does the Police Department intend to do with these men?"

"How about Camp Bartlett?" asked Capt. Stott.

"That's too far away. There are lots of Government buildings around this town we could have," said Alman.

"What are they?"

"That's up to the police," shouted Alman.

"Well, the police have done everything possible to help you fellows, and so have I. I'm a veteran, too," said Capt. Stott.

Change Is Threatened.

"If that's your attitude here's our answer," shouted Alman. "The men have been soft-pedaling, but there's going to be a change mighty quickly."

"All right," shouted Capt. Stott, "The Police Department is equal to any emergency. I repeat, the Police Department is equal to any emergency."

A few hours later the executive committee repudiated Alman's statements and removed him from his office.

In a dispute over the departure of veterans from Camp Bartlett, Eugene Everett, of Jersey City, N. J., was deposed as commander, when he is reported to have refused to feed the departing veterans. Many of the veterans feel they are too far from the city and want to concentrate in camps nearer to the Capitol.

Camp Marks was a quagmire after the rains yesterday. The men moved about in mud ankle deep. Their mood was anything but cheerful after the downpour which left them soaked to the skin. Their crude shelters afforded them little protection from the heavy rains.

Finance Committee Vote.

Those who voted unfavorably in the report of the finance committee were Senators Watson, Reed, Shortridge, Couzens, Keyes, Thomas of Idaho, Metcalf and Smoot, all Republicans, and King, George, Walsh of Massachusetts, Connally, Gore and Harrison, all Democrats. Those favoring the bill were Senators La Follette (Republican), of Wisconsin, and Jones (Republican), of Washington.

Representative Wright Patman (Democrat), of Texas, author of the bonus bill, visited Camp Marks yesterday with Representative Connery, of Massachusetts, and Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate for President. They were loudly cheered.

Representative Patman predicted passage of the bill by the Senate and said, "I think the President should not veto this bill in advance and should give it the same consideration he has given other bills he has not vetoed for other interests."

"As for the veterans intimidating Congress," Representative Connery said, "the only thing you are intimidating is the conscience of some of them."

Conflicting Views on Food.

There is enough food for the veterans for at least five more days, the veteran leaders say, while Gen. Glassford says there is enough only until tomorrow night. A shipment of 3 tons of meat arrived yesterday from Altoona, Pa., and Bud Roth, of the Adams Hat Stores, of New York, has offered to bring kitchens here to prepare 10,000 bushels of wheat which the executive committee of the Army says has been obtained from the Federal Farm Board.

Calvin G. Lauber, fire marshal, will today submit to the District Commissioners a comprehensive report on the conditions under which the veterans are living in Washington, with respect to fire hazards, sanitation and similar conditions.

All the members of the special committee named by the Commissioners to make an investigation have turned their reports over to him as chairman, but the recommendations will not be made available until released by the District heads.

Gen. Glassford announced that 200 veterans received transportation from the District yesterday. The veterans placed the figure at 40. There is an obvious attempt by the veterans to minimize the number leaving while the police figures have been somewhat exaggerated.

A truckload of several tons of potatoes was received at Camp Marks last night, sent from Brooklyn. Other supplies of food and clothing reached the camps. The District Department of the American Legion gave Gen. Glassford a check for $1,000 for the veterans.

Glassford's Bonus Policy Commended

Central Business Men's Group Will Assist Veterans.

Declaring that Chief of Police Gen. Pelham Glassford's attitude and cooperation with the bonus army is a credit to Washington, members of the Central Business Men's Association passed a resolution to that effect at a meeting held yesterday at the Logan Hotel.

Talking on "Good Fellowship," Fred J. Rice, of the Cosmopolitan Club, addressed the meeting as guest speaker.

Mrs. Edmund Brennan was appointed chairman of the welfare committee to assist in securing clothing donations for the needy members of the bonus army. She will make her headquarters at the Logan Hotel, Thirteenth street and Logan Circle.

Tax Clerk Ousted in $1,100 Shortage

Decision on Whether to Have U. S. Prosecute Expected Today.

The District Commissioners today will decide whether to turn the case of Clair B. Mong, 25-year-old clerk in the tax collector's office, over to the United States attorney's office for prosecution. It was revealed yesterday that the youth had been dismissed following the discovery of a shortage of $1,100 in funds he should have deposited in the District National Bank.

Mong is understood to have reached an agreement with the National Surety Co., which bonded him for $10,000, to pay at least half of the missing money, and the question of prosecution is consequently up to the District authorities.

Mong, who has been employed by the District government for the past five years, claims that he lost the money about three weeks ago while en route to the bank to deposit it in the name of the District Board on Licensure to Practice the Healing Arts. The youth's salary was $1,620 a year.

On motion of William T. Pierson, Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, was commended on his considerate and sympathetic interest manifested in the care of the bonus marchers. Allen V. DeFord told of conditions at the marchers' camp.

Pastor Stresses Need of Prayer

Baraca-Philathea Unions Hear Dr. Blackwelder; Sees Good Times.

"We are on a mountain peak in the world's history and need the hand of a friend, bidding us to prayer, lest the wind of life blows us away," Dr. Oscar Blackwelder, of Baltimore, Md., told more than 500 delegates to the Wide World Baraca-Philathea Union convention at the Church of the Covenant last night.

Predicting that "the grandest times are before us," and that the time will come "when the flag of purity will unfurl in an eternal spring time," Dr. Blackwelder adjured his audience to contribute toward the coming of this felicitous season.

He observed that it is not hard to pray when everything goes wrong, but when life flows smoothly any thought of prayer is usually left in the background. "Be prepared to say you helped to unfurl this flag of purity, liberty and freedom," he said.

The evening program was also featured by a long service, led by Homer Rodeheaver, and by a religious pantomime. Prior to the program the Baraca members attended a fellowship dinner at the Mayflower Hotel, under leadership of Northern States. Mount Vernon was visited in the afternoon. The convention will continue through today, tomorrow and Sunday.

GLASS SCORES HALE IN NAVAL UNIT SLASH

Says He Took Advantage of Swanson's Absence in Hampton Roads Cut.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Glass, of Virginia, censured Chairman Hale (Republican), Maine, naval appropriations subcommittee chairman, yesterday for permitting a $6,000 cut in the Hampton Roads naval training station appropriation and at the same time adding that much to the Newport, R. I., station appropriation.

Glass said he was "surprised that the chairman of committee deserted Senator Swanson in his absence in Europe." Swanson, senior senator from Virginia, is the Democratic member of the subcommittee as well as ranking Democrat on the Senate naval committee.

Cuts made in the appropriations of the Hampton Roads station and those of two others totaled $20,000 and that amount was given to Newport.

The Hampton Roads appropriation with the cut is $225,000.

Glass said the appropriations changes in favor of the New England station are "a discrimination that ought not to be permitted," adding: "Newport has been regarded around here by many for the last six or eight years as simply a fashionable resort."

Glass pointed out that Swanson normally handled affairs relating to Virginia naval activities.

Off the floor, he said he did not intend to offer an amendment restoring the appropriation to $231,000, because the cut was "so little," but just wished to point out that "advantage was taken of Senator Swanson's absence."

2,558 Books Netted In "Fineless Week"

Lifted-Penalty Period to End Tomorrow at Libraries.

Public property in the form of 2,558 books has been returned to its owners, the people of Washington, since Monday when the Public Library initiated "fineless week." Dr. George F. Bowerman, librarian, announces that 1,001 books on which fines were remitted were returned on Wednesday alone. On that day 94 cards on which fines had accumulated were released from the library files, and returned to readers who thus have an opportunity to begin again with a clean slate.

The "fineless week" extends through tomorrow. Readers are urged to search their shelves for Public Library books which may be returned to the library without fines during this week, no matter how long the books have been overdue.

A "conscience box" has been placed at the front door of the central library at Eighth and K streets for the use of borrowers who hesitate to take their books to the desks. This box has collected from 10 to 20 books a day, one of which had been taken out as long ago as 1926, and several of which have been due three years or more.

HERBERT HOOVER.

The Republican party squares away for the campaign, offering Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis as candidates upon a platform pledging the party to completion of its program for restoration of the national welfare.

The platform is too long, but no one is compelled to read it all. Extracts from it will be useful during the campaign in showing what the party has done and what it proposes to do.

The wet-dry plank of the platform temporarily eclipses in interest all other planks. It must be pretty good, because it is furiously attacked by fanatics on both sides. The convention refused to make the party the tool of the drys or the wets. They are free to support the plank or to condemn it, and still remain Republicans. Extremists who make the liquor question more important than political parties will soon have an opportunity to pass judgment upon the Democratic party's declaration on this question. They can then decide whether to shift parties or quit them all and become crusaders for the wet or dry cause. The great parties will remain as contenders for the honor of administering the Government, and the people will not confine their judgment to the liquor planks in deciding between them.

As the campaign progresses, personalities will command more attention than platforms. Herbert Hoover is the Republican champion. Who is to be his opponent? Other questions are subordinate to this.

President Hoover possesses many advantages over any candidate who may be chosen by the Democratic party. He suffers some handicaps, also, which may work to the advantage of the Democratic nominee if that individual proves to be a statesman of national stature and free from equally serious handicaps of some other kind. Mr. Hoover's knowledge and experience are factors of strength, and the remarkable success of his program of rehabilitation is in his favor. The summing-up of his program will reveal that he obtained from Congress practically all that he recommended, and that he managed to prevent enactment of legislation that would have destroyed his program. In view of the fact that he dealt with an opposition House and an undependable Republican majority in the Senate, his achievement is a complete answer to those who questioned his ability to develop leadership. In this national crisis he has been a national leader, and unless a Democratic champion of commanding ability should capture the fancy and win the confidence of the people they are very likely to pin their faith to Hoover.

All signs point to a tempestuous Democratic convention. In 1924 the Democratic party defeated itself in its own convention. Although it nominated a candidate of outstanding ability, his campaign was a melancholy failure. The shadow of Madison Square Garden hangs over the forthcoming Democratic gathering at Chicago. Until that shadow is lifted and the identity of the nominee known it is idle to attempt an estimate of Hoover's relative strength. The nature of the race can not be foreseen until the list of runners is complete. Just now the public is scrutinizing the Republican situation as to the capabilities of the chief contestant, the condition of the track, the colors under which he runs, &c. A similar inspection must be made of the Democratic situation after the convention of June 27 before comparisons will be available.

The Republican party goes into the contest with its best contender, under conditions favorable to success. The Democratic party knows what it must meet, but it does not yet know how best to meet it. All the statesmanship and teamwork possessed by the Democratic party must be exercised at Chicago, and these must be aided by unexpected good fortune if the Democratic candidate is to wrest the Presidency from Mr. Hoover.

THE PLATFORM.

For the moment the prohibition plank in the Republican platform overshadows the economic provisions, which are far more important. Unless the Democratic national convention takes some radical action, prohibition may be virtually eliminated as a national issue. In any circumstances the election may be expected to turn on economic questions.

Prohibition occupied a prominent place in the Republican convention because it was the only controversial issue. Republican policy on the tariff, immigration, national defense, labor and related subjects is definite and clear. On these questions the platform merely reiterates former declarations of policy or extends those policies to cover new situations.

The party pledges itself to retain for the American people the economic advantages which this country enjoys. In conformity with the recent action of Congress it extends the protective principle to cover natural resources such as petroleum, lumber and minerals. That objective may be inconsistent with the declaration for conservation of natural resources, but the general tariff plank is fundamentally sound. Never before has adequate protection been of such vital consequence to American industry and labor as it is today. As a supplement to protection against a deluge of foreign goods, the immigration plank indorses the exclusion of alien workmen who would enter into competition with Americans for jobs.

In commending the achievements of the Farm Board the resolutions committee was cautious. It is obvious that the party approves the work being done to organize farmers, promote cooperative marketing and reduce production to consumptive demands. But the platform carefully avoids indorsement of the stabilization activities which have left the board with large quantities of wheat, cotton and coffee on its hands and a huge hole in its treasury. Presumably that is a closed chapter of the history of farm relief. The platform reaches out in the direction of Senator McNary's price-stabilizing nostrum but stops short of indorsement by declaring against any farm relief plan that is not "economically sound and administratively workable". In spite of this floundering, the platform returns to fundamentals by commending "control of production to such volume as will balance supply with demand".

In the field of governmental economy the platform is clear and forceful. The Republican party is pledged to the maintenance of national credit on a sound basis, to a balanced budget through economy and adequate taxation and against fiat money. In short, the Republican party insists on maintenance of the economic and financial basis on which this country has grown and prospered.

This declaration of policy stands out in sharp contrast with Democratic views as manifested by the action of the House of Representatives. The House refused to economize by tearing the economy bill to shreds and passing the Garner pork-barrel measure. It declared in favor of unsound money by passing the Patman bonus bill. The manipulation of commodity prices was indorsed by passage of the Goldsborough bill, and foolish banking methods were approved in the Steagall bill to guarantee bank deposits.

It is not yet certain what action the Democratic national convention will take on these subjects, but for all practical purposes the economic issues between the two parties are already drawn. The choice of the people will doubtless turn on these fundamental questions of national policy.

CHEAPER BOOKS.

The New York Times reports that "there is a strong and ever-growing tendency among book publishers to maintain first edition book prices for at least two years after issue, rather than permit cheap reprints selling at approximately one-third of the original price to appear in the market within a few months after publication." W. W. Norton, chairman of a publishers' committee, is responsible for the sentiment.

The public has an interest in the problem, and Mr. Norton would be well advised if he were to remember the fact. The American people have the book-buying habit; they spend more money for books than any other people in the world. But current literature must be economically priced if all classes are to profit by it. When book prices are beyond the means of the average man the publishers, authors, printers and booksellers are penalized.

The cheap reprint can be made profitable. Thousands of readers wait for cut-rate reproductions of the books they desire. If the period of delay is arbitrarily lengthened, loss of interest is apt to ensue. The publishers can not have it both ways. Either they must print cheaper first editions or they must be liberal in their attitude toward reprints.

If modern books can not be produced cheaply enough to meet the need of the people, some good old classics can. Readers of today are not immune to the attraction of literary works which were beloved by their fathers and grandfathers.

EVASION AT LAUSANNE.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald opened the reparations conference at Lausanne with a plea for aid from the United States. That fact alone is sufficient to indicate that the delegates at Lausanne will not face their problem squarely. Another effort will be made to shift the burden of paying for the war to American taxpayers.

"If it is proved that we have been pursuing policies in violation of the simple economic laws which govern the prosperity of the state," says Mr. MacDonald, "wisdom and common sense surely will compel us to return to better ways without delay and to pay the temporary price which such a return will exact from us." This statement, coupled with his plea for reduction of Europe's war debts owed to the United States, sums up the British premier's attitude toward the entire problem of intergovernmental debts. But he ignores a few facts which the American people remember.

It must be obvious to any individual that the losses of the World War can not be wiped out by any international conference. The destruction of life and wealth from 1914 to 1918 can not be undone. The world must pay for its insanity. As former President Coolidge said recently, if Europe does not pay its share of the debt, American taxpayers must.

From this background Premier MacDonald's proposal that the cost of the war be shifted to the United States is offensive to Americans. The burden for paying for the war ought to rest where the responsibility for that colossal conflict rests. The American people are determined that it shall. Europe may procrastinate and statesmen may indulge in deceitful arguments, but the United States has no intention of wringing from its taxpayers the money that Europe owes.

Great Britain and France recognize the necessity of giving temporary relief to Germany. An arrangement for that purpose may be anticipated at the present conference. But the real purpose is to delay final action in the hope that there will be a change of sentiment in the United States. In this European statesmen deceive themselves. Sentiment in the United States is becoming even more solidified against any scheme that would make America the goat of the World War. This feeling will be strengthened by failure of the disarmament conference. Whatever temporary arrangements are made to relieve conditions during the depression, the war obligations must remain intact until paid.

It is proposed to modernize Shakespeare by bringing his language up-to-date. It's time for cubists to attack the Acropolis and for Hollywood producers to take charge at Oberammergau.

Some Texas citizens sent a 22,000 word telegram to Congress inviting the solons to finish up and quit. Pity to bury such a good suggestion under so much language.

Hindus believe that by concentrated will power one may accomplish the impossible; but, oddly enough, former Senator France hasn't organized a regiment of them.

The Census Bureau says the West is more literate than the East, so Senator Brookhart will be followed into oblivion by several other sons of the wild jackass.

A correspondent desires to know how to start a circulating library. The quickest way is merely to invite in a lot of lifelong friends.

When Brookhart fell, a mob of five of his relatives likewise tumbled. That is about as big a killing as the people have had in a long time.

A psychiatrist states that the average man retains only one-fifth of what he hears. As bad as that?

In the event of war between Russia and Japan a lot of Americans are going to be violently neutral.

Senator Norris did not attend the Republican convention. He does not like to mix with strangers.

WEARING A LABEL

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

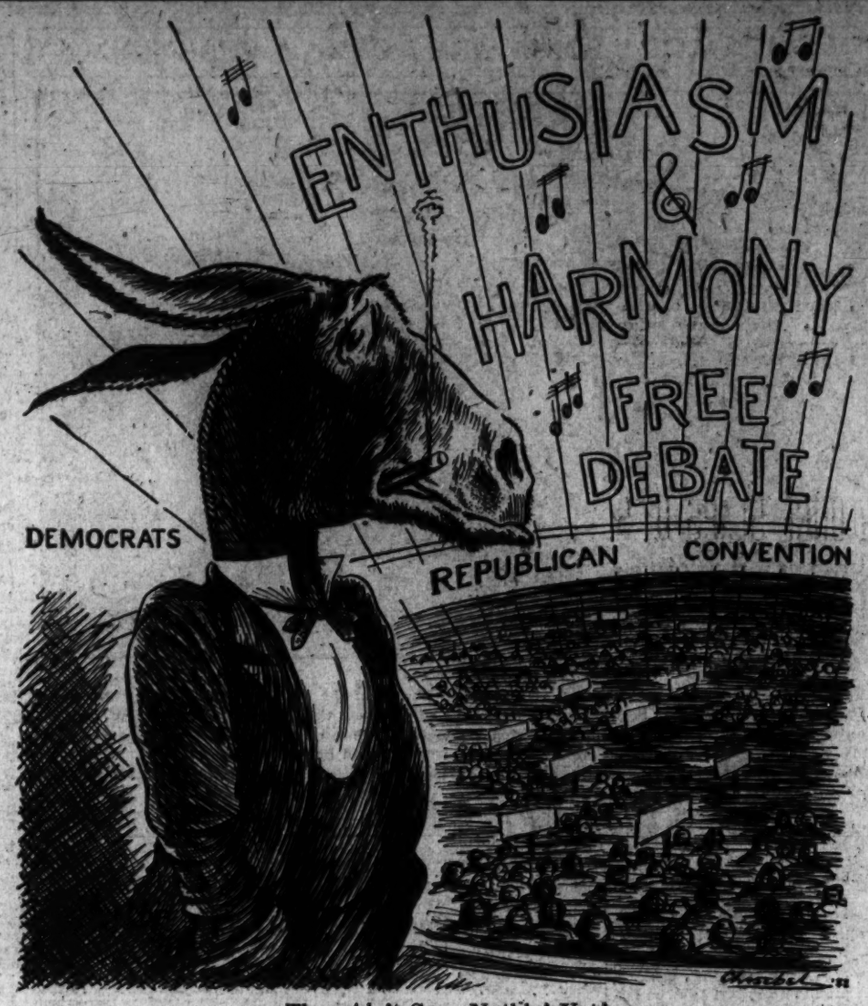
Chief Justice Hughes declines to be labeled. He esteems himself neither a radical nor a reactionary. He would present a liberal mind toward constitutional generalities and a conservative attitude toward novel conditions and theories.

Addressing a meeting of Federal judges at Asheville, he told them that "a young student wrote me the other day to ask whether I regarded myself as 'liberal' or 'conservative.' I answered that the labels do not interest me. I know of no accepted criterion. Some think opinions are conservative which others would regard as essentially liberal, and some opinions classed as liberal might be regarded from another point of view as decidedly illiberal. Such characterizations are not infrequently used to foster prejudice and they serve as a very poor substitute for intelligent criticism."

He observed that so-called "liberals" invoke the restrictions of the Constitution in behalf of their rights; so-called "conservatives" are not above testing its flexibility on occasion. The Chief Justice emphasized the personal element in the administration of justice by both an inflexible interpretation of the Constitution "as crystallizing our own notions of policy, our personal views of economics, our theories of moral or social improvement" and failure "to recognize the boundaries of power because of our individual conceptions of new social schemes or unrestrained legislative will."

The judge who labels himself "liberal" or "conservative" inevitably will try to live up to the label instead of to his highest intellectual capacity. He casts himself in a mold of consistency which ignores standards and ideals and eventually converts a radical into a reactionary as new discoveries and conditions render his antiquated "liberalism" inapplicable.

Labels are for the unthinking. The mind that functions rationally is aware that current truth is only wisdom applied to known facts and that all the facts are not yet known. Intellectual consistency demands that conclusions be revised to comprehend newly discovered facts. That is true liberalism. True conservatism insists upon certainty of facts. They are coordinates, not incompatibles.



They Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet!

POST HASTE.

Of course, you knew all the time it would be Hoover, Curtis and a split plank.

How wet is wet? Naturally, a State-control mist is not a saturated repeal deluge.

There is no confirmation of the report that the lone missing delegate at Chicago during the prohibition vote was a Garner from Texas.

The biggest ha! ha! that Mr. Garfield got, talking about prohibition, was when he tried to tell the convention that the innocent youth of today don't know what it's all about.

The repealers at Chicago had the best of the oratory, but the others had the votes.

Sixteen States for repeal and 32 for the majority plan shows only one-third of the States wet, when three-fourths are needed for repeal.

It will be interesting to see the Democratic convention line-up on the likker question. The two scores added together will furnish an illuminating cross-section of American opinion.

The convention approved the declaration that "the time has come when senators and representatives should be impressed with the inflexible truth that their first concern should be the welfare of the United States." But did you hear the silver States and the oil States howl for their specific interests, just like Congress!

It was good strategy to put the prohibition plank near the end. More people in the convention and on the radio heard a whole platform read than ever before while awaiting the booze decree.

Nothing short of a California redwood could have supplied enough timber for the Republican platform dimensions.

Everybody can be happy over the Republican plank on prohibition. The wets got more than they could have expected a short time ago and the drys lost less than they feared.

"All government—indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act"—says Edmund Burke, "is founded on compromise and barter."

PAUL HUDSON.

LEGIONARIES AS BUILDERS.

Visitors to Algeria, says the Christian Science Monitor, often see men of the French Foreign Legion at work along the railways near Tlemcen and Sidi-Bel-Abbes. In her Foreign Legion, France has a cheap and efficient labor force. Owing to the present widespread unemployment, many foreigners are flocking to the legion, and its numerical strength has been largely increased. Its efficiency, too, has been increased by a good deal of combing out, and the adoption of a higher physical and mental standard for legionaires. Most trades and professions are represented in the legion, and many of the new legionaires are skilled mechanics who will eventually find theirt way into the engineer and pioneer companies of the legion. These companies were formed in 1922 by Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, chiefly for work on railway construction in North Africa. They are destined to begin building the Trans-Sahara Railway if the politicians can make up their minds about it.

THE FOUR NEEDS.

According to what Sir William Bragg, head of the Royal Institute in London, told the Royal Society of Medicine recently, says the Pathfinder, science owes four duties to our cities. First is the prevention of unnecessary noises. Second is the replacement of the daylight which close-set buildings shut out. Third is to remedy the harmful glare of our cities' artificial lighting systems. And fourth is the elimination or prevention of smoke and fumes which pollute the air.

Wolverine Driven by Hunger Disregards Porcupine's Quills.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE progress of the human race is not demonstrated by the improvement of machines but the improvement of man.

The purpose of all civilizing influences is not to increase man's comforts and possessions but to make man himself a finer creature.

Give a savage all of the trinkets of our civilization and he would be a savage still.

Our progress is not progress at all if it doesn't improve man himself.

And if that is true, the greatest force that can be harnessed for the good of man is desire.

How strange it is that man never has learned to utilize the power within himself.

He has harnessed the lightning, the winds, the sun, the tides and the waterfall, and made all nature his servant, yet he makes no effort to employ the greater power of his own desire.

Desire alone can make man all that he dreams of being, and desire is a force that overcomes all obstacles.

A certain man who was an invalid made several attempts to quit smoking. He said that he desired to quit, and he thought he was speaking the truth. Yet his failure was proof that the desire was a pretense.

One day a physician in whom he had confidence told him he would be dead within a year if he continued to smoke.

Then, at last, he quit—immediately and without effort. Desire proved its power. He desired to live and that desire overcame all that interfered with it.

Men fool themselves when they continue any practice in spite of a "desire" to quit it. Their desire to quit isn't as strong as their desire to continue.

The thing a man truly desires to do he does. There is no mental struggle. There is no opposition within himself to overcome. His subconscious mind harnesses all of his powers and faculties to achieve the desired end and the thing is done.

If a man burns with desire for knowledge, can any handicap keep him in ignorance?

If a man hungers and thirsts to see a woman, will he not subconsciously and without debate or thought brush aside all pleasures and duties that would interfere?

You can cultivate desire by conscious effort, as people cultivate a taste for foods. But once the desire masters you, your subconscious mind will clear the way for it as fear disregards obstacles to reach a place of safety.

PRO AND CON

President Grant and Bounties.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

President Grant could hardly have been accused of unfairness toward the soldiers he commanded in the Civil War. He had a very real feeling of affection for them. Yet in 1875, when Congress passed a bill awarding bounties to veterans, Grant vetoed it, saying that it "appropriates from the Treasury a large sum of money at a time when the revenue is insufficient for current wants and this proposed further drain on the Treasury. The issue of bonds authorized by the bill * * * would seriously embarrass the refunding operations now progressing. * * * Second, I do not believe that any considerable portion of the ex-soldiers who, it is supposed, will be beneficiaries of this appropriation are applicants for it. * * * The passage of the bill at this time is inconsistent with the measures of economy now demanded by the necessities of the country."

That could be repeated with equal force in connection with the bill for immediate payment of adjusted compensation.

Republican Case.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

President Hoover has successfully stood out against the institution of the dole, the debasing of the national currency and other radical proposals emanating mainly from his political opponents. As summarized by Senator Dickinson, the Republican party and its standard bearer will go before the country with an impressive record of achievements made amid circumstances more difficult than have been faced by any administration in many years. This record and the policies to be enunciated in the platform will constitute the case for the Republican party in the coming campaign.

No Brookharts Needed.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.

We need in the halls of Congress men of liberal views; we need there, particularly, men who understand the needs of agriculture and will work intelligently and untiringly for the relief of America's oppressed farming population. But there is no place in Washington for the Brookharts. Their views and their antics are a menace to the country. Let's hope that this time Mr. Brookhart has suffered permanent retirement.

A Democratic Blunder.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

Democrats in Congress are doing more to help Herbert Hoover than the Republicans at Chicago, in their stew over prohibition, can hope to do.

In the House of Representatives 165 Democrats voted to take up the cash bonus bill while only 42 Democrats voted against it, contrasting with a vote of 133 Republicans against the raid. This measure would start up the printing presses to strike off $2,400,000,000 paper money to turn over to former soldiers, whose boast is that in war they fought to save the country but who in peace are insisting on a policy that would go far to destroy it. More than two billion dollars of paper "money" which they are demanding would be worth only the paper it is printed on if not backed by the taxpayers of the United States, already heavily burdened by greatly increased taxes to meet an unprecedented Treasury deficit. And even thus backed, it would impair the national credit, which the extraordinary tax increases are meant to protect.

Quite So.

Detroit News.

The Executive veto was one of the wiser provisions of the founders. Some one has to have the courage of Congress' convictions.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Owners of Dogs Should Protect Pets and Public by Obeying Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the last few weeks there have been several cases of mad dogs biting people. All dogs on the streets are supposed to be muzzled or else be on leashes. Few owners of dogs obey this ordinance, and their neglect may mean serious injury to some of the public. It is the law in the District that dogs running free on the streets in the summer months should have muzzles, and it is the duty of the police and dogcatchers to see that this law is enforced. Less than two weeks ago a scout car received a radio message that a "mad dog" was menacing a woman while she sat on her front porch. She was bitten several times before the officer arrived. He chased the dog and shot it twice. The two shots were sufficient to fix the dog so that he will never bite another person. If the owner of this dog had muzzled it, the woman would not have been bitten and the dog would not have been killed.

Dog owners who really love their pets should have them protected in accordance with law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The final curtain fell for William Landvoight yesterday, and with the passing of the dean of Washington dramatic critics the theater lost one of its best friends and stanchest supporters.

For half a century "Ole Bill," as his associates called him, had looked upon the drama, assorting the good, the bad and the indifferent and reporting his findings to the public. With an innate sense of honesty and a keen appreciation of artistic values, the pen of William Landvoight was wielded always for the good of the community. He refused to surrender to the onslaughts of the motion picture against the old-line bulwarks of the stage. To him the speaking stage was a priceless heritage of genius, delight and instruction. He helped to keep it so. May his shade find happiness with kindred spirits in the land of make-believe. J. J. D.

Thurmont Reader Criticizes "Jersey Justice" in Lindbergh Mystery.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The search for the Lindbergh baby's murderer, culminating in the tragic death of a poor, frail, defenseless English girl, cries to Heaven for condemnation.

Years ago, when I lived in New York, I used to hear a great deal about "Jersey justice."

These Jersey "sleuths" swooped down on this poor girl time and time again, and put her through the third degree. Her nerves shattered, her reason tottering, she preferred death to further torture. That was "Jersey justice." She was not a criminal, and was entitled to protection.

For all the time, energy and the enormous amount of the taxpayers' money that has been expended by the Jersey police to solve the Lindbergh mystery, all there is to show is a poor dead girl. J. B. L'HEUREUX.

Readers Approve Editorial on Republican Prohibition Plank.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please let me thank you for your editorial, "The Republican Plank." It is a fine analysis of the decision of the party with respect to prohibition.

I am glad that you stress the fact that the plank does not bind either candidates or voters, does not coerce either public or private opinion.

KENNEDY T. BRENT.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "The Republican Plank," explains the action of the Chicago convention. As you say, no individual candidate is committed to either the wet or the dry side of the question. The professional wets are opposed, and probably the professional drys are no better pleased. The party very properly refuses to be made the tool of either wets or drys.

Government Employes to Suffer Salary Cut as Empty Gesture Toward Economy, Says R. D. H.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A friend of mine attended a reception and there met a member of Congress. Speaking of salary reductions, he told her that, of course, the small amount the Government saved by cutting the salaries of the Government clerks did not amount to much, that it would not carry the Government over more than three days, but that Congress had to make a gesture because so many of the members' constituents were writing to them to cut down expenses.

So, evidently the Government employes are to be butchered merely to make a Roman holiday. R. D. H.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

FRIDAY NIGHT.

On Sunday night at home we stay,
For school begins the following day.
On Monday night it is the rule
I must prepare myself for school.
They send me off to bed at eight,
For children mustn't stay up late.

On Tuesday all they say is "No!"
When out with them I beg to go.
In school to do their very best
All little girls must get their rest.
And then when Wednesday evening comes
I sit at home and twirl my thumbs.

I can't go out on Thursday night,
For daddy says it isn't right.
If there's a show I want to see
On Thursday, it can never be,
But mother tells me that we might
All go to see it Friday night.

So all week long I work on sums
And wait till Friday evening comes.
Then after supper off we go
To see a moving picture show.
And 'round about us everywhere
I see a lot of children there.

How[illegible]ENDS BAN ON HITLER'S TROOPS

It Takes a [illegible] Effect Immediately Filed by [illegible] States of Bavaria and Baden.

Berlin, June 16 (A.P.).—The ban on Adolf Hitler's storm troops, promulgated by the Bruening government two months ago, was lifted today by the Von Papen ministry, and immediately there were strong protests from the States of Baden and Bavaria.

Premier Josef Schmitt, of Baden, declared in Karlsruhe that his government could not be held responsible for maintaining order with the Nazi troopers free to carry on demonstrations. The lifting of the ban just before the general elections was a grave mistake, he said.

This protest apparently had immediate effect, for a few hours after the federal government had published its decree reestablishing the legality of the outlawed Hitlerite militant organization, an exception was made in the case of Baden.

The minister of interior announced that "in view of conditions" in that state, the wearing of uniforms by political groups would continue under ban there.

In Munich the Bavarian provincial government took care of its own modification. It ruled that the ban on open air political demonstrations will remain in force, although uniforms may be worn by political organizations on certain occasions.

In Prussia uniforms will be permitted, but open air political meetings remain "verboten."

The lifting of the Nazi ban was part of a decree which freed several other political organizations from restrictive regulations. These included the Reichsbanner Republicans and the Nationalist Steel Helmet War Veterans.

The Communists' militant unit, the "Red Front," may not, however, wear a uniform. Other groups may issue hand bills, but the "godless" circulars of the Communists are forbidden.

The decree, affecting 400,000 Nazi storm troopers, becomes effective tomorrow. Under its provisions the minister of interior may at any time demand information about the activities of militant political factions and such information must be furnished.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, Hitler's organ in Munich, hailed the decree as "the forerunner of the coming seizure of power by national socialism."

Newly elected members of the board of trustees are Dr. Swartwout, Dr. A. H. Gordon, of Chicago, and Dr. J. A. W. Hetrick, of New York City.

Busby Sees Urgent Need For Firmness of Debts

Branding the country's financial condition "basically wrong," Representative Jeff Busby, of Mississippi, yesterday told members of the Kiwanis Club there was an urgent need for the cure of a situation where debts, accumulated in prosperous years, remain rigid in the face of shrunken values.

Representative Busby spoke at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. He declared a contributing factor to the present problem was that the American people had "mortgaged their future when the outlook was bright, and are now forced to fight against discouraging odds." Representative J. Howard Swick, of Pennsylvania, was also a guest of the club.

Dog, Soldiers' Mascot, Is Given Military Burial

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Trooper, a pliner-colored hound dog, with no pedigree, but with a record of twelve years' service as an Army mascot, was buried today with military honors at the base of the Statue of Liberty.

A bugler sounded taps as soldiers of the First Military Police Company of the Army garrison on Bedloes Island stood at attention. A final military salute flashed, and as the little dog's body was lowered to a grave at the foot of the post flagstaff the troops marched briskly away.

Born at Camp Dix, N. J., Trooper served with Company G of the Sixteenth Infantry.

IL DUCE SLAPS U. S. IN BITTER INTERVIEW

Mussolini Foresees Long Series of Economies and Military Wars.

London, June 17 (Friday) (A.P.).—The Daily Express printed an interview with Premiere Mussolini of Italy today in which Il Duce was quoted as criticising caustically the United States and democracy generally, adding that he foresaw a long series of economic and military wars.

"America has no policy!" the correspondent quoted him as saying bitterly and with sardonic contempt. This was in reply to a suggestion from the corerspondent that the United States was "one of the life belts to which idealists are clinging for salvation in the world crisis."

Mussolini summed up the United States, the correspondent said, in two words: Prohibition and Lindbergh.

"Dry America will never find herself," Il Duce was quoted as saying. "She must go wet to find herself. In the meantime Europe is drifting to disaster and bolshevization."

The correspondent suggested that the premier had no faith in democracy. Mussolini smiled derisively, he said, and replied:

"Democracy is nothing. The people are nothing and can do nothing. In every country they are weary of talk. They need men of action. They can not save themselves; they need saviors."

Asked where the saviors were, he replied: "There are no saviors."

"What, then, of the future?" he was asked.

"I foresee a long series of political, economic and military wars," he replied. "There's war now."

The era of reparations is ended, he was quoted as saying, it belongs to the "dead and buried past," and he added that "if Germany says 'no' Italy will say 'no.'"

2 New Yorkers Indicted Here in Theft of Autos

Two New York men, Arthur Weismiller and Henry Berman, were indicted here yesterday on charges of conspiring to violate the national motor vehicle theft act. The pair are charged with having stolen automobiles in New York and to have brought them here, where money was borrowed on them.

Weismiller was also indicted twice more. The additional charges against him are that he stole the automobile of a New York City man and brought it here, and housebreaking and larceny. This latter charge relates to the theft of an automobile belonging to Martin McNamara, local attorney. The machine was stolen from a garage.

SPAIN SEIZES ORGAZ IN MONARCHIST PLOT

Former Army Officer Added to Those Under Arrest as Alfonso's Aids.

Madrid, Spain, June 16 (A.P.).—Gen. Luis Orgaz, a former monarchist commander with a brilliant army record, today was added to a list of prominent Spaniards under arrest on charges of plotting against the Republican government of Spain.

He was arrested at Tenerife, in the Canary Islands. Since the overthrow of the monarchy he had been relieved of his command, but remained on the army pay roll at full salary.

Others under arrest include Gen. Emilio Barrera, Baron de Mora and a son of Gen. Barrera. They were accused of implication in a plot to restore former King Alfonso to the throne.

Today it was learned Gen. Barrera, formerly one of the most influential men in Spain, had declared himself innocent of the conspiracy charge. He said he had been the object of "unwarranted shadowing" for a long time.

Juan March, generally supposed to be the richest man in Spain, also was in prison today, charged with being "dangerous to the republic." He was arrested and held for questioning in connection with charges of graft in obtaining a tobacco concession under the former monarchy.

Pageant Is Given For 4-H Visitors

Members of 4-H clubs from 40 States and the District, now encamped in Washington, witnessed a Bicentennial program last night, presented by the clubs of Herndon, Va., and Fort Humphreys and students of George Washington University and Gordon Junior High School.

The Herndon clubs presented a tableau depicting the inauguration of Washington, while the Fort Humphreys group presented one entitled "The Children Bring Flowers to Mrs. Washington." The Gordon Junior High students described, in pageant, the music George Washington knew. Other 4-H Club members presented features of Bicentennial programs they have given in their own communities.

The Bicentennial entertainment was preceded by a recreation period conducted by Olga Lofgren, Evelyn Sweitzer, Virginia Dennie and Mary Haleyl, George Washington University students, and a concert by the Boys and Girls Band of the Fox Theater. Dr. Lewis Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, will address the 154 club members and their 70 leaders today.

Business Clubs Elect Detroit Man Leader

American Business Club delegates concluded a convention at the Willard yesterday with election of officers and selection of a meeting place for next year.

National officers elected were: Charles Langmaid, of Detroit, president; Herman Smith, of Ponca City, Okla., first vice president, and Samuel A. Syme, of Washington, second vice president. Daniel Hoyt, of Newark, N. J., and Harry Cohn, of Altoona, Pa., were chosen as national governors at large. Springfield, Ill., was selected as the next meeting place. Approximately 175 attended the convention. The Washington Club was host.

Josephine, Dead, to Go To National Museum

Josephine, prize catfish at the Commerce Department, is dead. A queen of her tribe, her body will be placed on public exhibition at the National Museum.

Josephine died last Monday after a brief illness. She was 47 inches long and weighed approximately 50 pounds. She is survived by two brothers and one sister, aquarium officials said.

CLUBWOMEN NAME MRS. POOLE AS HEAD

Seattle, June 16 (A.P.).—Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., lecturer and traveler, was elected president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here today, succeeding Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore. She was unopposed.

Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., descendant of the Delaware Indian tribe, was elected first vice president over Mrs. Henry C. Taylor, of Bloomfield, Iowa. The vote was: Mrs. Lawson, 368; Mrs. Taylor, 208.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, Oreg., was elected recording secretary without opposition, and Mrs. Felix T. McWhirter, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Frank Warren, of Minneapolis, were named trustees for six-year terms.

An effort to put the federation on record as desiring Federal supervision of motion pictures was defeated on the convention floor today when only fifteen delegates voted for the suggestion.

Mrs. Maude Aldrich, of Washington, D. C., offered the motion, which would have called for close Federal regulation of the industry.

Arguing against the proposal, offered as an amendment to a resolution, later passed, which deplored "oversexed" themes and drinking scenes, Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, of San Francisco, declared such legislation would only mean creation of eight new political jobs at fat salaries.

She told the delegates cooperation of the federation and the motion picture industry would obtain better results and reported definite improvement in the type of pictures produced.

Delay in Senate action on the World Court was denounced by Mrs. Ben Hooper, of Oshkosh, Wis., chairman of the department of international relations. She said the seven and a half years the question has been before the Senate is "the worst outrage on a people who are supposed to have a voice in their government that I have ever known."

The convention adopted her report, which urged clubwomen to seek the defeat of senators who fail to state they will vote for the court.

Athletic Fete Planned For July 4 Celebration

An athletic meet for children of the Washington schools will be one of the major events of the July 4 celebration program to be sponsored by the Eastern Washington Bicentennial committee, it was decided at a meeting last night in the Northeast Branch of the Public Library.

The athletic meet will be held in Brookland Stadium and students in public, private and parochial schools will be invited to compete for the prizes in the various events. Winfree Johnson, member of the District Bicentennial sport committee, will meet with the Eastern Washington committee next Wednesday night and help plan the track and field meet.

Old Homes of State Are Praised by Speaker

Maryland, which is unique among the States of the Eastern seaboard in having so many of its old houses still in existence, should be especially careful to preserve all its remains of colonial times, Swepson Earle, conservation commissioner of the State, told the 750 women enrolled for the short course at the University of Maryland yesterday.

Mr. Earle described to his audience 100 of the more prominent old houses in the State. Another speaker at the assembly was J. Alexis Shriver, Maryland's representative on the National Bicentennial Commission. Mr. Shriver told of George Washington's travels and visits in Maryland.

Alumni of Gallaudet To Open Annual Session

A reception for the members attending the fifteenth meeting and reunion of Gallaudet College Alumni Association was held last night at the home of Dr. Percival Hall, president of Columbia Institute for Deaf.

The reunion and meeting, which will last until Sunday night, will be opened this morning at 10 o'clock with a business session.

PAY CUT CONFEREES MEET AGAIN TODAY

morning, with prospects less bright for an early settlement than when the group first met four days ago.

Since Wednesday there have been informal discussions between members within the joint group, but nothing to indicate a radical change of front in either camp.

Both House and Senate conferees held extensive discussions with their respective parliamentarians. While the nature of these conferences has not been disclosed, it is understood both sides are anxious to ascertain just how far they may go, within the limits of House and Senate bills, and what alternatives are left if the economy bill is reported with the pay cut-furlough item in disagreement.

Need New Instructions.

House conferees point out they need no new instructions, in view of the decisive House vote against the furlough. Considering the three-vote margin by which the furlough was approved by the Senate, conferees from that chamber are not so sure their instructions may not be changed if the question again is laid before the body.

On the other hand, House antipay reductionists yesterday questioned the satement of Representative John McDuffie, House economy chairman, that the House would reject the conference report if it contained furloughs.

Speaking for a group of representatives who vigorously opposed the pay-cut plan originally brought out by the House economy committee, 11 per cent cuts with $1,000 exemption, Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), New York, said the House would accept the payless furlough plan if asked for further instructions.

Says Furlough Preferred.

The New York representative, who is chairman of the House postoffice and post roads committee, is convinced Federal workers and postal employes would rather have the furlough, with its five-day week possibilities and its promise of maintaining wage standards, than any horizontal wage reduction.

Pressure for an early settlement of the pay cut-furlough controversy meanwhile continued acute. Morale of Federal workers, over whose heads the sword of Damocles has dangled for nearly half a year, has not been improved by the indecision on Capitol Hill, their champions point out.

William Green, who represented the American Federation of Labor at the Republican convention, yesterday was congratulated by the joint conference on affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, for his stand for "no pay cuts in the Federal service."

A letter forwarded to him at Chicago thanked him for "urging upon the great Republican party the necessity of opposing any reduction in the daily or annual income of the working people of the United States."

Mary Garden Sails To Sing in Carmen

Diva Coming Out of Retirement to Portray Her Favorite Role.

Cleveland, June 16 (A.P.).—Mary Garden—the "Mary, Mary, Quite Contrary" of grand opera fame—is coming out of retirement to sing her favorite "Carmen" again.

Miss Garden, who last year left the Chicago Civic Opera Company to "write a book and ride a mule" in Corsica, will be a headliner in Cleveland's second annual season of outdoor opera in the Municipal Stadium.

The producers, Laurence Productions, Inc., announced today she has already sailed and is scheduled to arrive in New York June 21.

She will head the cast for the presentation of "Carmen," which will open the summer season June 29, and will sing in the same opera again July 4.

GEN. CALLES' WIFE TO GO UNDER KNIFE

Mexico City, June 16 (A.P.).—Gen. and Mrs. Plutarco Elias Calles left Mexico City tonight aboard a special train for New York, where Mrs. Calles will undergo a serious operation for an ailment from which she has been suffering for several weeks.

They were accompanied by their two children, two doctors and Jose Manuel Puig y Casauranc, Mexican Ambassador to the United States. The ambassador announced that Mrs. Calles was suffering from meningitis and an immediate operation was necessary.

It was Gen. Calles' first trip outside Mexico in more than two years. He was granted a leave of absence from his post as secretary of war to make the journey. During his absence Gen. Pablo Quiroga, undersecretary, will be in charge of the war department.

Mrs. Calles, the former Leonor Llorente, was carried aboard the train on a stretcher from an ambulance that brought her from Calles' Santa Barbara ranch, 20 miles east of Mexico City. President and Mrs. Pascual Ortiz Rubio, as well as cabinet members, generals and politicians, were at the station to see them off.

Gen. Calles, who rode with the driver of the ambulance, appeared worried, but apparently in good health when he boarded the train, although he also will be under a doctor's care in New York and planned to take a prolonged rest.

Just three years ago after putting down the Escobar revolution, Gen. Calles went to France for his health, returning much improved after four months abroad.

The Calles party is due in New York Monday, traveling via Laredo, Tex., San Antonio and St. Louis. The newspaper Excelsior said Mrs. Calles would enter the sanitarium of Dr. J. J. Eller, Calles' son-in-law.

Office of Vehicles Moving Under Way

Going Into Ford Building From Headquarters of District Police.

The Department of Vehicles and Traffic is being moved from the police headquarters building to the Ford Building at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Completion of the transfer is expected to be on Monday.

Officials said yesterday that the public often confuses the work of the bureau, with that of the traffic unit of the Police Department. They pointed out that their bureau was purely regulatory and not of an enforcement character.

The permit and tag divisions of the bureau will be on the first floor of the new quarters with special counters and partitions installed for public convenience. Administrative offices will be on the second floor.

Committee Is Formed To Aid Transient Boys

A boys' emergency committee was organized yesterday at a meeting of the Council of Social Agencies committee on transients at the Burlington Hotel.

Mrs. John Jay O'Connor was appointed chairman of the committee and Paul L. Benjamin, vice chairman. The committee, in cooperation with the Travelers Aid Society, will contribute to the national program of the National Association of Traveler Aid Societies to decrease the number of transient boys on the road.

HERBERT HOOVER.

The Republican party squares away for the campaign, offering Herbert Hoover and Charles Curtis as candidates upon a platform pledging the party to completion of its program for restoration of the national welfare.

The platform is too long, but no one is compelled to read it all. Extracts from it will be useful during the campaign in showing what the party has done and what it proposes to do.

The wet-dry plank of the platform temporarily eclipses in interest all other planks. It must be pretty good, because it is furiously attacked by fanatics on both sides. The convention refused to make the party the tool of the drys or the wets. They are free to support the plank or to condemn it, and still remain Republicans. Extremists who make the liquor question more important than political parties will soon have an opportunity to pass judgment upon the Democratic party's declaration on this question. They can then decide whether to shift parties or quit them all and become crusaders for the wet or dry cause. The great parties will remain as contenders for the honor of administering the Government, and the people will not confine their judgment to the liquor planks in deciding between them.

As the campaign progresses, personalities will command more attention than platforms. Herbert Hoover is the Republican champion. Who is to be his opponent? Other questions are subordinate to this.

President Hoover possesses many advantages over any candidate who may be chosen by the Democratic party. He suffers some handicaps, also, which may work to the advantage of the Democratic nominee if that individual proves to be a statesman of national stature and free from equally serious handicaps of some other kind. Mr. Hoover's knowledge and experience are factors of strength, and the remarkable success of his program of rehabilitation is in his favor. The summing-up of his program will reveal that he obtained from Congress practically all that he recommended, and that he managed to prevent enactment of legislation that would have destroyed his program. In view of the fact that he dealt with an opposition House and an undependable Republican majority in the Senate, his achievement is a complete answer to those who questioned his ability to develop leadership. In this national crisis he has been a national leader, and unless a Democratic champion of commanding ability should capture the fancy and win the confidence of the people they are very likely to pin their faith to Hoover.

All signs point to a tempestuous Democratic convention. In 1924 the Democratic party defeated itself in its own convention. Although it nominated a candidate of outstanding ability, his campaign was a melancholy failure. The shadow of Madison Square Garden hangs over the forthcoming Democratic gathering at Chicago. Until that shadow is lifted and the identity of the nominee known it is idle to attempt an estimate of Hoover's relative strength. The nature of the race can not be foreseen until the list of runners is complete. Just now the public is scrutinizing the Republican situation as to the capabilities of the chief contestant, the condition of the track, the colors under which he runs, &c. A similar inspection must be made of the Democratic situation after the convention of June 27 before comparisons will be available.

The Republican party goes into the contest with its best contender, under conditions favorable to success. The Democratic party knows what it must meet, but it does not yet know how best to meet it. All the statesmanship and teamwork possessed by the Democratic party must be exercised at Chicago, and these must be aided by unexpected good fortune if the Democratic candidate is to wrest the Presidency from Mr. Hoover.

THE PLATFORM.

For the moment the prohibition plank in the Republican platform overshadows the economic provisions, which are far more important. Unless the Democratic national convention takes some radical action, prohibition may be virtually eliminated as a national issue. In any circumstances the election may be expected to turn on economic questions.

Prohibition occupied a prominent place in the Republican convention because it was the only controversial issue. Republican policy on the tariff, immigration, national defense, labor and related subjects is definite and clear. On these questions the platform merely reiterates former declarations of policy or extends those policies to cover new situations.

The party pledges itself to retain for the American people the economic advantages which this country enjoys. In conformity with the recent action of Congress it extends the protective principle to cover natural resources such as petroleum, lumber and minerals. That objective may be inconsistent with the declaration for conservation of natural resources, but the general tariff plank is fundamentally sound. Never before has adequate protection been of such vital consequence to American industry and labor as it is today. As a supplement to protection against a deluge of foreign goods, the immigration plank indorses the exclusion of alien workmen who would enter into competition with Americans for jobs.

In commending the achievements of the Farm Board the resolutions committee was cautious. It is obvious that the party approves the work being done to organize farmers, promote cooperative marketing and reduce production to consumptive demands. But the platform carefully avoids indorsement of the stabilization activities which have left the board with large quantities of wheat, cotton and coffee on its hands and a huge hole in its treasury. Presumably that is a closed chapter of the history of farm relief. The platform reaches out in the direction of Senator McNary's price-stabilizing nostrum but stops short of indorsement by declaring against any farm relief plan that is not "economically sound and administratively workable". In spite of this floundering, the platform returns to fundamentals by commending "control of production to such volume as will balance supply with demand".

In the field of governmental economy the platform is clear and forceful. The Republican party is pledged to the maintenance of national credit on a sound basis, to a balanced budget through economy and adequate taxation and against fiat money. In short, the Republican party insists on maintenance of the economic and financial basis on which this country has grown and prospered.

This declaration of policy stands out in sharp contrast with Democratic views as manifested by the action of the House of Representatives. The House refused to economize by tearing the economy bill to shreds and passing the Garner pork-barrel measure. It declared in favor of unsound money by passing the Patman bonus bill. The manipulation of commodity prices was indorsed by passage of the Goldsborough bill, and foolish banking methods were approved in the Steagall bill to guarantee bank deposits.

It is not yet certain what action the Democratic national convention will take on these subjects, but for all practical purposes the economic issues between the two parties are already drawn. The choice of the people will doubtless turn on these fundamental questions of national policy.

CHEAPER BOOKS.

The New York Times reports that "there is a strong and ever-growing tendency among book publishers to maintain first edition book prices for at least two years after issue, rather than permit cheap reprints selling at approximately one-third of the original price to appear in the market within a few months after publication." W. W. Norton, chairman of a publishers' committee, is responsible for the sentiment.

The public has an interest in the problem, and Mr. Norton would be well advised if he were to remember the fact. The American people have the book-buying habit; they spend more money for books than any other people in the world. But current literature must be economically priced if all classes are to profit by it. When book prices are beyond the means of the average man the publishers, authors, printers and booksellers are penalized.

The cheap reprint can be made profitable. Thousands of readers wait for cut-rate reproductions of the books they desire. If the period of delay is arbitrarily lengthened, loss of interest is apt to ensue. The publishers can not have it both ways. Either they must print cheaper first editions or they must be liberal in their attitude toward reprints.

If modern books can not be produced cheaply enough to meet the need of the people, some good old classics can. Readers of today are not immune to the attraction of literary works which were beloved by their fathers and grandfathers.

EVASION AT LAUSANNE.

Premier Ramsay MacDonald opened the reparations conference at Lausanne with a plea for aid from the United States. That fact alone is sufficient to indicate that the delegates at Lausanne will not face their problem squarely. Another effort will be made to shift the burden of paying for the war to American taxpayers.

"If it is proved that we have been pursuing policies in violation of the simple economic laws which govern the prosperity of the state," says Mr. MacDonald, "wisdom and common sense surely will compel us to return to better ways without delay and to pay the temporary price which such a return will exact from us." This statement, coupled with his plea for reduction of Europe's war debts owed to the United States, sums up the British premier's attitude toward the entire problem of intergovernmental debts. But he ignores a few facts which the American people remember.

It must be obvious to any individual that the losses of the World War can not be wiped out by any international conference. The destruction of life and wealth from 1914 to 1918 can not be undone. The world must pay for its insanity. As former President Coolidge said recently, if Europe does not pay its share of the debt, American taxpayers must.

From this background Premier MacDonald's proposal that the cost of the war be shifted to the United States is offensive to Americans. The burden for paying for the war ought to rest where the responsibility for that colossal conflict rests. The American people are determined that it shall. Europe may procrastinate and statesmen may indulge in deceitful arguments, but the United States has no intention of wringing from its taxpayers the money that Europe owes.

Great Britain and France recognize the necessity of giving temporary relief to Germany. An arrangement for that purpose may be anticipated at the present conference. But the real purpose is to delay final action in the hope that there will be a change of sentiment in the United States. In this European statesmen deceive themselves. Sentiment in the United States is becoming even more solidified against any scheme that would make America the goat of the World War. This feeling will be strengthened by failure of the disarmament conference. Whatever temporary arrangements are made to relieve conditions during the depression, the war obligations must remain intact until paid.

It is proposed to modernize Shakespeare by bringing his language up-to-date. It's time for cubists to attack the Acropolis and for Hollywood producers to take charge at Oberammergau.

Some Texas citizens sent a 22,000 word telegram to Congress inviting the solons to finish up and quit. Pity to bury such a good suggestion under so much language.

Hindus believe that by concentrated will power one may accomplish the impossible; but, oddly enough, former Senator France hasn't organized a regiment of them.

The Census Bureau says the West is more literate than the East, so Senator Brookhart will be followed into oblivion by several other sons of the wild jackass.

A correspondent desires to know how to start a circulating library. The quickest way is merely to invite in a lot of lifelong friends.

When Brookhart fell, a mob of five of his relatives likewise tumbled. That is about as big a killing as the people have had in a long time.

A psychiatrist states that the average man retains only one-fifth of what he hears. As bad as that?

In the event of war between Russia and Japan a lot of Americans are going to be violently neutral.

Senator Norris did not attend the Republican convention. He does not like to mix with strangers.

WEARING A LABEL

From the Louisville Courier-Journal.

Chief Justice Hughes declines to be labeled. He esteems himself neither a radical nor a reactionary. He would present a liberal mind toward constitutional generalities and a conservative attitude toward novel conditions and theories.

Addressing a meeting of Federal judges at Asheville, he told them that "a young student wrote me the other day to ask whether I regarded myself as 'liberal' or 'conservative.' I answered that the labels do not interest me. I know of no accepted criterion. Some think opinions are conservative which others would regard as essentially liberal, and some opinions classed as liberal might be regarded from another point of view as decidedly illiberal. Such characterizations are not infrequently used to foster prejudice and they serve as a very poor substitute for intelligent criticism."

He observed that so-called "liberals" invoke the restrictions of the Constitution in behalf of their rights; so-called "conservatives" are not above testing its flexibility on occasion. The Chief Justice emphasized the personal element in the administration of justice by both an inflexible interpretation of the Constitution "as crystallizing our own notions of policy, our personal views of economics, our theories of moral or social improvement" and failure "to recognize the boundaries of power because of our individual conceptions of new social schemes or unrestrained legislative will."

The judge who labels himself "liberal" or "conservative" inevitably will try to live up to the label instead of to his highest intellectual capacity. He casts himself in a mold of consistency which ignores standards and ideals and eventually converts a radical into a reactionary as new discoveries and conditions render his antiquated "liberalism" inapplicable.

Labels are for the unthinking. The mind that functions rationally is aware that current truth is only wisdom applied to known facts and that all the facts are not yet known. Intellectual consistency demands that conclusions be revised to comprehend newly discovered facts. That is true liberalism. True conservatism insists upon certainty of facts. They are coordinates, not incompatibles.

They Ain't Seen Nothin' Yet!

POST HASTE.

Of course, you knew all the time it would be Hoover, Curtis and a split plank.

How wet is wet? Naturally, a State-control mist is not a saturated repeal deluge.

There is no confirmation of the report that the lone missing delegate at Chicago during the prohibition vote was a Garner from Texas.

The biggest ha! ha! that Mr. Garfield got, talking about prohibition, was when he tried to tell the convention that the innocent youth of today don't know what it's all about.

The repealers at Chicago had the best of the oratory, but the others had the votes.

Sixteen States for repeal and 32 for the majority plan shows only one-third of the States wet, when three-fourths are needed for repeal.

It will be interesting to see the Democratic convention line-up on the likker question. The two scores added together will furnish an illuminating cross-section of American opinion.

The convention approved the declaration that "the time has come when senators and representatives should be impressed with the inflexible truth that their first concern should be the welfare of the United States." But did you hear the silver States and the oil States howl for their specific interests, just like Congress!

It was good strategy to put the prohibition plank near the end. More people in the convention and on the radio heard a whole platform read than ever before while awaiting the booze decree.

Nothing short of a California redwood could have supplied enough timber for the Republican platform dimensions.

Everybody can be happy over the Republican plank on prohibition. The wets got more than they could have expected a short time ago and the drys lost less than they feared.

"All government—indeed, every human benefit and enjoyment, every virtue and every prudent act"—says Edmund Burke, "is founded on compromise and barter."

LEGIONARIES AS BUILDERS.

Visitors to Algeria, says the Christian Science Monitor, often see men of the French Foreign Legion at work along the railways near Tlemcen and Sidi-Bel-Abbes. In her Foreign Legion, France has a cheap and efficient labor force. Owing to the present widespread unemployment, many foreigners are flocking to the legion, and its numerical strength has been largely increased. Its efficiency, too, has been increased by a good deal of combing out, and the adoption of a higher physical and mental standard for legionaires. Most trades and professions are represented in the legion, and many of the new legionaires are skilled mechanics who will eventually find their way into the engineer and pioneer companies of the legion. These companies were formed in 1922 by Marshal Franchet d'Esperey, chiefly for work on railway construction in North Africa. They are destined to begin building the Trans-Sahara Railway if the politicians can make up their minds about it.

THE FOUR NEEDS.

According to what Sir William Bragg, head of the Royal Institute in London, told the Royal Society of Medicine recently, says the Pathfinder, science owes four duties to our cities. First is the prevention of unnecessary noises. Second is the replacement of the daylight which close-set buildings shut out. Third is to remedy the harmful glare of our cities' artificial lighting systems. And fourth is the elimination or prevention of smoke and fumes which pollute the air.

Wolverine Driven by Hunger Disregards Porcupine's Quills.

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

THE progress of the human race is not demonstrated by the improvement of machines but the improvement of man.

The purpose of all civilizing influences is not to increase man's comforts and possessions but to make man himself a finer creature.

Give a savage all of the trinkets of our civilization and he would be a savage still.

Our progress is not progress at all if it doesn't improve man himself.

And if that is true, the greatest force that can be harnessed for the good of man is desire.

How strange it is that man never has learned to utilize the power within himself.

He has harnessed the lightning, the winds, the sun, the tides and the waterfall, and made all nature his servant, yet he makes no effort to employ the greater power of his own desire.

Desire alone can make man all that he dreams of being, and desire is a force that overcomes all obstacles.

A certain man who was an invalid made several attempts to quit smoking. He said that he desired to quit, and he thought he was speaking the truth. Yet his failure was proof that the desire was a pretense.

One day a physician in whom he had confidence told him he would be dead within a year if he continued to smoke.

Then, at last, he quit—immediately and without effort. Desire proved its power. He desired to live and that desire overcame all that interfered with it.

Men fool themselves when they continue any practice in spite of a "desire" to quit it. Their desire to quit isn't as strong as their desire to continue.

The thing a man truly desires to do he does. There is no mental struggle. There is no opposition within himself to overcome. His subconscious mind harnesses all of his powers and faculties to achieve the desired end and the thing is done.

If a man burns with desire for knowledge, can any handicap keep him in ignorance?

If a man hungers and thirsts to see a woman, will he not subconsciously and without debate or thought brush aside all pleasures and duties that would interfere?

You can cultivate desire by conscious effort, as people cultivate a taste for foods. But once the desire masters you, your subconscious mind will clear the way for it as fear disregards obstacles to reach a place of safety.

President Grant and Bounties.

St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

President Grant could hardly have been accused of unfairness toward the soldiers he commanded in the Civil War. He had a very real feeling of affection for them. Yet in 1875, when Congress passed a bill awarding bounties to veterans, Grant vetoed it, saying that it "appropriates from the Treasury a large sum of money at a time when the revenue is insufficient for current wants and this proposed further drain on the Treasury. The issue of bonds authorized by the bill * * * would seriously embarrass the refunding operations now progressing. * * * Second, I do not believe that any considerable portion of the ex-soldiers who, it is supposed, will be beneficiaries of this appropriation are applicants for it. * * * The passage of the bill at this time is inconsistent with the measures of economy now demanded by the necessities of the country."

That could be repeated with equal force in connection with the bill for immediate payment of adjusted compensation.

Republican Case.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

President Hoover has successfully stood out against the institution of the dole, the debasing of the national currency and other radical proposals emanating mainly from his political opponents. As summarized by Senator Dickinson, the Republican party and its standard bearer will go before the country with an impressive record of achievements made amid circumstances more difficult than have been faced by any administration in many years. This record and the policies to be enunciated in the platform will constitute the case for the Republican party in the coming campaign.

No Brookharts Needed.

Richmond Times-Dispatch.

We need in the halls of Congress men of liberal views; we need there, particularly, men who understand the needs of agriculture and will work intelligently and untiringly for the relief of America's oppressed farming population. But there is no place in Washington for the Brookharts. Their views and their antics are a menace to the country. Let's hope that this time Mr. Brookhart has suffered permanent retirement.

A Democratic Blunder.

Louisville Courier-Journal.

In the House of Representatives 165 Democrats voted to take up the cash bonus bill while only 42 Democrats voted against it, contrasting with a vote of 133 Republicans against the raid. This measure would start up the printing presses to strike off $2,400,000,000 paper money to turn over to former soldiers, whose boast is that in war they fought to save the country but who in peace are insisting on a policy that would go far to destroy it. More than two billion dollars of paper "money" which they are demanding would be worth only the paper it is printed on if not backed by the taxpayers of the United States, already heavily burdened by greatly increased taxes to meet an unprecedented Treasury deficit. And even thus backed, it would impair the national credit, which the extraordinary tax increases are meant to protect.

Quite So.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Owners of Dogs Should Protect Pets and Public by Obeying Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the last few weeks there have been several cases of mad dogs biting people. All dogs on the streets are supposed to be muzzled or else be on leashes. Few owners of dogs obey this ordinance, and their neglect may mean serious injury to some of the public. It is the law in the District that dogs running free on the streets in the summer months should have muzzles, and it is the duty of the police and dogcatchers to see that this law is enforced. Less than two weeks ago a scout car received a radio message that a "mad dog" was menacing a woman while she sat on her front porch. She was bitten several times before the officer arrived. He chased the dog and shot it twice. The two shots were sufficient to fix the dog so that he will never bite another person. If the owner of this dog had muzzled it, the woman would not have been bitten and the dog would not have been killed.

Dog owners who really love their pets should have them protected in accordance with law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The final curtain fell for William Landvoight yesterday, and with the passing of the dean of Washington dramatic critics the theater lost one of its best friends and stanchest supporters.

For half a century "Ole Bill," as his associates called him, had looked upon the drama, assorting the good, the bad and the indifferent and reporting his findings to the public. With an innate sense of honesty and a keen appreciation of artistic values, the pen of William Landvoight was wielded always for the good of the community. He refused to surrender to the onslaughts of the motion picture against the old-line bulwarks of the stage. To him the speaking stage was a priceless heritage of genius, delight and instruction. He helped to keep it so. May his shade find happiness with kindred spirits in the land of make-believe.

Thurmont Reader Criticizes "Jersey Justice" in Lindbergh Mystery.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The search for the Lindbergh baby's murderer, culminating in the tragic death of a poor, frail, defenseless English girl, cries to Heaven for condemnation.

These Jersey "sleuths" swooped down on this poor girl time and time again, and put her through the third degree. Her nerves shattered, her reason tottering, she preferred death to further torture. That was "Jersey justice." She was not a criminal, and was entitled to protection.

For all the time, energy and the enormous amount of the taxpayers' money that has been expended by the Jersey police to solve the Lindbergh mystery, all there is to show is a poor dead girl.

Readers Approve Editorial on Republican Prohibition Plank.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Please let me thank you for your editorial, "The Republican Plank." It is a fine analysis of the decision of the party with respect to prohibition.

I am glad that you stress the fact that the plank does not bind either candidates or voters, does not coerce either public or private opinion.

KENNEDY T. BRENT.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "The Republican Plank," explains the action of the Chicago convention. As you say, no individual candidate is committed to either the wet or the dry side of the question. The professional wets are opposed, and probably the professional drys are no better pleased. The party very properly refuses to be made the tool of either wets or drys.

Government Employes to Suffer Salary Cut as Empty Gesture Toward Economy, Says R. D. H.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A friend of mine attended a reception and there met a member of Congress. Speaking of salary reductions, he told her that, of course, the small amount the Government saved by cutting the salaries of the Government clerks did not amount to much, that it would not carry the Government over more than three days, but that Congress had to make a gesture because so many of the members' constituents were writing to them to cut down expenses.

So, evidently the Government employes are to be butchered merely to make a Roman holiday.

FRIDAY NIGHT.

On Sunday night at home we stay,
For school begins the following day.
On Monday night it is the rule
I must prepare myself for school.
They send me off to bed at eight,
For children mustn't stay up late.

On Tuesday all they say is "No!"
When out with them I beg to go.
In school to do their very best
All little girls must get their rest.
And then when Wednesday evening comes
I sit at home and twirl my thumbs.

I can't go out on Thursday night,
For daddy says it isn't right.
If there's a show I want to see
On Thursday, it can never be,
But mother tells me that we might
All go to see it Friday night.

So all week long I work on sums
And wait till Friday evening comes.
Then after supper off we go
To see a moving picture show.
And 'round about us everywhere
I see a lot of children there.

VON PAPEN ENDS BAN ON HITLER'S TROOPS

Protest Immediately Filed by States of Bavaria and Baden.

Berlin, June 16 (A.P.).—The ban on Adolf Hitler's storm troops, promulgated by the Bruening government two months ago, was lifted today by the Von Papen ministry, and immediately there were strong protests from the States of Baden and Bavaria.

Premier Josef Schmitt, of Baden, declared in Karlsruhe that his government could not be held responsible for maintaining order with the Nazi troopers free to carry on demonstrations. The lifting of the ban just before the general elections was a grave mistake, he said.

This protest apparently had immediate effect, for a few hours after the federal government had published its decree reestablishing the legality of the outlawed Hitlerite militant organization, an exception was made in the case of Baden.

The minister of interior announced that "in view of conditions" in that state, the wearing of uniforms by political groups would continue under ban there.

In Munich the Bavarian provincial government took care of its own modification. It ruled that the ban on open air political demonstrations will remain in force, although uniforms may be worn by political organizations on certain occasions.

In Prussia uniforms will be permitted, but open air political meetings remain "verboten."

The lifting of the Nazi ban was part of a decree which freed several other political organizations from restrictive regulations. These included the Reichsbanner Republicans and the Nationalist Steel Helmet War Veterans.

The Communists' militant unit, the "Red Front," may not, however, wear a uniform. Other groups may issue hand bills, but the "godless" circulars of the Communists are forbidden.

The decree, affecting 400,000 Nazi storm troopers, becomes effective tomorrow. Under its provisions the minister of interior may at any time demand information about the activities of militant political factions and such information must be furnished.

The Voelkischer Beobachter, Hitler's organ in Munich, hailed the decree as "the forerunner of the coming seizure of power by national socialism."

Busby Sees Urgent Need For Firmness of Debts

Branding the country's financial condition "basically wrong," Representative Jeff Busby, of Mississippi, yesterday told members of the Kiwanis Club there was an urgent need for the cure of a situation where debts, accumulated in prosperous years, remain rigid in the face of shrunken values.

Representative Busby spoke at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club. He declared a contributing factor to the present problem was that the American people had "mortgaged their future when the outlook was bright, and are now forced to fight against discouraging odds." Representative J. Howard Swick, of Pennsylvania, was also a guest of the club.

Dog, Soldiers' Mascot, Is Given Military Burial

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Trooper, a pilsner-colored hound dog, with no pedigree, but with a record of twelve years' service as an Army mascot, was buried today with military honors at the base of the Statue of Liberty.

A bugler sounded taps as soldiers of the First Military Police Company of the Army garrison on Bedloes Island stood at attention. A final military salute flashed, and as the little dusty body was lowered to a grave at the foot of the post flagstaff the troops marched briskly away.

Born at Camp Dix, N. J., Trooper served with Company G of the Sixteenth Infantry.

IL DUCE SLAPS U. S. IN BITTER INTERVIEW

Mussolini Foresees Long Series of Economies and Military Wars.

London, June 17 (Friday) (A.P.).—The Daily Express printed an interview with Premiere Mussolini of Italy today in which Il Duce was quoted as criticising caustically the United States and democracy generally, adding that he foresaw a long series of economic and military wars.

"America has no policy!" the correspondent quoted him as saying bitterly and with sardonic contempt. This was in reply to a suggestion from the correspondent that the United States was "one of the life belts to which idealists are clinging for salvation in the world crisis."

Mussolini summed up the United States, the correspondent said, in two words: Prohibition and Lindbergh.

"Dry America will never find herself," Il Duce was quoted as saying. "She must go wet to find herself. In the meantime Europe is drifting to disaster and bolshevization."

The correspondent suggested that the premier had no faith in democracy. Mussolini smiled derisively, he said, and replied:

"Democracy is nothing. The people are nothing and can do nothing. In every country they are weary of talk. They need men of action. They can not save themselves; they need saviors."

Asked where the saviors were, he replied: "There are no saviors."

"What, then, of the future?" he was asked.

"I foresee a long series of political, economic and military wars," he replied. "There's war now."

The era of reparations is ended, he was quoted as saying, it belongs to the "dead and buried past," and he added that "if Germany says 'no' Italy will say 'no.'"

2 New Yorkers Indicted Here in Theft of Autos

Two New York men, Arthur Weismiller and Henry Berman, were indicted here yesterday on charges of conspiring to violate the national motor vehicle theft act. The pair are charged with having stolen automobiles in New York and to have brought them here, where money was borrowed on them.

Weismiller was also indicted twice more. The additional charges against him are that he stole the automobile of a New York City man and brought it here, and housebreaking and larceny. This latter charge relates to the theft of an automobile belonging to Martin McNamara, local attorney. The machine was stolen from a garage.

SPAIN SEIZES ORGAZ IN MONARCHIST PLOT

Former Army Officer Added to Those Under Arrest as Alfonso's Aids.

Madrid, Spain, June 16 (A.P.).—Gen. Luis Orgaz, a former monarchist commander with a brilliant army record, today was added to a list of prominent Spaniards under arrest on charges of plotting against the Republican government of Spain.

He was arrested at Teneriffe, in the Canary Islands. Since the overthrow of the monarchy he had been relieved of his command, but remained on the army pay roll at full salary.

Others under arrest include Gen. Emilio Barrera, Baron de Mora and a son of Gen. Barrera. They were accused of implication in a plot to restore former King Alfonso to the throne.

Today it was learned Gen. Barrera, formerly one of the most influential men in Spain, had declared himself innocent of the conspiracy charge. He said he had been the object of "unwarranted shadowing" for a long time.

Juan March, generally supposed to be the richest man in Spain, also was in prison today, charged with being "dangerous to the republic." He was arrested and held for questioning in connection with charges of graft in obtaining a tobacco concession under the former monarchy.

Members of 4-H clubs from 40 States and the District, now encamped in Washington, witnessed a Bicentennial program last night, presented by the clubs of Herndon, Va., and Fort Humphreys and students of George Washington University and Gordon Junior High School.

The Herndon clubs presented a tableau depicting the inauguration of Washington, while the Fort Humphreys group presented one entitled "The Children Bring Flowers to Mrs. Washington." The Gordon Junior High students described, in pageant, the music George Washington knew. Other 4-H Club members presented features of Bicentennial programs they have given in their own communities.

The Bicentennial entertainment was preceded by a recreation period conducted by Olga Lofgren, Evelyn Sweltiver, Virginia Dennis and Mary Haleyl, George Washington University students, and a concert by the Boys and Girls Band of the Fox Theater. Dr. Lewis Stanley, chief of the Bureau of Home Economics of the Department of Agriculture, will address the 154 club members and their 70 leaders today.

CLUBWOMEN NAME MRS. POOLE AS HEAD

Seattle, June 16 (A.P.).—Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole, of Brockton, Mass., lecturer and traveler, was elected president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs here today, succeeding Mrs. John F. Sippel, of Baltimore. She was unopposed.

Mrs. Eugene B. Lawson, of Tulsa, Okla., descendant of the Delaware Indian tribe, was elected first vice president over Mrs. Henry C. Taylor, of Bloomfield, Iowa. The vote was: Mrs. Lawson, 366; Mrs. Taylor, 208.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, of Portland, Oreg., was elected recording secretary without opposition, and Mrs. Felix T. McWhirter, of Indianapolis, and Mrs. Frank Warren, of Minneapolis, were named trustees for six-year terms.

An effort to put the federation on record as desiring Federal supervision of motion pictures was defeated on the convention floor today when only fifteen delegates voted for the suggestion.

Mrs. Maude Aldrich, of Washington, D. C., offered the motion, which would have called for close Federal regulation of the industry.

Arguing against the proposal, offered as an amendment to a resolution, later passed, which deplored "oversexed" themes and drinking scenes, Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, of San Francisco, declared such legislation would only mean creation of eight new political jobs at fat salaries.

She told the delegates cooperation of the federation and the motion picture industry would obtain better results and reported definite improvement in the type of pictures produced.

Delay in Senate action on the World Court was denounced by Mrs. Ben Hooper, of Oshkosh, Wis., chairman of the department of international relations. She said the seven and a half years the question has been before the Senate is "the worst outrage on a people who are supposed to have a voice in their government that I have ever known."

The convention adopted her report, which urged clubwomen to seek the defeat of senators who fail to state they will vote for the court.

Old Homes of State Are Praised by Speaker

Maryland, which is unique among the States of the Eastern seaboard in having so many of its old houses still in existence, should be especially careful to preserve all its remains of colonial times, Swepson Earle, conservation commissioner of the State, told the 750 women enrolled for the short course at the University of Maryland yesterday.

Mr. Earle described to his audience 100 of the more prominent old houses in the State. Another speaker at the assembly was J. Alexis Shriver, Maryland's representative on the National Bicentennial Commission. Mr. Shriver told of George Washington's travels and visits in Maryland.

PAY CUT CONFEREES MEET AGAIN TODAY

morning, with prospects less bright for an early settlement than when the group first met four days ago.

Since Wednesday there have been informal discussions between members within the joint group, but nothing to indicate a radical change of front in either camp.

Both House and Senate conferees held extensive discussions with their respective parliamentarians. While the nature of these conferences has not been disclosed, it is understood both sides are anxious to ascertain just how far they may go, within the limits of House and Senate bills, and what alternatives are left if the economy bill is reported with the pay cut-furlough item in disagreement.

Need New Instructions.

House conferees point out they need no new instructions, in view of the decisive House vote against the furlough. Considering the three-vote margin by which the furlough was approved by the Senate, conferees from that chamber are not so sure their instructions may not be changed if the question again is laid before the body.

On the other hand, House antipay reductionists yesterday questioned the satement of Representative John McDuffie, House economy chairman, that the House would reject the conference report if it contained furloughs.

Speaking for a group of representatives who vigorously opposed the pay-cut plan originally brought out by the House economy committee, 11 per cent cuts with $1,000 exemption, Representative James M. Mead (Democrat), New York, said the House would accept the payless furlough plan if asked for further instructions.

Says Furlough Preferred.

The New York representative, who is chairman of the House postoffice and post roads committee, is convinced Federal workers and postal employes would rather have the furlough, with its five-day week possibilities and its promise of maintaining wage standards, than any horizontal wage reduction.

Pressure for an early settlement of the pay cut-furlough controversy meanwhile continued acute. Morale of Federal workers, over whose heads the sword of Damocles has dangled for nearly half a year, has not been improved by the indecision on Capitol Hill, their champions point out.

William Green, who represented the American Federation of Labor at the Republican convention, yesterday was congratulated by the joint conference on affiliation with the American Federation of Labor, for his stand for "no pay cuts in the Federal service."

A letter forwarded to him at Chicago thanked him for "urging upon the great Republican party the necessity of opposing any reduction in the daily or annual income of the working people of the United States."

GEN. CALLES' WIFE TO GO UNDER KNIFE

Party Leaves Mexico City on Special Train for New York.

Mexico City, June 16 (A.P.).—Gen. and Mrs. Plutarco Elias Calles left Mexico City tonight aboard a special train for New York, where Mrs. Calles will undergo a serious operation for an ailment from which she has been suffering for several weeks.

They were accompanied by their two children, two doctors and Jose Manuel Puig y Casauranc, Mexican Ambassador to the United States. The ambassador announced that Mrs. Calles was suffering from meningitis and an immediate operation was necessary.

It was Gen. Calles' first trip outside Mexico in more than two years. He was granted a leave of absence from his post as secretary of war to make the journey. During his absence Gen. Pablo Quiroga, undersecretary, will be in charge of the war department.

Mrs. Calles, the former Leonor Llorente, was carried aboard the train on a stretcher from an ambulance that brought her from Calles' Santa Barbara ranch, 20 miles east of Mexico City. President and Mrs. Pascual Ortiz Rubio, as well as cabinet members, generals and politicians, were at the station to see them off.

Gen. Calles, who rode with the driver of the ambulance, appeared worried, but apparently in good health when he boarded the train, although he also will be under a doctor's care in New York and planned to take a prolonged rest.

Just three years ago after putting down the Escobar revolution, Gen. Calles went to France for his health, returning much improved after four months abroad.

The Calles party is due in New York Monday, traveling via Laredo, Tex., San Antonio and St. Louis. The newspaper Excelsior said Mrs. Calles would enter the sanitarium of Dr. J. J. Eller, Calles' son-in-law.

The Department of Vehicles and Traffic is being moved from the police headquarters building to the Ford Building at John Marshall place and Pennsylvania avenue northwest. Completion of the transfer is expected to be on Monday.

The permit and tag divisions of the bureau will be on the first floor of the new quarters with special counters and partitions installed for public convenience. Administrative offices will be on the second floor.

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

It Takes a Beautiful Hand to Wear Jewels and High-Color Nail Polishes With an Air.

A YOUNG enthusiast recently observed that one does see more lovely hands in evidence and that there is no way of knowing the "I do all my work myself" hand from the "I have a maid." Just as there's no way of telling a married woman from "one who isn't attached" (except by the band on her left hand if she wears one). This sweet young thing implied that in former years a certain drabness and negligence seemed to mark married women, whereas today they are precisely smart and well-groomed.

She wondered whether the new electrical contrivances that make housekeeping much simpler than in mother's day have anything to do with the new beauty—or what?

It is true that housework has been simplified, that women adopt all the wise little beauty hints offered them, wearing gloves wherever possible, for gardening, washing and other household duties.

Hand Care.

Women are realizing, too, that hand care means more than merely an occasional manicure. They treat the skin of the hands gently, and generously massage creams, hand lotions, jelly and whiteners to preserve the skin's youthful softness. They avoid a chapped, cracked, large-pored appearance of the hand just as they avoid these signs of facial negligence. And they know that it takes a beautiful hand to wear jewels and the high-colored nail polishes with a smart air.

Various Colors in Nail Polishes.

While the writer always leans toward the natural, she must concede that many women are using various colors in nail polishes and achieving additional charm and smartness thereby. I refer particularly to the polishes in the rose family, not the greens or golds or platinums.

One of the country's leading makers of nail polishes suggests nail color accents to go with costumes. For sports wear and for bright red, orange, yellow or purple a natural shade that just slightly emphasizes the natural pink of the nails. For grays and for the icy pastels popular for evening wear, as an exotic contrast for black and white, and for the bright empire blues a deep cardinal shade. For feminine, soft, fluffy gowns of chiffon or organdies, rose is suggested. It is also recommended to accompany pastel pinks, blues, lavender, brown, black, hunter green and honey beige. For cool, neutral shades, for white satin evening gowns, lanvin green, cool blue, black, pale pink or beige, coral is recommended. A colorless shade is considered correct at all times and particularly proper with difficult shades like magenta, cerise, American beauty or chartreuse.

And now back to jewels—for we haven't said enough about them here—if you wear them at all be sure they grace a gracefully beautiful, soft, cared-for hand and call attention to the loveliness of the hand as well as to their own. So many times a large diamond on a grubby, dark, coarse hand strikes a discordant, pitiful note.

My bulletins on hand care and manicuring may be had for a stamped, return envelope.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

NEW YORK, June 16.—Summer evenings have gone deliberately "homely."

Now, there are two ways to interpret that word. Home-ly, and well, homely! The good ol' dickahun'nair says that homely is "simple, plain, unpretending, primitive, uncomely." And Dame Fashion has made the dictionary out a fibber!

Because "homely," as interpreted in the mode, is anything but simple—and actually pretentious! The French started it, and with their droll sense of humor, deliberately promoted rough cotton weaves, red and white checks like little girl ginghams—and then cut the frocks to the waist in back—and gave them bouffant skirts and sometimes even worlds of hand embroidery not even deigned to silks and satins!

* * * *

Cotton dinner gowns have their place, decidedly. The clever woman knows how to choose those that do not wilt before even the one evening is over, and those that perhaps her laundress can do up, not necessitating an expensive cleaning. (When I say cotton, this means naturally organdy, linen and everything but synthetic fabrics and woolens and silk.)

And another thing—when you hear mention of cotton evening gowns, don't forget that that includes all types of dinner wear—from evening tailleurs to formal gowns, all developed in something other than silk or wool or synthetic fabrics. How to distinguish a tailored linen evening suit from its morning's sister might be a puzzle—on paper. But when you see the cut, the trimming and the detail of handwork, you can easily see how an evening tailleur is suitable for just that and nothing more.

* * * *

But not a single, solitary style at the moment allows rolled stockings. They do allow no stockings, but any elegant woman knows how much better her limbs look incased in silk and few truly elegant women go barelegged. So what to do, what to do? Why, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet which tells you how to make a darling ribbon garter girdle—just 3 inches wide—which slender ladies can wear under their summer frocks for the sole purpost of holding up silken hose. Less slender ladies (you an'-me-dearies) have a summer girdle in this leaflet, too—one that has just a little more support, a slide fastener opening—and is not too difficult to make. It has no elastic or heavy things in its materials that are hard to sew nor difficult to launder. You'll like this leaflet and be able to follow it, we promise you.

* * * *

It doesn't look half as nice in black and white. Somehow M. Magnin manages to do things with line and color that are simply enchanting—and either terrifically impractical or practical. The afternoon frock in black crepe that I sketch of his today—the neck is lined in bright green and shows a white edge, by the way, and the sleeves are striped in green and white. Well, as I was saying, this dress could take itself to luncheon, dinner, most anywhere, any time. But if you would make it even more chic, if such a thing were possible, and yet a bit more "sporty," why, wear the bright green novelty woolen jacket with it. Can't you just see it?

Au Revoir.

What Today Means

"GEMINI."

IF June 17 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 7:45 a. m. to 9 a. m., from 1 p. m. to 2:35 p. m. and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m. The danger periods are from 11 a. m. to 12:35 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:20 p. m.

Friday, June 17, is a man's day from an astrological viewpoint. The planetary influences favor the dry, statistical or commercial world, and many a satisfactory "deal" will be made. For women it would be a good day for shopping and bargain hunting. Lovers should try to avoid differences and should turn a deaf ear to gossiping friends.

Without being exceptionally clever, the child born on this June 17 will have a bright and open mind, and will drink in all the world has to offer of interest. It will be simple-hearted and delightfully unaffected. It will be an attentive listener and a model student.

The real beauty of your nature, if born June 17, consists in your warm and loving kindness. No malicious thoughts mar the serenity of your face, and your eyes are candid and merry. If you are a woman, your true mission in life is the care of others—especially of the unhappy and suffering. Your strong common sense is not only your own personal guide, but it is often borrowed by others who need sound advice and sympathetic understanding.

You never lose faith in your God and fellowmen. As a host or hostess you do everything you can to make your guests comfortable, but you are not fussy, and do not overdo your amiability and interest. The formal round of social life makes little or no appeal to you. You like your little dinner parties and your teacup gossip.

Your enthusiasms are unusually lasting, and you are not only a beginner of things, but a finisher as well. You do not "rush" new friends, to drop them when others appear over the horizon—with you once a friend, always a friend.

You must lead an active life, or you succumb to restlessness. You also like to feel that you are doing worth-while things, and not merely frittering the time away.

Successful people born on June 17: Charles Frohman, theatrical manager.

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

POSIES FOR POTPOURI.

JUNE is the time to begin gathering posies to refill your rose jars and to fill fascinating bags and boxes so useful at Christmas time. Potpourri is so expensive to buy and so easy to make that it seems a pity that more people do not save their blossoms and thus preserve the sweetness of the summer months to add to the fragrance of the ones to come.

The first step is to secure some large pieces of blotting paper and spread it in a sunny place. On this paper lay your leaves and blossoms. The following is an old-fashioned recipe, which, like the fortune which is told in the daisy field, is "sure to come true." In other words it is reliable and sure to satisfy.

Two quarts of rose petals. This does not mean petals that have fallen to the ground. They have lost their sweetness. Nor does it mean the petals unfolded from the bud. They are immature and lacking in sweetness. It means two quarts of petals shaken from full-blown roses.

Keep each variety of flower separate during the process of drying. Every recipe you will find calls for salt. Why, I do not know, because salt in nine cases out of ten causes the petals to mildew. Therefore, do not be persuaded to use even a suggestion of it. To the rose petals add two cupfuls of sweet pea blossoms (do not separate these petals), two cupfuls of old-fashioned, spicy pinks, three cupfuls of pine needles, and some sprigs of spruce, one-half cupful of marigolds, two cupfuls of the lovely blossoms of the heliotrope, so popular in those gardens of the past and so rarely seen today, as much mignonette as you can spare (you can not add too much), and at least four cupfuls of trumpets of the honeysuckle (they retain much of their sweetness when dried); two cupfuls of lemon trifolium leaves, one-half cupful of thyme and sage leaves and one cupful of shrubs.

As they dry place them in separate containers with lids. You will probably think, when you place them in these containers, that your efforts have been in vain—that you have petals but no odor. But when you lift the lid in late September and mix the potpourri, you will realize that you are mistaken. For then the odors will be distinct. When the petals are mixed use 1 pound of lavender flowers. These you will purchase at a drug store; also ½ pound of powdered orris root and ¼ ounce of musk. This latter is a liquid added to help blend the odors. Keep the mass in a covered container for two weeks after the final mixing, then it will be ready to be distributed into your rose jars. This is a generous recipe. You can divide it, making only a quarter of the amount.

Four Organizations Plan Seaside Park Outings

Four Washington organizations will hold excursions to Seaside Park, Chesapeake Beach, tomorrow.

The Washington Transportation Club outing is being arranged by Odell S. Smith, Charles Bates and J. M. Boyland. Other groups to visit the resort are the Bethany Baptist Sunday School, the Adjutant and Inspectors Department Association and the Metropolitan Baptist Sunday School.

One hundred altar boys of St. Aloysius Catholic Church and a group of youngsters from the Baptist Home for Children in Bethesda visited the beach yesterday.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

NAMING SOME HEART TROUBLES.

M. C. asks for an article on the different forms of heart troubles. It seems probable that what is wanted is a list of the more common heart troubles, with some classification of them.

The request is in order. We still speak of heart disease as though there were but one. In vital statistics reports we read of "heart disease," instead of the half dozen or more subheads that should be reported on separately. We would not be satisfied with a report on "lung disease" that threw the pneumonia, consumption, bronchitis, asthma and pleurisy into one grab-bag. Since there are many kinds of heart disease, due to many causes and treated in different ways, it is time to think of each disease as an individual disorder.

The heart is composed of a thick, heavy, strong muscle, the myocardium, and its nerves and blood vessels; a lining membrane, the endocardium, with the endocardial valves, and a thin covering membrane, the pericardium. As most of the diseases of the endocardium cause the harm they do around the valves, we use terms which designate the valves affected when we speak of organic heart disease affecting the lining membrane. The terms used are mitral regurgitation and mitral stenosis, aoratic regurgitation and aortic stenosis and pulmonory stenosis. The first term means that there is a deformity of the mitral valve which permits blood to flow in the wrong direction; the second means that the deformity interferes with the forward flow of blood. These deformities are the result of inflammation of the endocardium, generally chronic though sometimes acute.

With these statements as a base, it is easy to catch the meaning of the other terms used. Pericarditis means that there is an inflammation of the covering layer. Myocarditis is used as a name for the diseases of the heart muscle.

In the long ago we spoke of the nervous disorders of the heart as palpitation and let it go at that. Now we sometimes get into an analytic mood and then we speak of organic heart disease and of dysfunction due to nerve disturbance. The latter we once lumped as "palpitation." We then split up into auricular fibrilation, auricular flutter, extrasystole, heart-block, paroxysmal tachycardia, bradycardia and perhaps sinus-block, nervous heart, tobacco heart and possibly others.

In this group of heart troubles the muscle itself is all right and there need not be disease of the valves. We refer to them as nervous or functional heart troubles, and not organic. In each of them the motions of the heart muscle, contracting and relaxing, are not carried out exactly in the usual way, because the nervous mechanism is not clicking off just right. Some of the nerve disturbances are very grave; others are of little consequence.

If there is any disease in the coronary arteries, the vessels that supply most of the nourishment to the heart muscle, we have a kind of neuralgia of the heart which goes by one of the following names: Angina pectoris, coronary thrombosis and coronary embolus.

THEY'RE MISSING JUST NOW.

R. L. F. D. writes: What are the symptoms of plethora?

Is it dangerous?

Can it be cured?

Would it cause the gums to bleed?

REPLY.

The word means "too much." It has no definite medical meaning. There is a condition in which there is too much blood. The medical name is polycythemia. In many instances it is a very serious disease. However, medical opinion and information about it is not very clear cut. The term is usually applied quite loosely to big, fat, red-faced, tight-skinned people, many of whom have high blood pressure. It is said of them that they "look as if they are going to burst," or "they must be careful or they will break a blood vessel and have apoplexy."

In certain cases members of this group are on ice that is a little thin. Perhaps they are improved, as they often think they are, by repeated bleedings, as from hemorrhoids. I presume it is among this group that the old-time practice of bleeding made its reputation.

They would be better off if they followed some of Gandhi's practices.

EARLY PREGNANCY.

Mrs. T. R. S. What are the signs of early pregnancy?

REPLY.

HAVE SELF EXAMINED.

L. F. W. writes: I caught a cold in my throat, and cough a lot at night. My breathing is so hard that I have to sit up in bed. My ankles and limbs below the knees swell. Is this dropsy, or what is it?

REPLY.

You should be examined. Of course you have dropsy, but what is that? You need to know what is wrong.

Plans Menus for Week-End

TODAY, as usual, lies before us the pleasurable duty of planning for another summer week-end, which means supper for Saturday, dinner for Sunday and, in addition this week, a Sunday breakfast. This makes me remember Sunday breakfasts in my loved New England many years ago, where one lifted the clotted cream from a yellow bowl by the spoonfuls to spread it over strawberries picked from the "patch" with the dew still on them. And Devonshire cream in England and canned cream in Panama and coconut cream in Brazil, to say nothing of hot milk in Paris, where they use the product of the peaceful "vache" more to dilute their chicory-filled coffee than for berries. Oh, well, this is right here at home and far removed from any of these remote corners of memory, so let's have corn griddle cakes for breakfast and New England maple sirup and use a cantaloupe first, that we may put the cream in our coffee!

Cooked Salad Dressing.

Mix one scant teaspoonful of salt with a teaspoonful of mustard, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of sugar, a few grains of red pepper and two tablespoonfuls of flour. Mix well and add one egg, slightly beaten, one and one-half tablespoonfuls of melted butter and three-fourths cupful of milk. Mix thoroughly. Stir in very slowly two tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Refreshing Summer Beverages.

Summer days are thirsty days! And there are so many occasions when a sparkling, icy drink is most refreshing and welcome. It may be after a tiresome shopping day in town, a brisk game of tennis, or, perhaps, when friends "drop in" of a hot afternoon or evening. It really doesn't matter, for in our new folder you will find many suggestions for easily prepared, appropriate beverages—all equally delicious.

Send your request and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Nancy Carey, The Washington Post.

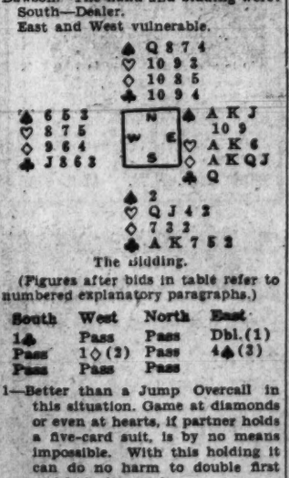
THE TAKEOUT DOUBLE.

WHEN an opponent has opened the bidding and an opposing player finds himself strong in honor cards and with a hand that offers a choice as to the correct eventual declaration the Takeout Double is, in many situations, a most effective weapon. Frequently, however, the problem presented to the partner of the Doubler is difficult of solution. The situation which occurs when the partner of the Doubler holds only one four-card suit, and that the suit bid by the adversary, requires special treatment. This has been provided for in the Approach-Forcing System by, in such cases, bidding the lowest three-card minor, provided that suit is not the one chosen by the opponent for opening the bidding.

An illustration of the effective use of this bid occurred in a recent game in Montgomery, Ala. The holder of the East hand was Miss Annie Maude Dawson. The hand and bidding were:

South—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The bidding.

(Figures after bids in table refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	Pass	Dbl.(1)
Pass	1◇(2)	Pass	4♠(3)
Pass	Pass	Pass

1—Better than a Jump Overcall in this situation. Game at diamonds or even at hearts, if partner holds a five-card suit, is by no means impossible. With this holding it can do no harm to double first and bid afterwards.

2—West has no four-card suit except the suit bid by his opponent. He, therefore, responds with his lowest three-card suit and leaves the final decision to his partner.

3—East's hand suggests the strong probability of only three losers—one club, one heart and one spade. Further bidding by partner, with this tremendous massed honor strength and South's Opening bid, appears out of the question. The direct bid for game is therefore justified.

In the play, South opened the King of clubs and East dropped the Queen. Of course South knew that unless this was a false-card, East could ruff the second round of the suit and establish the Knave in the Dummy. However, as the Dummy was entirely void of entry cards, South decided to continue the clubs as a choice of evils. Miss Dawson, preferring safety to the possibility of securing an extra trick, discarded her losing heart, and South was now helpless. To continue the clubs would merely mean giving East an entry to the Dummy to lead through any honor holding North might have in trumps. So South shifted to a heart, East led out the spades, lost a trick in the trump suit, and made four-odd.

The discard of a loser on a loser costs nothing, even though, in this instance, it gained nothing. It was merely an additional safeguard against the possibility—which was, however, not great, in view of the distribution of the East and West hands—that North held all the adverse trumps, rather than four of them.

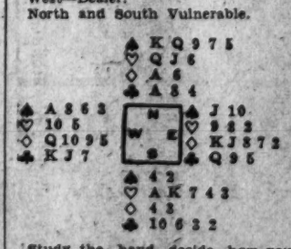
TODAY'S POINTER.

When an opposing player has opened the bidding and partner makes a Takeout Double, partner of the Doubler is frequently confronted with a difficult problem in continuing the contract. The method of handling such a situation to obtain the best results can be developed along logical lines.

TOMORROW'S HAND

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

West—Dealer.
North and South Vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you would bid and play it and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

QUESTIONS ANSWERED.

Mr. Culbertson will be glad to answer any specific question on bidding or play sent in by readers. Address him in care of this newspaper, INCLOSING A 2-CENT STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE.

FOR THE CHILDREN: Tune in Kellogg's SINGING LADY every afternoon, except Saturdays and Sundays, over stations affiliated with the N. B. C. from Coast to Coast. 5.30 Eastern Daylight Time, 4.30 Central Daylight Time, 5.30 Pacific Coast Time. Songs and stories children love.

My Platform is a full cereal bowl

IF SOME ONE could canvass the youngsters of the land for their favorite breakfast dish, he'd find a landslide vote for Kellogg's Corn Flakes. Every morning of the week, these crisp, toasted flakes start the day in millions of homes.

And what's better than a bowl of crunchy Kellogg's, served with cool milk or cream and fruit? Flavor that appetites can't resist. So easy to digest it furnishes rich energy for work, play—or just for feeling fit!

Mothers also appreciate the convenience and economy of Kellogg's. No cooking or trouble. Many servings from a package costing but a few cents.

Serve Kellogg's Corn Flakes for the children's evening meal. Kellogg's encourage restful sleep—how much better than heavy, hard-to-digest foods.

You'll prefer genuine Kellogg's. No other corn flakes have such flavor and freshness. For Kellogg's always reach you oven-fresh—because the flakes are completely sealed in an inside WAXTITE bag. It's a patented Kellogg feature. Look for the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

Enjoy a bowl of Kellogg's

W. H. LANDVOIGT EXPIRES SUDDENLY

73-Year-Old Dramatic Critic Was Pioneer in Modern Mail System.

William Harold Landvoigt, dramatic critic of the Evening Star, died suddenly yesterday morning from a heart attack. He was 73 years old.

Mr. Landvoigt, a native Washingtonian, was a leader in fraternal life here. He was a familiar figure among theatrical folk of the Capital.

He was educated in the public schools of Washington, at George Washington University and at Columbia College, where he received a law degree.

Began as Page.

Beginning work as a page at the Capitol, he later helped in the organization of the National Grange. After practicing law for several years, he went into the Postoffice Department, where he became the first head of the registry division.

It was under his direction that registry of United States mail was first begun. He later became chief of the classification division in the department. During the Roosevelt administration he became connected with the Star.

He was a thirty-second degree Mason, a past master of Osiris Lodge, No. 26, F. A. A. M.; a past high priest of Mount Horeb Chapter, Royal Arch Masons; member of Washington Council, Royal and Select Masters; of Mithras Lodge of Perfection, of Evangelist Chapter, Knights of Rose Croix; of Robert de Bruce Council, Knights Kadosh; of Albert Pike Consistory, and of Kallipolis Grotto, No. 15, Mystic Order of Veiled Prophets of the Enchanted Realm.

Member of Shrine.

He also was a member of Almas Temple, Nobles of the Mystic Shrine, wrote for the temple and was editor of its publication, Alibi.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eddie May Landvoigt, and two sons by a former marriage, William A. Landvoigt, of Pittsburgh, and Thomas Elmer Landvoigt, of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Dora Emert, of Washington.

Funeral services had not been arranged yesterday. He lived at 1009 Jackson street northeast.

With NELSON B. BELL

"NO wonder the movie business is in trouble. Not a single decent, clean picture out of the lot. Not one a self-respecting person will go to. Sex filth, license, free love and highball parties their sole idea of a play."

This is the indictment that comes to me through the mails from a gentleman of perception and high standing in the community who incloses as an exhibit with his blistering excoriation the motion picture display ads clipped from one of the Capital's leading daily journals.

Knowing something of my correspondent's busy life, I suspect that he had not personally viewed all of the motion pictures occupying the local screens through last night and so based his accusations more or less upon the implications of the titles of the pictures which, by their sound, offend him. Upon such a premise, there is, to be sure, a leg for him to stand on.

"Forgotten Commandments," "Merrily We Go to Hell," "While Paris Sleeps," "Sinners in the Sun," "The Strange Case of Clara Deane," "Is My Face Red?"

These are the titles upon which the producers have relied to attract profitable patronage to the theaters of the country. The list, obviously, does fall a little short of suggesting those homely virtues and tranquil qualities popularly supposed to constitute the backbone of America's claim to a place among the moral, spiritual, intellectual and esthetic leaders of the nations of the world. It is to the sound of their nomenclature rather than the subject matter with which these pictures are primarily concerned, I firmly believe, that my remonstrant friend objects.

Insofar as I myself have been able to cover the list—and that is not completely—there is nothing in any of the pictures so depraved as my correspondent suspects, or as any one with a lively imagination might impute to any, or all, of them.

The whole fact of the matter seems to be that the motion picture industry, inured to a practice that had its genesis back in the nickelodeon days, still feels that it must title its pictures down to the intellectual level of an audience of morons.

This, of course, is a flagrant and lamentable error in judgment, as such communications as that of which I have quoted a part amply prove.

Pictures nowadays are not nearly so black as they paint themselves!

It is Frank La Falce, of the Warner publicity department, who reminds me that four young Negroes from Cincinnati opened "cold" on a Columbia Broadcasting hour not so long ago and before their program was half over had convinced every listener in the New York studio as well as all that vast unseen audience out in the hinterland that here was one of the hottest outfits to come to radio in a flock of Ohio River moons!

There are four of these lads, John, Herbert, Harry and Donald. John is the bass, tuba and third trumpet—and plays the only real instrument in the quartet, a mail order guitar. Herbert sings second trumpet and Harry does the first. Donald fills in—and how!

These boys started singing in their father's barber shop. Their idea of imitating band instruments came when John was offered a job playing cornet in a colored band, and, not having a cornet, offered to imitate one! The offer was turned down, but it gave John the idea. He and his brothers learned harmonies and imitations and pennies and nickels began to drop at their feet wherever and whenever they sang. Then the local opera house gave them a hearing and next came their chance on the air. You know the rest.

That is to say, you will as soon as it is divulged that these are the Mills brothers of whom we are talking. These overnight sensations supply one of the screen features of the bill celebrating today's inauguration of the Earle's new policy of opening its bills on Friday. Their novelty song short-reel is based on "I Ain't Got Nobody."

Orangelo Ratto—"Angie," you and I have been calling him for years, remember?—the rotund and retiring manager of Loew's Palace Theater, left Washington yesterday on a fortnight's early-summer vacation, the first half of which will be whiled away at nearby Maryland shore resorts; the last half, amid the gay goings-on of that fetid phantasmagoria known as Atlantic City.

It is perhaps significant that Signor Ratto found it expedient to seek surcease from his appointed tasks the day following the gay birthday surprise party tendered Wesley Eddy, resident master of ceremonies at Loew's Fox, by Mrs. Eddy and a group of old friends, at Ciro's Wednesday night.

The natal anniversaries of the genial and versatile Mr. Eddy are by way of being events in Washington's theaterdom and Wednesday evening's observance of the occasion, from all reports, was possibly the most gala of any in the series. It was a genuine surprise to the guest of honor, which lent an added tang to the avalanche of congratulations under which he was buried. In response, I am told, Mr. Eddy not only sang a song, but also made a speech!

This is largely surmise on my part, since, with rare foresight, Mr. and Mrs. Eddy arranged this year to have Wesley's birthday fall on a day of the week when it was a regretted impossibility for this column to be present.

In the passing of William H. Landvoigt, affectionately known to a host of friends, both in and out of the theater, as "Bill," the Washington critical fraternity loses an able and a kindly veteran.

Thrown into close contact with him for almost a quarter of a century, either as an associate of the Fourth Estate or as a liaison officer between the theater and the press, I have yet to meet a man, woman or child who did not love, honor and respect him.

I am happy to have been privileged to known William H. Landvoigt, and, with an army of others, grieve his loss.

Hail, Bill, and farewell.

BROWN TWIRLS NATS TO 4-0 VICTORY OVER TIGERS

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

THE strangest baseball story of the season emanated from Philadelphia yesterday, where Bill Dooly, the usually well-informed scrivener of the Record, reports that Connie Mack placed on the auction block every member of his Athletics with the exception of Lefty Grove, Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Foxx.

Stranger still is Dooly's report that there were no takers for such accomplished performers as Al Simmons, George Earnshaw, Rube Walberg and Max Bishop, who must remain with the club for the rest of the season, now that the trading deadline was passed last Wednesday.

Washington fans who in the past five years have seen Simmons almost single-handedly blast the pennant Lopes of the Nats can hardly conceive how Mack is willing to release his superstar, and why, according to Dooly, he offered Simmons and a pitcher to the St. Louis Browns for Goose Goslin and Pitcher George Blaeholder.

This department, which has found Dooly a well-informed source in the past, has but one explanation for Mack's move to dispose of Simmons, Earnshaw and Bishop. It is probably the same reason why the Browns refused the offer in a trade that appeared so farcically in favor of the St. Louis Club.

Simmons' $33,000 salary and the high stipends of the other Philadelphia stars doubtless provided the motive for Mack's attempted deal and accounted for the reluctancy of the Browns to take the stars off Mack's hands.

It is a fact that despite the recent pennant victories of the Athletics, the Philadelphia club has not been a big money-maker due to the blue law banning Sunday baseball in the Quaker City. The Mackmen are the highest-salaried club in the league, the Yankees with Babe Ruth's $75,000 not excepted, and the burden of these high wages appear to be the basis for Mack's attempted deals.

Simmons is experiencing the severest slump of his big league career which began in 1924. He has a lifetime batting average of .363 for his eight full seasons in the majors. Yet he has been one of the weak links in the A's attempt this year to win their fourth straight flag.

Where in other seasons he was one of the most deadly hitters with men on base, this year he has developed a habit of popping up, striking out and hitting into double plays with men on base. In the recent Detroit series, he made only four singles in nineteen times at bat and didn't drive in a run.

His slump has also had a souring effect on his disposition, it is said. To put it lightly this has not added to his popularity. Nor has Simmons exactly thrived on the adulation and honors heaped on Jimmy Foxx, who has been the hitting sensation of both leagues this season.

No team, except perhaps the New York Yankees, would be very eager to take over Simmons' $33,000 contract that has another year to run. Moreover, Simmons' batting average of .304 doesn't warrant any such outlay of cash.

But it is doubtful if Mack would trade Simmons to either the Yankees or the Washington Club, the two teams he must beat for the pennant this year. Simmons was offered to the Browns because Phil Ball, millionaire owner of the St. Louis Club, is the man most likely to consider such a high-salaried performer.

Canzoneri Pounds Out Victory Over Dublinsky

7,500 Watch Grobmeier Triumph

Chief White Feather Victim of Scissors in Rough Bout.

Dusek and McMillen Draw After Thrilling Contest.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

GRASSHOPPER GROBMEIER, the spindly legged rassler, scalped the venerable and pugnacious old Chief White Feather last night after being subjected to 29 minutes of abject misery at the hands of the Indian. The two boys put on a good show and finished off the display in fine style when Grobmeier, after taking most of the punishment throughout, hurled the Chief up against the ropes and clamped a figure 4 scissors around his middle as he came flying back on the rebound.

A crowd of 7,500, the largest of the season, witnessed the bouts, drawn to Griffith Stadium when typical Joe Turner luck washed away the storm clouds and revealed one of the most beautiful nights of the summer.

The boosted attendance figures came to see Rudy Dusek, and extended to the former local idol one of the most monumental boos of the year after he went 45 minutes to bruising draw decision with Jim McMullen, who came out of the match the hero, through some complex working of the composite mind of the crowd in attendance.

Dusek's Cradle Hold Useless.

The Dusek-McMillan draw was by far the outstanding match of the night's program. There appeared to be bad blood between the two, and it splattered all over the ring as they waded in with a succession of elbow jolts and bare knuckle fisticuffing. Never once was Dusek able to get his cradle hold, from which no man can escape without recourse to wrestling politics.

It was gory, even battle. The loose plank beneath the mat resounded deafeningly to the onslaught of bodies and first one and then the other was hurtled to the floor. Both bruisers made much use of flying mares, and both were seemingly in danger of being counted out after taking series of these jolts.

Police had to separate the boys about five minutes from the end when they fell out of the ring and began to slug each other in the muddy no man's land between the pitcher's box and home plate.

A world record for Washington was set when Berto Assirati, a reformed circus rubber man, dumped fat Renato Gardini in 55 seconds. Assirati wrestles like an armless man chopping wood by holding the ax in his mouth and turning front flips. George Kotsonaros and Frank Brunwicz had too many reputations to uphold, and so went to a 30-minute draw. Jim Corrigan beat Jack Zarnas by proxy. Zarnas tried a flying dive and landed on his head, and very surprisingly knocked himself cold.

Ex-Dodgers on Reds Beat Brooklyn Again

Brooklyn, June 16 (A.P.).—The former Dodgers beat the former Reds again today as Cincinnati made it two straight over Brooklyn by an 8 to 6 count.

Harvey, Hendrick, Babe Herman, Wally Gilbert and Ernie Lombardi, all former Brooklyn players, led the assault on Mungo and Heimach, making seven of Cincinnati's hits and driving in six runs. Hendrick hit a triple, double and single. Ray Kolp pitched fine relief ball for the Reds after Larry Benton was driven to cover in the second.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, June 16 (A.P.).—The drive for perfect condition already won by the fighters, Madison Square Garden turned its efforts today toward luring paying customers into its new bowl on Long Island for Jack Sharkey's heavyweight title attack on Max Schmeling Tuesday night.

"You can say," announced Jimmy Johnston, manager of the Garden's fistic affairs, "that there is about $100,000 in the till right now, and you can also say for me that it will be one of the greatest fights ever staged by heavyweights, one of the most magnificent, one of * * *."

The rest was drowned out in the clatter of other things, but the drive continues to resurrect from the fistic junk pile, a championship battle that threatens to set a new financial low for the cauliflower depression era. While there has not been, and will not be, any change in the $23 price tag on the best ringside seats in the bowl, some changes are contemplated in the acres of l wer priced seats.

Johnston's Prediction Now $400,000.

Johnston's prediction of the probable receipts, originally $750,000, now is reduced to $400,000, with less optimistic observers doubtful that more than $300,000 worth of clients will be spread around the big structure that seats 72,000.

If the match, one of the naturals of the outdoor season, should fall to better $200,000, the heavyweight fight game will have slipped all the way back in a financial sense to 1910, when Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson toiled before $270,000 in cash customers at Reno, Nev.

Two years ago when Schmeling won from Sharkey on a foul in four rounds, the receipts were $778,000, still far below the boom time mark of $2,658,000 for the second Tunney-Dempsey battle in Chicago, and $1,880,000 for their first match in Philadelphia in 1926.

Word From Warriors Reassuring.

The word from the warriors in the training camps was just as reassuring as it has been for the past week, during which both Sharkey and Schmeling have fought themselves into as perfect condition as any two heavyweights ever attained for a title match.

Sharkey rested during the day at Orangeburg, but decided that he will box six rounds daily, starting tomorrow, and continuing through Monday.

A group of 30 Navy oarsmen from Poughkeepsie visited Schmeling at the German's camp at Kingston, N. Y., and marvelled at his condition and power in six rounds of boxing with three sparring partners.

Max belabored his assistants savagely, flooring one, a lanky novice named Dick Onken, for a short count. A warm rain forced the champion to take his workout indoors. He will quit work Sunday.

Giants Beaten, 2-1, By Grimes of Cubs

Veteran Wins Duel With Hubbell to Snap New York's Streak.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Burleigh Grimes came out ahead in a pitching duel with Carl Hubbell today and gave the Chicago Cubs a 2-to-1 victory over the Giants.

Grimes' triumph snapped the Giants' winning streak after six straight victories, gave them their first defeat at home since Bill Terry became manager, and increased Chicago's margin over the idle Boston Braves to two full games.

The game was decided in the opening frame. Woody English hit the first pitch for a single. Kiki Cuyler clouted a triple to left to send home the first run. Lindstrom, backing up Fullis on the hit, made a bad throw to the infield and Cuyler scored what proved to be the winning run on the error.

MACKS SLUG FISCHER TO WIN, 5-1

ST. LOUIS, June 16 (A.P.).—George Earnshaw confined the St. Louis Browns to eight hits and checked temporarily at least the St. Louis winning streak as Philadelphia won today's game, 5 to 1.

Meanwhile the Athletics garnered fifteen hits off Fischer and Kimsey, who hurled the last two innings.

The Browns had won ten of the last twelve games preceding today's contest to get a look-in on the first division.

F. Schulte crashed through with a home run, his third in three days in the first inning to give St. Louis a good start, but the Athletics pounded out three runs in the second to take and hold the lead.

Miller doubled and then scored on McNair's two-bagger to start the second-inning rally. Dykes' single sent McNair to third and he scored on Bishop's hit. Dykes scored after Schulte had caught Haas' fly.

Emmett Toppino from Loyola University, is looked to for whaever thrills the 100 meters may offer. His opposition is plentiful and colorful. It includes 27 entries, among whom are G. K. Mackenzie, jr., U. S. Naval Academy, and Ed Siegel, of the Swedish-American A. C., New York.

YANKS SCORE ON DICKEY'S HOMER

CHICAGO, June 16 (A.P.).—Bill Dickey's eleventh home run of the season, with two mates on base in the sixth inning, gave the New York Yankees a 6-to-1 victory over the White Sox today and evened the series.

The Yanks got two more runs in the ninth on a walk, Ruth's single and an error by Selph, but Dickey's blow was what won. Charley Ruffing pitched steady ball until he filled the bases in the ninth. He gave eight hits and fanned ten.

Reynolds, Cronin Lead Attack While Southpaw Holds Detroit to 5 Hits

Cronin Scores Two With His Triple; Only One Tiger Advances Beyond First Base Against Brown.

By FRANK H. YOUNG

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Mich., June 16.—Behind the five-hit pitching of Lloyd Brown, it was a very simple matter for the Nats to even the series with the Detroit Tigers here this afternoon and thus hold their second place tie with the Athletics, who also won. The final score was 4 to 0, the triumph being the Washington southpaw's eighth of the season and snapping a Nat losing streak of four in a row.

In the Wake Of the Game

Special to The Washington Post.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Mich., June 16.—For the first time since June 4, when Joe Cronin chipped a bone in his left thumb while at bat, the Nationals had their regular line-up on the field. Cronin's digit is still sore and he really needs to rest up for several more days, but when he learned that Johnny Kerr's spiked foot received in yesterday's game had slowed him up to a walk, the regular had Trainer Mike Martin put a heavy rubber bandage on his thumb and volunteered to work. And Manager Walter Johnson, who believes that the players of today baby themselves too much, and who had intimated as much in Cronin's presence,

Carl Reynolds, who led the hitters with a homer and a double, poled out his sixth four-base clout with the bases empty in the second round, and, as matters eventuated, this was sufficient to give his team the verdict. Joe Cronin, back in the game after a twelve-day lay-off because of injuries, decided that there was safety in numbers, however, and tripled home two more in the sixth and then tallied himself when Reynolds caught on to the idea and followed with his two-base clout.

Only One Tiger Passes First.

While the Nats were making the most of the eight hits they garnered, the Tigers were having anything but a pleasant time trying to fathom Brown's delivery. Only one Tiger advanced beyond first base. In only one inning were they able to hit safely more than once, and then—in the second—Whitehill's single came after Schuble, who had led off with one, had died stealing when Hayworth missed with the hit and run on.

Rhiel pinch-hit for Whitehill in the sixth and doubled, later advancing on an out, and he was the only Harrisman to get past first base, and it is interesting to note that at no time did the residents have more than one man on the runways.

All of the Washington runs were scored off Earl (Dapper Dan) Whitehill, who in the past invariably has proven a hard nut for the Nats to crack. Reynolds drove his homer over the end of the scoreboard in left, his second round-tripper in as many days, in the second, and there was no more scoring until the sixth, although Bluege's two-bagger with one dead in the third was a wasted effort.

Buddy Myer pried the top off the sixth canto with a single to center and advanced on Manush's infield out. A scratch hit by West sent Buddy to third and then came Cronin's line triple to the stn god parlor between center and right. Reynolds' double let Cronin count and neither team threatened thereafter.

As a result of the use of pinch hitters, Tom Bridges and Truett Sewell divided the Detroit mound duties from the seventh on and the only hit either allowed was a single by West with one dead in round eight.

The Tigers had visions of a rally in their half of the eighth session when Schuble opened with a single. Hayworth appeared to have at least a single coming to him on a drive well over toward center, but Reynolds caught the ball for a brilliant play. Then Uhle hit for Bridges and another good play ended the round. The pinch hitter shot a grasser to Bluege, whose peg to second was bad. Myer snared the ball on the pick-up, however, and made a rifle peg to first while wheeling to complete a sensational double murder.

LATE DATE ROMPS HOME IN WASHINGTON PARK MILE FEATURE

Audley Filly Victor Over Sunmelus

Kilmer Candidate for American Derby Poor Second.

Pompeius, Workman up, Wins Aqueduct Feature Race.

WASHINGTON PARK, Ill., June 16 (A.P.).—Willis Sharpe Kilmer's Sunmelus, a candidate for the $50,000 added American Derby Saturday, could do no better than second in the top race at Washington Park today, finishing behind Late Date.

From the Audley Farm Stables, Late Date had a margin of two and one-half lengths, and ran the mile in 1:37 4-5. Portmanteau was third. The winner paid $19 for each $2 win ticket.

Pompeius Scores By Length.

Aqueduct Race Track, June 16 (A.P.).—Pompeius, W. R. Coe's good son of Pompey, ran one of his top-notch races to capture first honors in the Broadway Handicap, a gallop of a mile and a sixteenth which occupied the stellar position on the card offered here today. Favorite in the field of six at 7 to 5, Pompeius easily held safe the closing rush of the Woodland Farm's Cocked Hat, an 8-to-1 shot, to score by a length. Third money went to War Hero, the Glen Riddle Farms' colt.

Pompeius, under 115 pounds and with Sonny Workman in the pilot house, completed the journey through slop and mud in the fast time of 1:43 4-5. His victory was worth $3,125 to Owner Coe. A rather good-sized midweek crowd viewed the sport.

GALLAGHER AND TOW CLASH

Bout Feature At Laurel Tonight

Barry Faces Charles on 32-Round Card at Twin City.

Matches Were Born of Battles, Staged on Bonus Program.

GRANTED a "break" in the weather, Matchmaker Charles E. Cornell tonight will present his scheduled 32-round boxing card at Twin City Arena, outside Laurel, Md. Rain checked the show Wednesday night.

Scheduled to get under way at 8:30 o'clock, tonight's line-up will be identically the same as that of Wednesday.

Charles, incidentally, is thoroughly aroused at reports that he is little better than a push-over for Barry.

"I've seven years' experience and more than 300 fights behind me," Tim declared yesterday, "and yet because I picked up a few dollars and rounded into condition by serving as a sparmate for Barry the boys rate me a set-up.

"I fought and whipped better boys than Barry when I was a raw kid. I don't say I will beat the redhead, but you can bet your life I'll give him the battle of his life!"

The Tow-Gallagher tiff should resolve itself into a whirlwind mix-up if the boys continue where they left off on the bonus benefit card at Griffith Stadium. Both are in great shape and chock-full of determination.

Leroy Bordeau, former Georgetown University athlete, figuratively "tackles" Henry Irving in a special six while Joe Bruno opposes Harry Lennox over the same route. A four involves Billy Hooe and "Chuck" Lindahl.

Tickets remain on sale at Vic's Sport Shop until 5 o'clock today. Special buses running on a 5-minute schedule at 7 o'clock tonight will transport fans to the arena and return at a nominal cost.

BOXING BITS' SELECTIONS—Gallagher to defeat Tow; Barry to outpoint Charles; Bordeau to shade Irving; Bruno to best Lennox, and Hooe to check Lindahl. (Batting .739.)

Leonard's Cleverness Wins Bout With Angelo

Leonard weighed 140½, Angelo 134½.

Kid Chocolate, the Cuban Negro who holds the junior lightweight championship, won an easy ten-round decision over Roger Bernard, of Flint, Mich., in the final bout of a card.

Each fighter weighed 1½ pounds more than the 130-pound limit, and the Cuban's title was not at stake.

Villagers and Dixie Nine Await Crucial League Test

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON.

AFTER a week of threats and counter-threats as to what they are going to do in the big game, the Dixie Pigs and Ciro's Villagers must get down to brass tacks and prove their assertions on the field of battle, which will be the Washington Barracks Field Sunday. The game, the first crucial contest of the current Capital City League series, is for undisputed possession of first place in section A, unlimited division.

Each team boasts a record of three victories against no defeats. They have plowed through the opposition just as an acetylene torch would cut through a cream puff. The two have clearly demonstrated that they are the class of section A.

The game will afford the fans with ample opportunity to exercise their vocal chords, also, for a pair of southpaws, ranked with the best on the sandlots, are to do the hurling. "Lefty" McIntire, favorite son of Southwest Washington, and "Lefty" Jones, Berwyn's candidate for the presidency, are the lads.

McIntire will be right at home with practically all of the neighbors out to see him mow down the opposition. But Jones will not lack support for Manager Hugh Waldrop has announced that a large delegation of suburbanites will accompany the team to the game.

The game between Congress Heights and City Cab, in section A, and Federal Storage's argument with the Franc Jewelers in section B, should provide friend fan with all of the excitement he can stand in a single day. City Cab has improved rapidly, and with a host of stars on the roster, is a worthy foe for any contender.

Dipping into the midget division we find a pair of games that are certain to attract large crowds. Arlington Post meets Goodacres, and the National Pale Drys tangle with Wonder Bread. The latter pair are old rivals from way back. Two wildcats could not stage a fight comparable to the battles these boys wage. Arlington Post is entered in the Virginia State American Legion series in addition to the Capital City League, while Goodacre's is competing in the District Legion series. It is their first meeting of the year.

RAIN CHECKS D. C. TENNIS TOURNEYS

Boys Play Only One Set; Women Unable to Continue.

ONE set of tournament tennis, out of many planned, was played yesterday, as torrential downpours once more checked attempts to finish the junior and boys' championships and the Women's District Tennis League tournament, both tournaments being scheduled for Wardman Park Hotel's courts.

The one set played was won by Spencer Howell, which added to a set he captured yesterday in the quarterfinal round of the junior championship placed him in the semifinal round. Howell, one of the members of the champion Western High School team, defeated Al Perkins, hard-hitting Western Maryland University freshman. Yesterday's set was 6—4, the day before's 6—2.

Play was just commencing in the Happy Jacob-Johnnie Yeomans match and the Bob Doyle-Pete Allnutt affair when rain drenched the courts, which had been carefully nursed into playing condition after six hours' attention.

It marked the fourth day in which Mrs. Ruth Martinez and Mrs. Frances Stone have been forced to call off their semifinal-round match in the women's tournament. The match was rained completely Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday saw them play one set, which was won, 6—4, by Mrs. Martinez, and part of another, with Mrs. Stone leading, 4—3, when rain checked play.

Today they will try it again, at 4 o'clock, at Wardman Park. Boys and junior matches will start shortly after 3 o'clock. In the boys end of the tournament, Stan Dennison, conqueror of Ned McLean Wednesday, takes on M. C. Oliphant in the semifinal round, while Doyle will play Allnutt. Pairings in the junior semifinals are Kent Boyle vs. the winner of the Happy Jacob-John Yeomans match, and Tom Moorhead vs. Spencer Howell.

Favorites Beaten In Dixie Amateur

Harris and Howell Among Choices Eliminated in First Round.

Birmingham, Ala., June 16 (A.P.).—Favored players were swept into the discard here today as lesser known golfers paraded to victories in the opening match play rounds of the Southern amateur championship.

Chasteen Harris, the defending champion from Memphis; Eugene Vinson, the Meridian (Miss.) medalist, and Billy Howell, Richmond (Va.) youth, were among the first round losers.

Harris was defeated by Darden Hampton, of Chattanooga, 3 and 1; Vinson by Leonard Vann, of New Orleans, 5 and 4, and Howell by Johnny Morris a Birmingham former caddy, 2 and 1. Vann was three strokes under par through the fourteen holes of the match.

Tonight only four of the seed players—Emmett Spicer, of Memphis; Alan Smith, of Asheville, N. C.; Charles Yates, of Atlanta, and Sam Perry, of Birmingham—remained in the running along with Hampton, Files Crenshaw, of Montgomery; Morris, and Sam Friedman, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Lott and Bragg Bow To Schoolboys in Upset

Cincinnati, June 16 (A.P.).—Two Cincinnati youngsters provided a surprising upset in the tri-State tennis tournament this evening by eliminating George Lott, national clay courts singles champion, and Fred Baggs, New York, national veterans champion in the doubles.

The youths, Bill Chambers and Dick Meyers, Ohio high school doubles champions last year, defeated the two racquet aces, 2—6, 6—4, 7—5.

DESJARDINS TAKES D. C. POSITION

PETE DESJARDINS, the outstanding exponent of diving in the United States, yesterday signed articles to become an instructor at Wardman Park Hotel's swimming pool.

Desjardins will arrive June 23, after completion of his final examinations at Stanford, where he will graduate with honors, and a bachelor of science degree. It will be his second stationary engagement, the first having been at the Roman Pools, Palm Beach, last winter.

Desjardins turned professional a year ago, with more diving awards than have been heaped upon one performer. He won a first place in the 1924 Olympics, at the age of 16, and the titles of world's spring board and fancy diving champion at 1928 Olympics in Amsterdam. Eleven national A. A. U. titles fell to him, along with innumerable sectional and international titles.

He is 25 years old, of Spanish descent and was born in Miami. He took his first lessons from Willis Cooling, a veteran diving mentor, and later from Charley Branson, coach at Stanford. He is held to be the most consistently good diver ever produced in America. The great suppleness of his body is believed to be responsible for his skill. He can touch the ground with his elbows, without trouble.

Desjardins plans to form a diving club here, featuring only this phase of the tank sport.

Cornell and Bears Set Mark in Crew Trials

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 16 (A.P.). California and Cornell rowed the Poughkeepsie regatta course tonight in the remarkable times of 18:38 and 18:24, riding a running tide with a good following wind to break the course record of 18:34 4-5. The annual regatta is scheduled for Monday.

The California time was confirmed by Coach Kyebright. The Cornell time was not confirmed by Coach Jim Wray, but unofficially was declared correct.

The course record was set by the famous 1928 California crew. Incidentally, it was a Cornell record which had stood since 1901 that the Golden Bears cracked four years ago.

ORANGE RAMBLERS BUSY.

The Orange Ramblers will entertain the Northern-Kennedy A. C. of this city in a double-header to be played at Orange Sunday. The following Sunday the Auth Nine will invade the Virginians domain for a twin-bill.

D. C. WOMAN WINS GOLF MATCH

Mrs. Meckley Gains Semifinal Round at Gibson Island.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, June 16.—Mrs. Betty P. Meckley, Indian Spring Golf Club, Washington, will meet Mrs. William B. Hurst, jr., Elkridge Hunt Club champion, and Mrs. E. Boyd Morrow, Maryland State titleholder, will oppose Mrs. M. Louise Bell, of Rodgers Forge, in the semifinal rounds of the Gibson Island Golf Tournament tomorrow.

Mrs. Meckley, who is the defending champion, will tee off with Mrs. Hurst at 9:20. This should be an interesting battle, as in their two previous meetings, each has won once. In the semifinals of the State tournament June 3 at Elkridge Mrs. Meckley defeated Mrs. Hurst, 6 and 4.

Mrs. Meckley Wins Easily, 5 and 4.

Miss Anne Cochran, Elkridge, was an easy victim today for Mrs. Meckley, who triumphed by 5 and 4. The latter was 3 up at the turn. A lead, taken at the start, never was threatened at any time during the match.

Miss Gladys Greiner, Baltimore Country Club, was next with 201 yards 1 foot. The approach and putting event was taken by Mrs. W. Fairfield Peterson, Elkridge.

In first flight consolations today, Mrs. J. F. Gross, Indian Spring, lost to Mrs. Jerome Solomon, Suburban Club, 4 and 3.

"Dizzy" Dean to Seek His Release as Minor

St. Louis, June 16 (A.P.).—The eccentric Dizzy Dean, upon whom the St. Louis Cardinals pinned considerable hope of aiding them to another pennant, today said he would seek his unconditional release on the ground he was not of age when he signed his 1932 contract.

Dean left the world champions in a huff at Philadelphia Tuesday and returned to St. Louis today.

"My father did not sign this contract for me as he had done in previous ones," he said. "I am not 21 yet and therefore the contract has no value. I am entitled to my release."

Vice President Branch Rickey said Dean was 22 years old when he signed the contract this year.

"If Dean leaves the city and does not rejoin the club," Rickey added, "He will be severely punished."

The committee in the Lyon Park Precinct circulating petitions calling for an election on the Byrd road plan reports approximately 400 signatures obtained, with additional voters yet to be visited.

With the Lyon Park Precinct, one of the eleven voting precincts in Arlington County, reporting better than 80 per cent of the voters having signed the petition, indications are that the committee will be ready to submit the names to the judge of the Circuit Court during the early part of the June term, which opens on Monday.

Alexandria Man Is Shot During Home Rum Raid

Ale Jackson, colored, 37 years old, of 513½ North Pitt street, Alexandria, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday by Policeman Russell Hawes. The bullet fired from the officer's service revolver entered Jackson's kidney. He was taken to the Alexandria Hospital, where Dr. Samuel B. Moore operated in an effort to save his life.

Policemen Hawes and Watkins, according to the report of the police department, went to the home of Jackson about 10 o'clock yesterday morning to search for liquor. They found, it is stated, a half-gallon of liquor, and Jackson, it is claimed, attacked Policeman Hawes and attempted to take his revolver from him, whereupon the officer fired. Charges of assaulting the officer, resisting arrest and violating the prohibition law were placed against Jackson. His wife, Hallie Jackson, was also arrested and charged with violation of the dry law.

Purchase of Fair Grounds Is Approved in Rockville

New Elementary School, High School and Stadium to Be Placed on 38-Acre Tract; Annual Event to Be Held as Scheduled.

Purchase of the Rockville Fair Grounds by the Montgomery County Board of Education was approved yesterday by the Montgomery County Commissioners. The 38-acre tract will be used as the site of the new Rockville elementary school, a high school and a stadium for county school activities.

The tract is to be sold to the county by the Montgomery County Agricultural Society for $35,000, of which $5,000 will be paid from the school fund and the balance from the $1,000,000 school and road bond issue of the county. The sale must first be approved by the membership of the fair society, but this is considered a formality since the society owes $32,000 and has asked the county to purchase the property.

Sale of the property will not bar the holding of the last Rockville Fair, scheduled for August 17 to 20. Clarence C. Gilpin, president of the fair society, announced the agreement provides for the use of the grounds for the "swan song" of the historic institution which for more than three-quarters of a century has been one of the most important events of the year for the county.

County Commissioners Robert D. Hagner, Clagett C. Hilton and John B. Diamond represented the county in the preliminary negotiations.

Decision Withheld On Zoning Change

Property Owners Appear Both For and Against Chevy Chase Move.

More than 75 property owners appeared at the hearing held last night by the Montgomery County commissioners on the petition of the Chevy Chase Land Co. for rezoning from residential "A" of property on Connecticut avenue at Chevy Chase Lake to apartment house, commercial and industrial classification. The hearing was held at the county building in Bethesda.

The proponents argued that the erection of several modern, stately apartment houses would beautify the neighborhood and actually increase the value of surrounding property and that further the county would receive the benefit of the large addition to its taxable basis. It further was argued that this would be a buffer between the industrial area along the railroad and the detached residential neighborhood below. Harold E. Doyle, Charles A. Jones, John L. Weaver, H. W. Shepperson, Bates Warren, Harry Martin and W. I. Cleveland, who acted as spokesman for the Kensington Chamber of Commerce, appeared for the rezoning.

The fight against the reclassification was led by Frederick Stohlman, P. A. Davis, Malcolm Varnell, W. R. De Lashmutt, Marc Phillips, for the Montgomery Government Club of Chevy Chase; Wilton Lambert, jr., and representatives of all of the Chevy Chase taxing areas. Commissioners Lacy Shaw, Robert D. Hagner, Frank Ricketts and John B. Diamond withheld their decision.

Peck, electrical inspector; Daniel Herzog and W. W. Acton, town policemen, and E. Sampson, laborer. The council seat left vacant by Mr. Carson when he ran for mayor will be filled by George M. ALEXANDRIA SEEKING TO BORROW $100,000

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

A resolution was introduced in the city council yesterday, and held over under the rules, providing for a temporary loan of $100,000, in anticipation of tax collections. The financial report of the city for May was submitted by City Manager Wallace Lawrence, and showed a cash balance on hand June 1 of $45,230.73.

A communication was received from Robert L. May, owner and operator of the A. B. & A. bus line, requesting that a space 60 feet in length be reserved for bus stops on the near side of all streets intersecting King street, from Royal to West street. A public hearing will be had at 3 p. m. June 23 to allow merchants and others interested to express their views.

An application from Leo Block for rezoning lots 430 and 431, East Windsor avenue, from class A residential to class D commercial, was received and no action taken at this time. Councilman Garrett introduced a resolution to charge applicants for rezoning in future the cost of advertising, but this was held up pending receipt of definite information as to this cost.

N. Feinberg, of Philadelphia, through E. Joel Tregar, made application for a 20-foot opening on Washington street, at the southwest corner of Franklin street, to property formerly controlled by B. B. Ezrine, and also for a permit to erect a gasoline filling station. This was held for further consideration. A proposition to open up Seventh street to Alexandria avenue was also held over, and the city manager was instructed to look into the possibility of acquiring title to a lot for the purpose.

A letter was received from the Alexandria Citizens Association by Fred A. Holden thanking the council for its efforts in opposing an increase in rates by the Alexandria Water Co. The council also received an invitation from the Coca Cola Bottling Co. to a preopening luncheon on June 29, which was accepted.

$50,000 Suit Filed In Alleged Injuries

Mt. Rainier Man Claims Damages After Crash at Brentwood.

Alleging that he was permanently injured about the face in an auto accident in Brentwood, Md., in April, Thomas L. Ropka, of Mount Rainier, yesterday filed suit for $50,000 in Prince Georges County Circuit Court against Alfred F. Weirich, of Hyattsville.

Attorneys J. Wilson Ryon, Albert R. Hassall and Walter Green appear for Ropka. Another suit asking $15,000 for injuries received in an auto accident in Washington was also filed yesterday by James I. McCall against Jenny K. and Irma B. Waldrop, through Attorney J. Frank LiHard. McCall states that he was injured about the body, head, arms and legs in a crash last November at Thirteenth and Allison streets northwest.

McCall's suit is filed by him "to the use of the St. Paul Mercury Indemnity Co." which had insured his employer against injury to their employes. The defendants, who are sisters, were sued together because one of them is alleged to own the auto the other was driving.

Abramson and Windsor Demaine, of Alexandria, and delivered to the bonus marchers, who appeared to be very appreciative. Mr. Abramson has requested that all persons having discarded clothing send it to him at 522 King street, Alexandria, and he will see that it is delivered to the needy former service men encamped in Washington.

MONTGOMERY BODY TO RETAIN TAX RATE

Tells Petitioners It Has Kept Levies at Minimum and Points to Results.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md. Telephone Wisconsin 4206.

Despite the fact that the county is faced by the same conditions which have forced heavy increases in national taxes and in most municipal and State government taxes, Montgomery County has maintained its tax rate as the lowest in the State of Maryland, through economical and wise planning, the Montgomery County commissioners stated yesterday in reply to a petition asking reduction of taxes presented by a group of some 200 residents.

The commissioners stated that while they received the petition with all understanding and sympathy, that the tax rate already had been established. With "the lowest tax rate in the State the commissioners believe that the Montgomery County administration has furnished the people of this county as good local government and as wise a system of necessary public improvements as can be found in any metropolitan and agricultural section of the country."

The petition was presented by a delegation of county residents, headed by Carson W. Pope, who spoke in favor of government economy. The members of the delegation asked a number of questions about the county government which were answered by the commissioners, who then announced that they would issue a statement later.

Two-thirds for Schools.

The statement points out that more two-thirds of the county levy is for school purposes and that the board of education, through careful pruning and management, has managed to keep the school tax rate to 64 cents, although the State law allows 67 cents. It further points out a reduction of more than $14,000 accomplished by the school board through consolidations.

"Outside of county salaries, the commissioners actually only had an opportunity to eliminate $40,000 from the county levy, which sum includes appropriations made for assistant county agent, county engineering department, local hospital and medical relief, farm bureau, home demonstration club and county cattle testing for tuberculosis and the purchase of badly needed road equipment," the statement says.

"County salaries other than school teachers could have been reduced to figures lower than those authorized by law, and now paid, through refusal of this board to levy the full amount authorized by law. The commissioners do not feel justified, however, in reducing county salaries because investigations for years past have verified that the county has been paying less for the various types of services rendered than is generally paid in the adjacent District of Columbia city government or in the Federal departments or in the City of Baltimore or in other equivalent metropolitan areas," it continues.

Pay Lower Than Elsewhere.

The commissioners state that before the depression the county was paying from 50 to 30 per cent less than the other mentioned examples and that the increased value of the dollar has not compensated for the discrimination which for years has existed against county officials and employes. "They repeat even yet the school teachers and members of the police force are paid considerably less than those of the District of Columbia and other cities."

Despite the lower salaries paid them the county police have maintained orderly and law abiding conditions and it "would be folly at this time to jeopordize the morale and general efficiency through salary cuts." The average salary paid clerks in the courthouse is $100 a month. The only increase in salary in this year's levy was that of jailer from $900 to $1,200 a year, the statement concludes.

Littlepage Will Speak At Tree Planting Rites

Thomas P. Littlepage will be the principal speaker tomorrow at tree-planting exercises, under auspices of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, on the Mount Vernon boulevard, between Mount Vernon and Alexandria, Va.

The ceremonies will be held in connection with the Bicentennial celebration. Arrangements are being completed by Mrs. George H. Alexander, Mrs. Albion W. Tuck and Miss Margaret V. Cockrell.

Last Teacher Vacancy Is Filled in Alexandria

The Alexandria city school board has adjourned for the summer, until September 7, when the schools will reopen for classes. The board elected Miss Grace W. Patch a teacher for next year, and it is announced that all vacancies in teachers' ranks have now been filled.

It is announced that the summer school, which opened Monday, has a total registration of 300 pupils, of whom 230 are high school and 70 graded school pupils.

Welfare Permit Rule Held Invalid

Volunteers Win Test Case in Mt. Rainier on Fund Solicitation.

The town ordinance which prohibits welfare organizations from soliciting funds in Mount Rainier, Md., without a permit is unconstitutional because it discriminates against certain groups, Magistrate Robert E. Joyce has decided in dismissing a warrant against a solicitor for the Volunteers of America.

The Volunteers solicitor was arrested several weeks ago to make a test case, and arguments were heard before Magistrate Joyce last Friday, but decision was postponed. At this time Attorney Charles Calvert, representing the Volunteers, pointed out that the Salvation Army was exempted for the need for a permit, while his client, a similar organization, was forced to obtain one.

The Volunteers recently made an application for a permit, but it was denied. It is expected that they will apply again and that the permit will be issued, but the ordinance will be redrafted according to Town Attorney Bird H. Dolby.

Col. Edward R. Bradley insists upon two things in his horses; they must be fast and their names must begin with B . . . the same as his. His Kentucky Derby winners were Behave Yourself, 1921, and Bubbling Over in 1925. The 1932 race was won by Burgoo King, a son of Bubbling Over. In the same race ran Brother Joe, of Col. Bradley's stables. Black Servant and Bagenbaggage have carried the colonel's colors in the Kentucky Derby. Both placed.

It oftens happens that a hunter shoots at something and gets nothing . . . or another hunter; but it remained for Chester Heath, Berwick, Pa., to shoot at a sparrow and kill a deer. While out along his trap line, Mr. Heath took a shot at a sparrow with his light rifle. A deer jumped up, ran a short distance, then fell dead. The rifle bullet was in its neck.

Climate may have something to do with the stature of people, but . . . the Norwegians are one of the tallest races in the world, while their next door neighbors, the Lapps, are one of the shortest.

Corby to Entertain Scouts of Capital

It is expected that approximately a thousand Scouts will accept the invitation of Karl W. Corby to spend tomorrow at his home on the Rockville pike, participating in the annual frolic to which Scouts from all parts of the District look forward with much delight.

The group will assemble at the zero stone at 9:15 a. m. on the appointed day, board buses for the trip to the estate, then to spend the day swimming in the pool, viewing the woodland estate and participating in games of various kinds—not to mention the thrill that eats bring to a group of hungry boys when the bugle sounds "mess call" at noon.

Representative Britten plans, the newspaper said, to attach to the Wagner $300,000,000 relief bill an amendment to provide the funds. The Wagner bill is expected to reach the House banking and currency committee within two days.

Wall Street—and Beyond

Markets and Business in Review and Outlook

By Lawrence Sullivan

NEW regulations by the New York Stock Exchange touching the operations of specialists who buy and sell for their own account, provide gratifying assurance to the investing public that the governing committee intends to deal vigorously with those weaknesses of the trading routine which have encouraged abuse during the last five years by some of the less reputable characters in Wall street.

Such action by the exchange itself offers far more assurance of a thorough house-cleaning in the world's most important investment market than could have been provided by whatever degree of Federal regulation.

Despite the shameless pillorying of Wall Street during the last two months by the bellowing wild men of the Senate banking and currency committee, the Nation at large never has accepted the suggestion that the members of the Stock Exchange are wholly without a sense of responsibility to the public interest.

* * * *

MANY changes have been realized since the 1929 crash revealed the damaging weaknesses of the exchange rules. Others doubtless will follow from time to time as the facts essential to the formulation of more effective regulations are assembled. Meanwhile, the gratifying fact for the investor is, not that this rule or that has been changed, but that the clear-headed and responsible elements in the market are pressing forward steadily in a sincere effort to reestablish the Stock Exchange once more in the blameless role of Caesar's wife.

Richard Whitney, president of the exchange, reminded the Senate banking and currency committee on the occasion of his first appearance here early in April that the trading and investment community had learned many useful things during the last two years.

"And, senators," he added, "we have sought to correct these weaknesses as rapidly as they have come to our attention. This we shall continue to do."

* * * *

DESIGNED to provide a further check upon quotations which go on the tape from offset sales by floor specialists, this week's amendment to the rules of the stock exchange provides specifically that no order shall be executed by the broker or specialist with himself until he has openly offered the security at a fixed differential at the trading post. The text of the amended section now reads:

> When a member has an order to buy and an order to sell the same security he must offer such security, if bonds at ⅛ of 1 per cent, and if stocks at ⅛ of $1, higher than his bid before making the transaction with himself.

This new rule insures that public orders may not be executed through the balancing of buys and sells on the books of the specialists without giving the floor an opportunity to bid. It should aid materially in the preservation of a truly speculative market.

Testing a Six-Hour Day.

THE decision of the Eastern railroads to test the cost and productivity of the six-hour day for train crews offers further evidence that industrial managers are giving studious attention to the problem of spreading work among the greatest possible number of employes.

Tens of thousands of workers who otherwise might have been shunted to the ranks of the unemployed have been kept on the pay rolls of industry during the last eighteen months by the extension of the shorter work week. As pointed out by the National Industrial Conference Board several years ago, and more recently by influential groups of architects and engineers, the shorter week offers an approach to the stabilization of employment which no business manager now can afford to neglect.

Under a tacit agreement with the Interstate Commerce Commission and the railroad brotherhoods, the Eastern lines will keep duplicate books during the test period to show the actual cost of the six-hour day as against the present eight-hour stint. The test will be applied on either an entire minor road, or on a division of one of the major Eastern trunk lines.

John G. Walber, vice president of the New York Central Railroad, is chairman of the special committee set up this week by the conference of Eastern railroad presidents to conduct the test.

The daily average volume of Federal Reserve Bank credit outstanding during the week ended June 15 was reported yesterday by the Federal Reserve banks as $2,245,000,000, an increase of $78,000,000 compared with the preceding week and of $1,304,000,000 compared with the corresponding week in 1931.

On June 15 total reserve bank credit amounted to $2,270,000,000, an increase of $72,000,000 for the week. Holdings of discounted bills increased $3,000,000 at the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, and decreased $6,000,000 at Atlanta, $4,000,000 at Chicago and $6,000,000 at all Federal Reserve banks combined.

The system's holdings of bills bought in open market increased $30,000,000, of United States Treasury notes, $20,000,000, and of Treasury certificates and bills, $28,000,000, while holdings of United States bonds decreased $1,000,000.

Match Receivers In U. S. Unlikely

New York Judge Indicates Petition May Be Denied; Bankers Sued.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Although postponing action for six days on the petition for appointment of an American receiver for Kreuger & Toll, Federal Judge Julian A. Mack today indicated he may deny the petition.

In a statement, after reading cablegrams from representatives of the Swedish government in Stockholm, Judge Mack indicated he believed interests of American creditors might better be served through cooperation with the Swedish courts. The cablegrams gave assurance American creditors would be treated there on a par with Swedish investors.

Meanwhile, Lee, Higginson & Co., of Boston and New York, American representatives for the Kreuger interests, were named defendants in a suit to recover $3,866 paid by two Milton, Mass., women for stock in 1926 and 1929. The plaintiffs, Alice F. and Edith S. Tilden, allege false representations by agents of Lee, Higginson.

Use of Foreign Wheat Is Reduced by France

Paris, June 16 (A.P.).—The amount of imported wheat allowed to be used in French flour was reduced by the government today to 45 per cent.

A decree last month permitted flour millers to include 50 per cent of foreign wheat in flour until the arrival of early wheat from the south of France and from North Africa.

The foreign wheat percentage had been gradually raised from 30 per cent because of a shortage of grain in France.

WASHINGTON IS 6TH IN BUILDING PERMITS

Value of Capital Contracts Is $946,135 for Month; New York Leads.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Washington was sixth on a list of 25 cities leading in building permits issued during May, compiled by S. W. Straus & Co., Inc., with local offices. The valuation of permits issued here during the month was $946,135.

The Straus Corporation figures, which deal with private building, place New York City at the head of the list with permits valued at $5,530,468. Other cities on the list ahead of Washington were Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Los Angeles and Minneapolis.

Building activities for May continued the general decline which has been shown over a period of two years. There were some individual increases, but in spite of this, according to the Straus monthly survey of 897 cities and towns there was a decline of 19.3 per cent in May, as compared with April, 1932. This trend is further emphasized by the fact that the amount of permits issued in May fell 69.6 per cent below the same month of 1931.

25 Cities in List.

The 25 cities which reported the largest individual volume of permits for May total $23,457,834, as against $25,919,774 in the preceding month of the same year, or a decrease of 9.5 per cent. Last month's totals present a decline of 69 per cent compared with the figures of May, 1931, and one of 76 per cent, with those of May, 1930.

Ten cities in last month's group of leaders revealed gains over May, 1931. These were Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Battle Creek, Mich.; Albany, N. Y.; Portland, Oreg.; Springfield, Mass.; Davenport, Iowa; Stockton, Calif.; Ottumwa, Iowa, and Hackensack, N. J.

Eight of the leading cities showed advances over May, 1930. These were Pittsburgh, Indianapolis, Sacramento, Springfield, Mass.; Davenport, Iowa; Stockton, Calif.; Ottumwa, Iowa, and Hackensack, N. J.

The list of ten States was headed by New York with $8,121,566 worth of building permits issued last month. Then follow California, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Maryland, Ohio, Michigan, Minnesota, New Jersey, Texas, Iowa and Illinois.

If the many inquiries received by District banks from banking institutions throughout the country are an indication, the uniform plan of collecting the new tax on checks, drafts, money orders and safe deposit rentals to be decided by the District of Columbia Bankers Association probably today, may serve possibly as a Nationwide guide.

T. Stanley Holland, assistant trust officer, American Security & Trust Co., is announced as an additional member of the executive council of the fiduciaries section, District of Columbia Bankers Association.

Shawinigan Power Given Franchise

Subsidiary Gets 10-Year Contract to Serve Valleyfield, Que.

Montreal, June 16.—The Shawinigan Water & Power Co. announces that the Beauharnois Electric Co., a wholly owned subsidiary, has been granted a ten-year franchise by the City of Valleyfield, Quebec, to supply power for municipal and general purposes. The city is the center of an important industrial development.

The new franchise will replace an arrangement entered into four years ago through which the Shawinigan interests acquired the distribution system previously operated by the Montreal Cottons Co.

Among the important industrial enterprises in the Valleyfield district are the factories of Montreal Cottons, Ltd., Canadian Bronze Powder Works, Brupbacker Silk Mills, Valleyfield Coated Paper Mills, Valleyfield Canning Factory, McDonad & Robb Flour Mills as well as manufacturers of aerated waters, clothing, sashes and doors, gloves, gasoline motors and cigars.

Power is being supplied at present from the St. Timothee development of the Shawinigan Water & Power Co. Within a short time it is expected that the company's additional vast water power resources will be made available to the Valleyfield industries through the construction of an already authorized high tension transmission line.

EUROPE'S GOLD SEEN PILED UP FOR TRADE

By FRANK H. McCONNELL.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—Bankers say that with the possible exception of Germany every leading nation now has a sufficient supply of gold bullion to enter into a lively world trade when that revival comes.

Since mid-September, 1931, the United States has returned $1,100,000,000 of gold to Europe, gold that belonged to Europe but had been placed in safe-keeping here. Simultaneously, the eleven principal European nations have increased their holdings of gold by about the same amount.

Allowing for minor adjustments and an exception in Germany's case, each nation now has its full supply of gold tucked away in the vaults of its central bank. There remains only a meager scattering of foreign balances—mostly British—in this country which can be recalled.

The manner in which this vast gold flow has been taken, and redistributed by Europe, is shown in a study of gold holdings of principal European banks, for September 17, 1931, when the movement began, and June 8, 1932, the latest figures available.

France's gold holdings increased roughly from $2,340,000,000 to $3,205,000,000, or $865,000,000; Holland from $270,000,000 to $290,000,000, a gain of $120,000,000; Belgium from $230,000,000 to $360,000,000, a gain of $130,000,000; Switzerland from $165,000,000 to $400,000,000, a gain of $235,000,000, and Italy from $290,000,000 to $300,000,000, a gain of $10,000,000.

Small losses were suffered by countries affected by the pound sterling's eviction from the gold standard. Gold stocks of England declined from $680,000,000 to $680,000,000, off $20,000,000; Sweden from $60,000,000 to $55,000,000, off $5,000,000; Norway from $40,000,000 to $30,000,000, off $10,000,000, and Denmark from $45,000,000 to $40,000,000, off $5,000,000. Germany's loss was severest, from $315,000,000 to $185,000,000, or $130,000,000.

However, the net gain for Europe as a whole fas $1,175,000,000, so bankers point out, and has placed European countries in position at last to finance and sustain international commerce when it reappears.

Waiting on Lausanne.

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—The bond market held to a steady and relatively firm position today despite considerable profit taking in recently buoyant Federal loans and special corporate groups.

Trading activity was the most pronounced in more than a week, total sales amounting to $11,011,000, par value. After the various day's flurries, however, the average for 60 corporation bonds retained a net gain of but one-tenth of a point.

But for the long-suffering carriers, which staged a fairly substantial rally in the late proceedings, the averages for the session would have ended all even. The utilities and industrials sat "on the fence," moving neither up nor down.

While traders and investors were somewhat loath to part with their holdings at material reductions, there was also an inclination apparent to await developments at the Lausanne conference. Even half-way constructive results at this meeting, it was believed in some quarters, would be highly encouraging.

United States Government issues contributed a large portion of the day's turnover. Both the Treasuries and Liberties were in demand at higher prices during most of the session, but eased near the close. The majority, however, recorded net gains.

French loans steadied and the Germans were firm. British 5½s again declined.

Sonora Radio Men Sued for $3,000,000

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—When Wiley R. Reynolds, financier of Jackson, Mich., sold 200,000 shares of his De Forest Radio stock to Anthony J. Drexel Biddle, jr., and other officers of the failed Sonora Phonograph Co., in 1928, he was "absolute master and in complete control," his attorney said today.

Reynolds, Biddle and the other officers are defendants in an action brought by the Irving Trust Co., as trustees in bankruptcy for the Sonora company, to recover $3,000,000 in profits made from the transaction in De Forest stock.

Mr. Reynolds' attorney contended in his summary that the financier was a free agent who could sell the stock to any one he chose.

The trust company claimed that Mr. Reynolds had agreed to sell the stock to the Acoustic Products Co., which later became the Sonora Co., and that in selling it to the officers instead he violated a fiduciary relationship which had been created by the agreement.

Cotton Exchange Recalls July 2 Holiday Ruling

New York, June 16 (A.P.).—After announcing a holiday for July 2, "contingent upon the adjournment of Congress in the interim," the board of managers of the New York Cotton Exchange today recalled the announcement.

No explanation for the change was offered, but it was intimated that the board might offer a Saturday holiday for that date without qualification tomorrow.

Since July 2 is the Saturday preceding Independence Day, members of the exchange wished to forego the half-day session. While no formal explanation of making the Saturday closing contingent upon adjournment of Congress was made, it was understood the managers felt that a holiday would be undesirable with legislative uncertainties still hanging over the market.

It has been pointed out that the Liverpool market will be open for a half day on July 2, and will be open on July 4 as well, so that a Saturday closing here would give Liverpool a considerable advantage over the American market in discounting any legislative developments here, were Congress in session.

1,500 IN SCHOOLBOY PATROLS REWARDED FOR YEAR'S SERVICE

124 PRESENTED PRIZES ON OUTSTANDING WORK

Certificates Received Also by Policemen Who Had Charge of Forces.

Fifteen hundred schoolboy patrol members, who help protect the lives of thousands of boys and girls as they go to and from school every day, crowded into the auditorium of McKinley High School yesterday afternoon to receive medals and certificates for the work they have performed during the past year.

Certificates of merit were awarded to each one of the white-belted youngsters, while 124 received medals for outstanding and faithful service, and 27 were given special citation medals, for acts which resulted in preventing potential injury or death in traffic.

The lads heard talks by Selden M. Ely, supervising principal in charge of safety in the local public schools; Isaac Gans, former member of the Board of Education and chairman of the safety committee, District of Columbia division, American Automobile Association; Harry O. Hine, secretary of the Board of Education, and T. F. Behler, manager of the District division of the A. A. A. The latter organization is the sponsor of the schoolboy patrol movement throughout the country.

Lamb Presents Awards.

The medals and certificates were presented by Capt. B. F. Lamb, of the Traffic Bureau. Certificates were also presented to policemen who had charge of the schoolboy patrols in various precincts. The program was concluded with acrobatic performances, a Punch and Judy show and tricks by Johnnie Rey, magician.

ELABORATE GAMING APPARATUS SEIZED

More Than 50 Arrested as Police Raid Night Club; Two Face Charges.

More than 50 persons were temporarily held and two men were charged with setting up a gaming table after a squad of Second Precinct policemen led by Capt. Harry Groves, descended on an alleged gambling establishment at 2001 Eleventh street northwest yesterday.

Armed with a warrant the police group went to the Eleventh street address, formerly occupied by the Crystal Caverns Night Club, and pried open the door, after throwing a cordon around the building.

Elaborate equipment for race horse betting, including a radio and blackboards were confiscated by the police, as well as heavy barred doors. A signal light system was discovered which showed a red light to those inside if police appeared and a blue glow if the coast was clear. However, the system proved of no use, this time.

All the witnesses, most of whom were Negroes, were released last night after questioning. Jerald Coleman, 26, colored, of 1622 Eleventh street northwest, who described himself as a scholar, and John Bernard Mason, white, of 1336 I street northwest, gas fitter, were held in $500 bond as principals on the charges of setting up a gaming table.

Four Are Found Guilty After Gambling Raid

Justice James M. Proctor, in the Criminal Division of the District Supreme Court, yesterday committed to jail four men, George D. Craig, Fred Filiah, Joseph D. Ruppel and Clifford Voorhees, after they had been found guilty of violation of the gambling statutes.

The men were accused of accepting bets, permitting gaming and setting up a gaming table. They were represented by Attorney Harry T. Whelan, while Assistant United States Attorney Irvin Goldstein prosecuted.

The four were arrested in a raid at 915 Ninth street northwest, on a warrant issued by Superintendent of Police Pelham D. Glassford. The superintendent was called as a witness in the trial to identify the warrant he issued for the raid.

Police arrested 165 men in the raid. Most of them were released and some were used in the case against the quartet. They will not be sentenced until next week. Justice Proctor refused a request by Attorney Whelan to admit the men to bail pending an appeal.

Crash Killing Girl Declared Accident

Coroner's Jury Absolves Drivers of Blame in Langstream Case.

A coroner's jury yesterday handed down a verdict of accident in the death June 9 of 10-year-old Helen Langstream as the result of an automobile accident at North Capitol street and New York avenue, which occurred as she was being rushed to the hospital after being injured at Lincoln road and T street northeast.

The child was riding in the car of William Higgins, 18, of 51 Randolph place, when the second and fatal mishap occurred. The child had been struck before, while playing near St. Martin's School, by Higgins' car and he and several companions had begun the race to the hospital.

Morris L. Genus, 35, colored, was the driver of a bakery truck that was in collision with Higgins' car at North Capitol and New York avenue. He, Higgins and two companions of the latter, received injuries in the crash. Both Higgins and Genus were absolved of blame for the accident by the jury's verdict.

Business Men Hear Advocate of Beer

Taking of Stand on Issue Is Deferred After Plea by Offutt.

The Federation of Business Men's Associations, meeting last night at the Logan Hotel, decided to defer taking any stand on the prohibition question in relation to business, until constituent associations have been sounded out, after listening to an address from George W. Offutt, immediate past president of the Washington Board of Trade, in which he advocated repeal of the Volstead act and legalizing beer.

Declaring that it is imperative that federal aid be given the millions of unemployed, Mr. Offutt expressed the opinion that legalized beer would bring in sufficient revenue to cure many of the economic ills of the country.

The federation voted to send congratulations to Representative Joseph B. Shannon (Democrat), of Missouri, on his work in connection with efforts to keep the Government out of business. The association went on record as thoroughly indorsing the manner in which Gen. Glassford has handled the Bonus Expeditionary Forces during their stay in the District.

Postoffice Building Fire False Alarm

Some twenty Washington firemen climbed up long, long steps to the tower of the Postoffice Department Building last night in search of a nonexistent fire, and then, burdened with ropes, gas masks and tripping over their pike-poles, they climbed down again.

For there was no fire. Steam from a boiler escape pipe, blowing through the arches of the tower, had deluded some fire enthusiast into turning in an alarm. And so, bedewed with sweat, some twenty firemen made a disgusted procession out of the building and went home on their big red wagons.

Another resolution commended the Senate subcommittee on appropriations for the District and the Senate District committee for sparing the public schools, "as far as practicable," in paring down estimates for the District.

Eleven stitches were required to close a wound on the forehead of Ralph Hill, 32 years old, of 1302 N street northwest, after he had been beaten across the head with a glass pitcher wielded by an unidentified white man, according to police.

The fight is said to have taken place at the Homewood Apartments, 1013 Thirteenth street northwest, early yesterday morning. After treatment at Emergency Hospital, Hill was booked on a drunk charge at the Second Precinct station.

Briggs was arrested by C. B. Thomas and G. C. Deyoe, of the Third Precinct special squad. They said they found 25 quarts of whisky in his car. He was released on $1,500 bond.

House Bill Seeks to Halt Gasoline Sales in Street

Intending to prevent the sale of gasoline from trucks on the street, Representative Loring M. Black, jr. (Democrat), of New York, yesterday introduced a bill for the licensing of local dealers in kerosene, oils and the whole field of explosives.

Framed as a "fire-prevention measure," the bill, if enacted, would deny a license to any one marketing gasoline from a tank located above the surface of a street.

Two other local bills were introduced by Chairman Mary T. Norton of the House District committee. One would set up a board for the licensing and registration of master electricians and journeyman electricians in the District. The other, the counterpart of a bill introduced in the Senate Wednesday, provides a new insurance code for the District.

NORTHWEST SECTION GETS TRAFFIC SHIFT

Vehicles Are Now Regulated by "Flexible" System of Signal Lights.

Traffic on main streets in the central northwest residential section is now regulated by signal lights operating on the new "flexible progressive" system. Vehicular movement on Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Eighteen streets and Massachusetts avenue is affected by the system.

Through streets will be held open longer than cross streets by the system. A timing arrangement was devised as a result of a traffic survey conducted recently. Side streets bearing only half as much traffic will hold the green light only half as long.

The new timing was put into effect in Zone 2, including Fifteenth street from L to V streets; Sixteenth street from I street to Florida avenue, Scott Circle, Rhode Island avenue and Massachusetts avenue from Fourteenth to Eighteenth street, K street from Sixteenth to Eighteenth street, Eighteenth street from H to N street and Connecticut avenue at M and Eighteenth streets.

Thirty-eight intersections are affected by the installation. The same system is being used in several other sections and plans are under way for its installation along a number of downtown thoroughfares.

Five Are Indicted In Store Robbery

Three Women and Two Men Accused in Holdup of Liggett's Manager.

Two indictments charging three women and two men with robbery were returned in the District Supreme Court yesterday by the District grand jury. Those indicted were Loretta Sutherland, Leona Van Upperman, Clements Cavalier, Anthony Owens and William T. Hardy.

The quintet is charged with robbing Arthur H. Vigue, manager of Liggett's drug store at 1805 Connecticut avenue northwest, of $106.92 on June 3, and on the same night they are accused of robbing Ray E. Tabor, a taxidriver, of $2.85.

All were caught after the alleged robbery at the drug store when taxicab drivers pursued them in Tabor's car to the Key Bridge where a policeman arrested them.

CORONER IS PROBING MYSTERY ANGLE IN CAB DRIVER'S DEATH

Awaits Detectives' Report; Gun Discovered in Rear Seat of Vehicle.

I. C. C. WORKER IS FOUND IN GARAGE OF HIS HOME

Jobless Upholsterer Dies From Gas; Was Depressed Over Loss of Work.

Acting Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald last night indicated suicide certificates would be issued in the deaths of Walter A. Hegner, 52, chief of the stenographic division of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and Joseph O. Rock, 45-year-old upholsterer.

In the death of William Joseph Ashworth, 26-year-old hacker, found fatally shot, with a gun lying nearby in the rear seat of his taxicab parked in front of the rooming house in which he lived at 2421 Eighteenth street northwest, Dr. MacDonald said he would await a full report of detectives before taking action.

Ashworth had a bullet wound in the center of his forehead. A gun he had purchased from Frank Lazarus, store owner, of 2461 Eighteenth street northwest, on Wednesday, was lying on the floor of the cab as if it had slipped from Ashworth's hand. Faint stains, as if of powder burns, were around the wound.

Resident Hear Shot.

The hacker was found by police after residents of the neighborhood had heard a shot from the direction of the cab. Ashworth was taker to Emergency Hospital, where he died about an hour later. His wife, Mrs. Margaret A. Ashworth, who lives in Port Allegany, Pa., was notified by police.

Rock was found late yesterday afternoon in the second-story rear bedroom of his home at 603 Columbia road northwest, by his son, Joseph. A tube leading to a gas jet was in his mouth. Efforts of Fire Rescue Squad members to revive him were futile and he was pronounced dead by a Casualty Hospital physician.

Hegner was found yesterday morning in the garage of his home at 3605 Patterson street northwest. He was in a sitting position in the family automobile. A note by his side indicated he was overwrought by the responsibilities of his position. He was found by his wife, Mrs. Hulda Hegner, and a neighbor, James A. Buchanan.

Depressed About Job.

Coroner MacDonald learned that Rock had been depressed by employment conditions. He was a widower and had been employed regularly by a downtown store until recently. Work was said to have fallen off, depleting his income, and this factor was said to have caused him much worry.

The note left by Hegner read:

"Dear Hulda:

"Goodbye to you. May you and God forgive me. I have taken poison."

A postscript to the note read: "My job is driving me crazy." Inquiry at the Interstate Commerce Commission could develop no explanation of the postscript of the missive.

Coroner MacDonald was awaiting the result of a report of the District chemist as to the contents of Hegner's stomach with regard to whether death was caused by poison in some other form than that indicated by the presence of monoxide gas in the garage.

A man and his wife were injured slightly last night when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a trolley pole at South Dakota and Rhode Island avenues northeast.

James C. Dilbridge, 35, a salesman, and Mrs. Margaret Dilbridge, 29, of 1514 Girard street northeast, were treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts and bruises and returned home.

Warrant Nips Defense Plan To Liberate Alleged Slayer

Harry Davis, Held in Killing of Milton (Milsey) White Henry, Gambler, Formally Accused, Blocking Habeas Corpus Proceedings.

An attempt by attorneys for Harry Davis, 34, of Philadelphia, held for investigation here in the slaying of Milton (Milsey) White Henry, gambler, to free their client on a writ of habeas corpus was forestalled by police yesterday, who served the suspect with a Federal warrant formally charging him with complicity in the slaying.

Attorneys for Davis went into the District Supreme Court and obtained the writ for the production of the Henry murder suspect in court. He has been held here on charges of investigation since he surrendered himself last Monday.

Detectives assigned to the Henry case were informed of the move by Davis' attorneys. They appeared with Davis, who has been detained at the Fifth Precinct Station, and after producing the Federal warrant, alleging the complicity of Davis in the gambler's murder, the habeas corpus writ was withdrawn. Davis was turned over to United States marshals and held in the District Jail.

Davis will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage on the murder allegation this morning. Frankie Blum, 38, also of Philadelphia, is being held by officials there for questioning and is expected to be returned here shortly to answer allegations similar to those in the warrant against Davis.

'Sob Story' Leads To Indian's Arrest

"Chief Lone Star" Arrested After Asking Aid for 7 Papooses.

A man who claims to be a full-blooded Cherokee Indian was being held for investigation by First Precinct police last night in connection with an alleged "himfiam" game he was working on Washington merchants and taxicab operators. Police say he was captured after he fled from a store at 37 H street northwest when Privates R. D. Edwards and J. J. Cullinane attempted to question him.

Using the name "Chief Lone Star," according to police reports, the man, who gave the name of John Wilson Hayes, 39, of 1422 Eleventh street northwest, would tell a pitiful story of being stranded with his wife and seven papooses and being unable to raise the fare to Pimlico, where his aged mother had just been burned to death in a gas stove explosion. The story was usually good for $5.

When police caught up to him at the H street store, the man fled in an awaiting taxicab, but was caught after a chase of several blocks, it was said.

Stolen Car Suspect Caught After Chase

Captured Driver Attacked Detective With Knife, Police Charge.

The spotting of an alleged stolen car yesterday by Detective Sergts. James E. Kenney and Frank M. Alligood, of the headquarters auto theft squad, resulting in an exciting half-hour for the pair and an almost incredible escape by the former from having his back slashed by a prisoner who is charged with whisking out a knife when cornered.

The two detectives noticed Richard Allen, of 202 I street southwest, driving a car reported stolen from the Barry Pate Motor Co., 2525 Sherman avenue northwest. Allen saw the detectives about the same time. This occurred at First and L streets northeast.

Then began a wild chase that led through the northwest residential section and finally back to the section where it started. At Third and L streets northeast the detectives ran Allen into the curb, and Kenney leaped and grabbed the man. Allen is said to have jerked out a knife and slashed at Kenney's back.

Pair Permitted Gaming, Is Charge.

Charges of permitting gaming were placed against Charles Maggenti, 35, of 1123 Seventeenth street northwest, and Jasper Lucchesi, 47, same address, after police said they found a slot machine filled with nickels at a store the men operate at that address.

PHONE RATE HEARING OFF TILL NEXT WEEK

C. & P. Data to Be Given; Roberts Explains Statistical Exhibits.

The telephone rate hearing yesterday assumed an aspect of a marathon race after William A. Roberts, special counsel of the Public Utilities Commission, had spent the afternoon explaining the remaining 32 of the 45 statistical exhibits submitted Wednesday. The hearing was then adjourned, subject to call of the commission, probably the latter part of next week, to give the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co. time to prepare certain cost data and also work up whatever evidence it may submit.

At a conference yesterday morning, E. A. Van Orsdel, counsel of the telephone company, and other utility officials agreed to have prepared the data requested by the commission to show the costs and revenue of the various classes of service and the proportionate costs and profits from the interstate toll service furnished by the local company.

Taking up the exhibits one at a time, Mr. Roberts yesterday afternoon attempted to show through testimony of Thomas R. Tate, commission valuation engineer, that the costs of general telephone material have decreased within recent years, with the exception of central office equipment, and that the Chesapeake & Potomac Co. purchases most of its equipment from Western Electric, a subsidiary of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., parent of the Washington concern.

The exhibits also went into the comparative costs of building construction in Washington and the comparative rates of wages paid by the telephone company as against the union scale. In answer to Mr. Roberts' questions, Mr. Tate said the scale of wages paid by the telephone company appeared somewhat high with relation to the present market.

At the conclusion Mr. Roberts explained that the figures used in the exhibits were for the most part the maximum prices and appraisals and that they were not to be used in any valuation of the telephone company's properties except as a temporary measure. He said he might have additional material as to building construction costs.

When asked what testimony the telephone company intended to offer, Mr. Van Orsdel said he would study the commission's own exhibits before deciding. He added, somewhat facetiously, that he might adopt the same figures and charts as a basis for testimony in favor of the telephone company.

Both sessions of the hearing have been marked by a complete absence of sensational testimony, severe cross-questioning or legal objections, and the presence of a mass of somewhat dubious statistics.

Judge Hedrick Escapes Injury As Plaster Falls

County Judge B. M. Hedrick escaped an injury when loose plaster fell from the ceiling in his courtroom some time after midnight yesterday.

The plaster which fell was directly over his chair, and as he looked toward the ceiling yesterday morning he could well appreciate how fortunate he was that it had not fallen during the session of the court.

Man Is Questioned In Robbery of Bank

Will Be Taken Back to North Carolina After Grilling Here.

A man who was arrested here for North Carolina authorities in connection with a pay roll robbery in Haw River, N. C., was being questioned last night about the armed robbery of the Georgia avenue branch of the Washington Mechanics Savings Bank, in which more than $9,000 was stolen.

Lenza C. Wilson, 24 years old, of 1605 Brentwood road northwest, was arrested at a barbecue stand at Fourth and Florida avenue northeast, where he was working, by Detectives R. J. Cox and Ira Dobbs, of the Burlington, N. C., police in company with Washington detectives.

The North Carolina detectives said they had received information that the man was working in Washington. He was wanted, they said, for a $1,000 pay roll robbery in the small North Carolina town. Wilson will be taken back as soon as the Washington investigation is concluded.

Guilt of Two Men Hinges On Name of Police Puppy

Two colored men were on trial yesterday in Police Court with the question of their innocence hanging on the findings of a jury as to what is the real name of a German police puppy.

If the dog's name is Bruin the two, Milton Douglas and Julius Green, will be convicted of stealing the dog from Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mitchell, 2633 Sixteenth street northwest, who declared the puppy had been stolen May 17.

The two accused men, however, stoutly contend the dog was theirs by right of descent from a mother dog that belonged to Green. Mrs. Mitchell saw the dog on the street with Green and she swore out a warrant for him.

COMMITTEE NAMED TO PUSH BUILDING IN AREA NEAR CAPITAL

Washington Society of Engineers Will Encourage Work for Jobless.

NEWELL IS APPOINTED AS GROUP'S CHAIRMAN

Need for Immediate Action Pointed Out; Survey to Be Made at Once.

Development of construction projects of all types in the metropolitan area surrounding Washington will be encouraged through the activities of a special committee on employment of the Washington Society of Engineers, according to F. H. Newell, who has just been appointed chairman of the committee.

The need for immediate action was pointed out yesterday at a meeting of the committee at the Cosmos Club. Attention was called to the fact that the facilities of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation may be made available to the Washington metropolitan area. A meeting of city, village and county officials in the area around Washington is contemplated to study the effect of the Wagner bill, now before Congress, on the needed projects that might be undertaken.

Plan Immediate Survey.

A survey will be begun immediately to find out just what public and private projects are now in shape to start, once financing difficulties are overcome. This survey will include not only proposed public works of magnitude, but also, as a supplementary list, any jobs, big or little, private, corporate or public needed or under consideration that may lead to employment in the adjacent territory. Projects within the District of Columbia will not be considered in this survey.

The work of stimulating small building and property improvement jobs, is well begun in the District by the property improvement and business cooperation committee. This work includes repairs and reconditioning, boiler cleaning, electric fixture renewals, foundation repairs, glazing, heating, landscaping, insulation of walls and roofs, painting and papering, plumbing, leaks and renewals, and numberless other modernization projects.

Pending legislation in Congress that will affect the territory around Washington on public work, such as a water supply and sewerage system for Arlington County, repairs to schoolhouses, and other projects, will be followed by the committee.

"There are many public improvement and private construction projects that are badly needed in the area around Washington that are held up through the difficulties of financing," stated Dr. Newell, committee chairman. "In addition to these projects that are ready to go, such new work must be planned to anticipate the suburban development that is bound to follow an improvement in business conditions."
